SAYS LEADERSHIP GREAT NEED OF WORLD

Bishop Bidwell Deliver Inspiring Address at the Rotary Club Luncheon.

The great need of the world to-day is outstanding leadership, said Bishop Bidwell, addressing the members of the Kingston Rotary Club, at their noon-day luncheon in the British-American hotel, on Friday, in one of the most inspiring and impressive addresses the members of the club have had the opportunity of listening to.

Bishop Bidwell said that he considered it a great privilege to meet with the members of Rotary and to have the opportunity of speaking. He had chosen for the title of his address, "Some Thoughts on Politics," but explained at the outset that his address would not be of a controversial nature.

He said that politics were very much abused in the world at the present time. The position of a politician should be the highest of all professions, but strange to say and unfortunately, too, such was not the case at the present time. There was not the deep interest taken in the parliaments of the old land and Canada there should be, while the question of how a country should be governed, should be of vital interest to everyone.

The speaker stated that one reason for the falling off in the interest in things political was the fact that we failed to produce great leaders. The great need to-day was for outstanding leaders. Referring to the parliament in the mother country, the speaker stated that the labor party was getting along very well indeed, but pointed out that there the politicians received great assistance from the under secretaries and members of the civil service, who were free from political influence and had a wide knowledge of the working of the various departments.

"Why is it that we have such a lack of really great men in Canada to-day? and in asking this question I am not depreciating the present government but the general opinion is that we have not the great leaders and one reason for this is that we have few men in Canada who can give up their lives to a study of politics. Many an able man finds it a great sacrifice on his part to devote his time to politics.

"We want the very best men for our parliaments. We need the strongest men for the leadership. There is a considerable lack of interest in politics in this country. We need men like Sir John A. Macdonald, who was a great outstanding man in politics. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was a political giant, the last of that type. Everyone will agree with this whether on his side or not. He was one of the greatest leaders Canada ever produced."

Bishop Bidwell stated that the task of confederation made the pursuit of politics very fascinating and important. The ablest men in the country were secured, and the far-sighted men of these early days noted that the problem of how to realize the resources was in the first instance a political one. Politically speaking, Canada had really finished growing, while the wealth of the country was still in its infancy. The best brains of the country had been secured in the guiding of the development of the country.

Continuing, Bishop Bidwell pointed out that to-day there was a tendency to be more interested in the development of the country than in politics and many were of the opinion that they could serve better in the development of the country than in politics.

The speaker declared that everything possible should be done to create public spirit in the coming generation—to appeal for everything that is clean and honorable. Men often held back from politics, feeling that the life of a politician was not as honorable as it should be. The fine history of our race, however, showed that many had offered to serve their country at a loss. This was characteristic of the race. This was the characteristic that built up both the old land and Canada. And this was the spirit that was needed to carry on the business of the world.

In these days of universal suffrage there was a danger of descending to a mere "vote catching" and getting what is right confused with what is popular.

"We need men strong enough to lead," declared the speaker. "We do not want men to merely frame up a policy that will keep them in power." The speaker said that everything possible should be done to make the calling of a politician an honorable one so that it would attract the brightest men the country could produce.

The address of Bishop Bidwell held the keen interest of everyone present and at the close the speaker was tendered a hearty vote of thanks on motion of H. E. Pense and H. Breathwaite.

Dr. Alfred Grant, president of the Rotary Club at London, Ont., was a guest at the luncheon and on being called upon by President Lyster, extended the greetings of the London club and spoke of the great success the London club had with Hobby Fair.

A case in which a citizen was charged with using abusive language came before Magistrate Farrrell in the police court on Saturday morning but after hearing the evidence the Magistrate dismissed the case.

QUEEN'S LIBRARY AND WOMEN'S RESIDENCE

Descriptions of These New Buildings Are Given by Prof. L. T. Rutledge.

As the handsome Douglas Library at Queen's University, nears completion the walls of the new residence for Queen's women rise steadily a block away. It is expected that the new library will be occupied in September while the masonry of the residence is well on towards the second story.

The following notes on the new buildings are from detailed descriptions by Prof. L. T. Rutledge contained in the annual publication of the proceedings of the Queen's Engineering Society.

The library is to be very fire-resisting. The only wood in the building will be the doors, the wall trim and the office furniture. The partitions are of hollow tile, the floors are either concrete or tile covered with slate on the steel beams, the roof is slate on gypsum slabs. The book-stacks, with a capacity of 350,000 books, are in a building inside the building and entirely fireproof with fire doors leading to the corridors.

The registrar and his staff will be on the first floor at the south end with the principal's office directly above. The third floor is reserved for reading with the main reading room 120 feet by 40 feet and accommodating 174 readers. At each end of this room is a large Gothic window with stone tracery while the east and west windows are also large. The ceiling of the reading room is high with vaulted and enriched roof and having seven lunettes on each side.

"This stately Gothic building is the most impressive one on the campus. All the distinguishing features which Ruskin reveals in the true Gothic have been worked into the details of the design and the library is an architectural success. The tower with its four pinnacles is the imposing feature of the east elevation and commands our admiration."

The women's residence is being erected on a lot 168 feet by 272 feet. It is an L-shaped building with the short arm of 98 feet on University avenue and the long arm of 146 feet along Alice street. The depth is 36 feet. Between the two wings is the tower, 34 feet by 32 1/2 feet, which like the east wing will have four floors. The exterior walls are being constructed of Kingston Limestone.

