There is a destiny that shapes our ends, avoid grade crossings as we may.

The man in the village who calls it "perspiration" is a travelling salesman.

The back-to-the-farm movement will care for itself about the time three beans sell for a pickle.

Class consciousness is what you have when a twin six splashes mud on your new trousers.

Anybody can be a good conversationalist now if he knows how to discuss bobbed hair.

Correct this sentence: "There's the old purse," said the husband gaily; "take what you want."

The season for Japan's exclusion of Chinese immigrants is simple. She knows she can lick China.

A labor shortage means that there are seldom more than twelve loafers to watch a man at work.

You can't tell by looking at a girl how many insulting things she can think up after she is married.

That poets' union in Russia will mean little to the outside world until it strikes for fewer consonants.

Note to graduates: "Learn to labor and to wait" means to learn to labor for $6 a week and wait for a raise.

Berlin is threatened with a beer famine due to strikes by brewery workers. German frightfulness reacting.

If Heine is hungry, it must console him to know that the rich are willing to let civilized nations care for him.

You can't imagine how much imagination a woman has until she begins to explain why little Willie wasn't promoted.

Honesty begins at home, also. Those who wouldn't molest a grocer's display are first to steal from the farmers' fields.

Chicago's "preocious" slayers face 48 counts in the indictments brought against them, but murder would tell the story.

It is claimed that an ape never falls in love but once. Our divorce records, then, uphold Bryan's argument that we're no kin to the monkeys.

A calendar fixing a week of five days is proposed in Russia. That would have something to recommend it, provided the weekly pay for seven days were not reduced.

A California indigent mother wants to sell her small son to the highest bidder so as to insure him a "home of luxury." That might be no kindness to the child.

Since the reichstag has approved the German government's action in accepting the Dawes report, it looks a bit like Germany has concluded that it is impossible to stand off payments much longer.

WITHHOLD NOT THOU THY TENDER MERCIES FROM ME, O LORD: LET THY LOVINGKINDNESS AND THY TRUTH CONTINUALLY PRESERVE ME.—Pal. 40:11.

WHERE WILL IT END?

The Utilities Commission, as we have it in Kingston, is a fearful and wonderful thing.

It refused to occupy rooms in the city buildings—where it ought of right to be located—because such quarters were not ornate or expensive enough for it.

It compels the tax payers to travel all the way to the very foot of the city to pay their tribute.

But the commission provides a recompense: It spends—without consulting the tax payers—thousands of dollars in the erection of palatial offices, so what matters how far the citizens must walk?

Nay, it does more; its generosity knows no limits. It paves several down town blocks in the vicinity of the tax collecting edifice so that those who possess cars may come and go with greater ease.

Then, to make the ordinary utilities' patrons happier still, it increases the rate to the small uses of light.

The citizens may not rise up to call the commissioners blessed, but when the opportunity comes they will rise up all right—and call them something else.

Kingston has suffered many things in its long history, but the utilities commissioners who have foisted this extravagant and totally unnecessary burden on the people of this city have exceeded the limit.

PAVING THE WRONG STREETS. No one, we surmise, would have any objection to the paving of Rideau, Frontenac and some less important streets if these streets needed paving the most.

As said before, objection would not be taken to this procedure if other streets, much more in need of attention, were put into safe condition.

Before it is too late, the council might well consider holding up the paving of Rideau street until the other streets mentioned are attended to.

THE SIMPLE LIFE. It must be a wonderful experience to push on into the Arctic regions until the northern lights are seen to the south.

Some of them were eager to follow him to the southern land of marvels, ignorant of or regardless of the fact that others of their race have lamented the day when they yielded to the lure and adventured into the soft, fair country far to the south.

On this day in 1611 the first of those remarkable documents, the Jesuit Relations, was written at Port Royal, now Annapolis Royal, the quaint Nova Scotia town.

HUMANENESS A LOST ART. Humanity lost much during the Great War, but that which should most deeply wound its pride was the loss of the belief in its own humanness.

They devised the Hague conference, which with full and free representation of the nations, discussed pleasingly and with some show of conviction rules for the mitigation of the cruelty of war.

That Body of Hours

By James W. Barton, M.D., Your Heart.

I have been very much interested in the different methods now in vogue for examining the heart.

For instance the taking of the blood pressure during excitement, after a hurried walk, or again after the receiving of depressing news, can all so change the readings that they are not worth much in trying to ascertain the strength of the heart.

Then the slight murmur that is so often found in growing boys and girls often alarms parents. It is of no significance whatever.

Well, some of them were hard put for men and had to send everybody that could carry a rifle, nevertheless they soon learned that many of these men with murmurs, showed no more distress than other men under the same conditions.

Now this should be of great comfort to you if you have been told that you have a heart murmur, and have perhaps been rejected not only for the army but also for insurance.

You see, notwithstanding all our methods of examination, blood pressure, appliances, stethoscope, and the cardiograph tracings of the heart beat, the great thing about the whole matter is just this.

I believe you can see my point. This does not mean that you will play tennis, basket ball, or other strenuous games, but that you can get along and do all the ordinary things of life without being afraid of your heart.

Why the Weather? DR. CHARLES F. BROOKS, Secretary, American Meteorological Society, Tells How.

Spring Temperatures of 1924. The spring of 1924 has been marked generally with an excess of cool, cloudy weather.

The Why of this particular weather is rather hard to discover. One might say that May was cold in the northeast because of unusual cloudiness and because of the late melting of snow and ice during April.
