CHIPPY CHIPMUNK'S KITE

So away he went with his new kite.

Chippy Chipmunk came into Mister Bags' store one day, in the woods, and held up a penny. 'If you please, sir, I want to buy a kite.' 'All right,' said Nick. 'Here's a nice green one.' 'Please tie a string on it, will you?' asked Chippy. 'Sure,' said Nick. So he got a nice long string and tied it on. 'I hope I won't see that horrid old crow,' said Chippy. 'He's always snooping around a-looking as though he'd like to eat me.'

LETTERS To The Editor

Social Force and Church

Permit me to state, that I read part of the Whig of May 12th containing article headed "Social Force Challenging the Church," by the Rev. Charles Stetle. This being an interesting subject of the present day, I cannot resist the opportunity of stating my view on the subject, which also should interest every person who wishes to know the truth. Therefore, this letter is not an attack on any church. Rev. Mr. Stetle asks which is the true Church, mentioning different sects my opinion is that it is the believers of God's power, through the Lord Jesus Christ. They are those who are converted or born of God, and are to be found in every sect or Church, as well as out-side the Church. They are united in Christian knowledge of the truth and are thus drawn together in Christian love and truth. The conflicting force comes through those who took to the outward form of worship and keeping of the outward rules and laws which God often does not recognize. He looks on the heart, where He places His law and writes them in the heart after that transaction. One cannot serve God and Mammon. The majority looks for obedience to what people think, while the Christian holds to what God thinks, and will leave the visible form of worship for the spiritual worship, so that the challenge often comes from the church to those who know the truth and hold steadfast and God works for them. Very often those who rejected God's call sit in the uppermost seats of the synagogue. Yes, even in the pulpit, and are blind guides in many instances. Yes, the church observes, it would not be beneficial to embrace true Christ worship. The one with the gay apparel and gold rings without spiritual birth is most generally given a chance to lead in the form of worship, and the poorly dressed prophet is turned out. At least, this has been done. Oh, the pity to realize, how those people suffered! Still, when we found a Daniel or a Moses or Elisha, a great reform was ushered into the world. We need a place to collect and read the Scriptures, that when the time comes one can grasp the truth. Those apparently dead words rush to the thought of an earnest seeker, and the speaker are often the means of saving a soul. I know a person who was striving to keep true to what God revealed our duty, although seemingly wrong in the thought of the people and a Presbyterian student handed them a card with this: "Does the way seem dreary? God understands. Does the way seem weary? Hold close his hand!"

Circle Six Winners. Circle six added another to their long string of victories when they defeated Shamrocks at the Cricket field on Monday evening, 17 to 1 in a nine-inning game. "Ted" Blomley gave a good exhibition for the Circlex in the box for several innings and should make good as a regular twirler. The Shamrocks and Victorias are to be given much credit for sticking right to their scheduled games in spite of the much stronger opposition of the Circlex.

WEDDED AT GLENALE

The Ford-Jeffrey Nuptials at the Bride's Home.

A very pretty house wedding took place at the home of the bride when Laura Isabella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jeffrey, Glenvale, was united in marriage to J. E. Ford, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Ford, Elginburg. At eleven o'clock the bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father to the strains of "Lohengrin March" played by little Miss Reta, dressed in white silk and pink rose buds, while little Laura Alkenbrack, Camden East, looked charming in white serge, trimmed with pink, carrying a basket of flowers. She led the way strapping apple-blossoms in the path of the bride. Miss Reta Jeffrey, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and was dressed in rose embroidered crepe, while Ernest Ford, only brother of the groom, acted as best man. The bride was dressed very becomingly in Sand Canton Crepe with shoes and hose to match and wore a veil with a wreath of orange blossoms, an heirloom—and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and maiden hair ferns. Rev. John Puttenham officiated in the presence of the intimate friends of the bride and groom. The house was tastefully decorated with hundreds of spring flowers, yellow and white tulips, white carnations, jonquils and apple blossoms and ferns. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold bar pin set with pearls and rubies, and to the groomsmen a pair of gold cuff-links.

During the signing of the register, Miss Reta played a few selections on the piano. The bride cut the cake and Rev. Mr. Puttenham gave a toast to the bride and groom. A dainty buffet luncheon was served to the guests. Mrs. P. Rose and Mrs. J. B. Alkenbrack cut the ices. The happy couple left for Toronto amid showers of good wishes and confetti. The bride travelled in navy blue tricot salt with grey hat and veil and gloves, blouse and purse to match; black satin slippers and red fox choker. After their return they will reside in Watertown, N.Y. The bride was recipient of many beautiful gifts and envelopes of money.

We often do more good by our sympathy than by our labors, and render to the world a more lasting service by absence of jealousy and recognition of merit than we could ever render by the straining efforts of personal ambition. When evaporated, a ton of water from the Red Sea yields 187 pounds of salt; the same volume of water from the Atlantic Ocean gives only 81 pounds. Every time the average man makes a good guess he has a lot to say about his superior judgment.

AMUSEMENTS

What the Press Agents Say About Coming Attractions

JOHN CHARLES THOMAS GIVES MANLY TOUCH TO HIS ACTING "Under the Red Robe," the feature offering at the Capitol Theatre the first of this week, is certainly a picture worth seeing. It is a relief from the colorless and slow-moving drawing room dramas which have been flooding the screen lately and from the problem plays and other drivel of the sort.

Robert B. Mantell handles the role of Cardinal Richelieu in truly fine fashion and the chief feminine personage is taken by Alma Rubens as Renée de Cochefort, while John Charles Thomas almost robs Mantell and the Cardinal of their prominence by his excellent portrayal of Gil de Berault, or Gil de Barthe, as he was known in some parts of the picture. The work of Thomas is the more attractive in that one does not know what to expect. A Fairbanks, a Barrymore, or any of a list of stars easily named have a stereotyped "line" and regular movie fans can tell just what is going to happen next. With Thomas it was not possible to guess, and, although he had emotional scenes to portray he handled them as a man would, without undue demonstration. The scenes in "Under the Red Robe" are truly wonderful. Had D. W. Griffith produced it, they would have been hailed as marvels. But as Allan Dwan produced it, they stand out as much greater than the advertisements.

A splendid comedy and other features complete a fine programme which will be offered again this evening and tomorrow afternoon and evening.
