JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES

Under the Circus Tent

Jack was surprised at how easily the riders hopped upon the animal's back. First one would run up a little slanting platform and leap astride the animal and then another would follow. The little girl stood by Jack's side in the centre of the ring and told him to keep cracking the whip.

Next it was the girl's turn to ride. The horse stopped while she was lifted to its back. Then it started running around the ring again. Jack had never seen a little girl do such fancy riding before. It certainly looked very pretty and the great crowd cheered and clapped.

Jack had found out that the girl's name was Mazie. "Can you stand on your hands, Mazie!" he shouted, as she went gracefully around the ring. And, in reply, Mazie immediately threw her little feet into the air and balanced herself on her hands in the middle of the horse's back. (Continued.)

GRANDDADDY FROG GOES SHOPPING

"Where are the boys?" he asked, looking around

Tingalingaling! went the door in Mister Bags' store as old Granddaddy Frog hopped in.

"Pickles and porcupines!" cried the little fairy storekeeper. "Wherever have you been keeping yourself, Granddaddy? I haven't seen you for a coon's age."

"Granddaddy shivered. "Please don't say that word, Mister Bags. I have scratched it out of my frog dictionary. Would you believe it, Ring-tail Coon comes and sits at my front door every night, waiting for a chance to gobble me up. If I weren't as old and wise as I am, I would have made a dinner for him long ago. Heigh ho! How's everybody?"

"We're pretty well, thank you, sir," said Nancy and Nick. They liked the old frog gentleman and always did all they could to help him with his shopping.

"That's fine, simply fine," said Granddaddy, taking off his glasses and wiping them and putting them on again. "How would you like to help me pick a birthday present for my three grandsons?"

"We'd love to!" said Nancy.

"Well, how would some nice overshoes do?" asked Nick. "We've got a lovely lot of nice black shiny ones."

"Overshoes!" boomed Granddaddy in a pleasant voice. "Well, I never thought of that. I guess that would be pretty nice. Their mama certainly would be glad, too, I'm sure, for they must track a lot of mud into the house. Are they real nice and shiny?"

"Here they are," said Nick, opening up some boxes and laying three pairs of frog overshoes out on the counter.

"I'll take them," said Granddaddy reaching for his pocketbook. "Wrap 'em up and I'll take 'em along. It's a good thing I know how to walk on three legs."

When the rubbers were wrapped up in a nice neat package, the old frog gentleman hopped away to the place in the mud beside the pond where his grandchildren and their mother lived in a lily-pod house.

In went Granddaddy, as proud as Punch.

"Where are the boys?" he asked, looking around. "I haven't seen them since the day they were born. This was just one month ago to-day. This is their birthday and I've brought them each a present."

"Why, Granddaddy!" exclaimed Mrs. Frog. "How absent-minded you are getting! They're out swimming. They never come into the house at all."

"Why not?" demanded the old gentleman frog. "Why don't they ever come into the house, I'd like to know? And why am I getting absent-minded?"

"Because they haven't any legs yet and can't walk," said Mrs. Frog. "They're still little polly-wogs and have to stay in the water."

Suddenly Granddaddy thought of his birthday present. Overshoes and no feet to wear them! He blushed all over, so he did.

"Excuse me, I forgot something at the store," he said hastily. "I'll be right back." And before Mrs. Frog could get her breath, he was gone.

He burst into Mister Bags' store and made everybody jump.

"These overshoes are not the right size a tall," he declared. "You'll have to take 'em all back—and please give me three bags of candy instead."

Cheap Paint? Here is the Answer!

Using an equal measure of each paint, and brushing them out on the same surface, we obtained the results pictured above.

Observe that Lowe Brothers' "High-Standard" Paint covered approximately 50% more surface and covered it better than the so-called "cheap" paint.

From this actual test it will be seen that it would take approximately 3 gallons of "Cheap" paint to do a job that would require only 2 gallons of Lowe Brothers' "High Standard" Paint.

Practically applied to a house it would work out this way:—

To paint this house (2,000 sq. ft.) with "cheap" paint Mr. A. required 6 1/2 gals. at $4.00 per gal. $26.00	To paint this house (2,000 sq. ft.) with Lowe Brothers' High Standard Paint, Mr. B. required 4 gals. at $5.75. $23.00
It takes a painter 1 day to apply 1 gal. of paint therefore to apply 6 1/2 gals. of "cheap" paint it took 6 1/2 days at $5.00 per day $32.50	A painter can usually apply in a day more Lowe Brothers' High Standard Paint than any other, but figuring on an equal basis of 1 gal. per day, it took 4 days at $5.00 per day. $20.00
Total cost $58.50	Total cost $43.00

By using Lowe Brothers' High Standard Paint Mr. B. saved $3.00 on the cost of paint and $12.50 on the cost of labor—a total saving of $15.50 on the complete job.

Never Figure the Cost of Paint by what it costs "per gallon." So-called "cheap" paint is the dearest you can buy measured by "job" cost, which is the only true measure of paint performance.

Before you paint consult us. We will be glad to show you how to paint most economically, and to give you color cards and other information for your guidance.