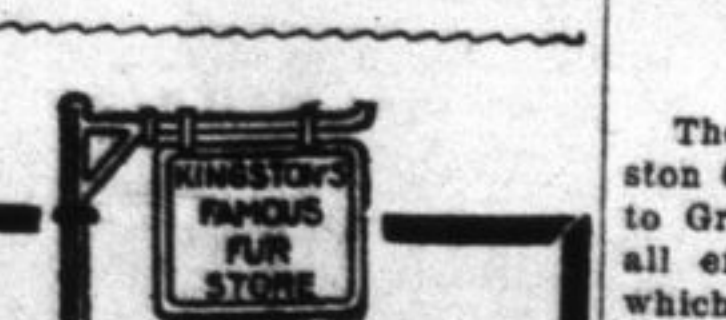

In his design the architect has followed the traditions of the Collegiate Gothic. This is seen in the facade at the east entrance to the tower, in the four large ground windows on the east elevation and in the seven sectional bay windows on the south, with its stone mullions. The majestical in the entire front of the tower is to be almost entirely cut stone out of Kingston Limestone. The architect has been very successful in avoiding monotony in the detail, though he had to cope with 166 windows.

The basement extends under the entire building. The east section is for trunk storage, under the tower is a small storage room, a coat room, and a pump room. In the west wing will be a dozen fairly large rooms.

The kitchen, an important part of a modern college residence, will be large, 26 feet by 30 feet, and a model of sanitary equipment. Provision is also made for a kitchen store, a refrigerator room, an ice-machine room, a staff dining room, a staff sitting room, a dietitian's office, a students' laundry and two wash and toilet rooms.

The entire first floor of the east wing is given up to the common room, which will have a floor space of 1,756 square feet. It is to have a handsome fireplace and will be richly finished throughout.

The west wing is taken up with a large dining room 65 feet long with a serving room at the west end

Newman & Shaw THE ALWAYS BUSY STORE

Summertime Hats Inspection invited. Parisian Shop 322 BROCK STREET

It was given by No. 3 Company, Miss M. Light, captain. The closing item was a camp fire scene where the entire corps sang Guide songs, concluding with the Guide evensong. The lowering of the colors and taps ended the programme.

Rev. T. W. Savary, who acted as chairman, congratulated the girls on the evening's entertainment. He announced that the prize for selling the most tickets had been won by Miss Evelyn Daly, of St. George's Corps, who sold sixty-four. During the evening some of the girls sold candies.

GIRL GUIDES' CONCERT

Held in Grant Hall on Friday Evening Was Largely Attended.

The annual concert of the Kingston Girl Guides drew a large crowd to Grant Hall on Friday night and all enjoyed the varied programme which the girls presented. The undertaking was in aid of the Guides' summer camp down the river and was in charge of Mrs. I. G. Bogart, commissioner, and Miss I. McCormack, staff captain.

The concert opened with all the companies taking part in the raising of the colors. St. James' Brownie Pack followed with a dainty fairies dance, in which a very well-rendered vocal solo was given by Miss Elsie Holland, No. 7 Kingston Company, (St. Andrew's) under their captain, Miss Ogilvie, though a new unit, gave a good exhibition of company drill. Three companies, Nos. 3, 5 and 9, under Miss Light, Miss V. Saunders and Mrs. Savary, competed in a bed-making contest. The judges, Dr. Austin and Dr. Fergus O'Connor, gave first prize to No. 5 and second prize to No. 3.

No. 2 Company, which the chairman claimed was the first on parade on Sunday, though they had to come all the way from Portismouth, gave a very charming folk-dance. Their captain is Miss E. Hentridge.

No. 12 Company, Miss M. Stafford, captain, provided two lively relay races. Then views of last summer's camp were thrown on the screen by means of a reflectoscope. They aroused much interest.

The march of the 8th Company under Miss V. Saunders, captain, was exceedingly well done and the costumes were striking.

Why the Weather? DR. CHARLES F. BROOKS Secretary, American Meteorological Society, Tells How

Rain From a Clear Sky. As it takes an appreciable time for raindrops to fall, occasionally we get the curious effect of rain with a clear sky overhead. While the drops are falling, delayed by friction with the air, or held up by rising air currents, the cloud from which they started may have had time to evaporate, or if it is a small shower cloud, may have been blown aside. Summer convectional clouds are so high that at a rate of 10 miles an hour, the speed of medium sized drops, it takes 20 minutes to half an hour for the drops to reach the ground. In the case of the formation of snow high in a convectional cloud, the time is still longer before rain from the melted flakes will reach the ground. For such snow flakes fall at a speed of only a few miles an hour and may descend for two miles or so before melting and dropping two or three miles more at the faster rate of rain. Hence the total time taken in the fall to the ground may be well over an hour.

Entertained The Choir. Following choir practice Friday night, Miss M. Shaw, the organist of Sydenham street Methodist church, entertained the members of the choir at Grimm's ice cream parlor. Sunday is the last day she will preside at the organ before commencing a well-earned three months' holiday. During her absence, Mrs. John McKinnon, Halifax, will be organist. Mrs. McKinnon was formerly Miss Helen Wright, daughter of
