An Electrolytic Charger for Your "A" Battery

An Electrolytic Charger for Your "A" Battery.
Although the advent of the dry-cell tube abolished to a considerable extent the use of storage "A" batteries in receiving circuits, there are many listeners who maintain storage cells as a source of filament current supply. With the larger tubes, such as the UV-200 and UV-201-A, a storage battery is practically necessary, and even with the smaller tubes, storage cells are a worthwhile investment.
Many people who own storage batteries, however, are not able to afford a charger, and find it necessary to carry their batteries back and forth between their homes and the service stations where the cells can be charged. This is not only inconvenient, but is quite expensive in the long run. For the benefit of those of our readers who have no chargers, we present the following description of a method of charging storage cells.
The diagram illustrates the essential part of the rectifier, for rectifying the alternating house current, and also a hook-up of the apparatus. Remember that this circuit is for use only on alternating current—it is not for use on direct current.
The rectifier, which is "R" in Fig. 2, is made up of an aluminum plate and a lead plate immersed in a solution of borax. The details of the plates are given in Fig. 1. The plates, as shown, are approximately ten inches square, but the exact size is not important, and a variation of several inches in either direction is permissible. The plates are approximately one-sixteenth of an inch thick, but this thickness is also unimportant, and you can use anything of about that thickness.
The plates are fastened with screws to a piece of wood about half an inch thick, two inches wide, and long enough to extend beyond the plates sufficiently to support the plates in the jar. If the plates are attached so that they extend about an inch above the wood, binding posts for connections may be put in each one as indicated.
The jar to hold the solution may be porcelain, earthenware or glass, but should not be metal. It should be large enough so that the ends of the wood separator can rest on the edge and suspend the plates in the solution. The solution is simply water in which is mixed as much "20-Mule Team" borax as will dissolve in the amount needed to fill the container to within an inch of the top. After the jar is filled, it would be a good idea to pour some paraffin oil on top to prevent exaporation.
The finished electrolytic rectifier is connected as shown in Fig. 2. The aluminum plate is run to the "positive" connection of the "A" battery, while the lead plate is run to a lamp bank. The purpose of this lamp bank is to determine the charging rate. We have shown five 100-watt lamps in parallel, which will give a fairly good charging rate, but if desired only two or three lamps need be used, which will give a slower charging rate.

GLAD OF CHURCH UNION.
United Free Churches of Scotland Send Message.

Toronto, June 17.—The General Assembly of the United Free Churches of Scotland has sent its congratulations to the Presbyterian Church in Canada upon the prospective consummation of the union with the Methodist and Congregational churches. The following resolution has just been received by Rev. R. B. Cochrane, clerk of the Presbyterian General Assembly: "The Assembly of the United Free Church of Scotland at present convened learn with the profoundest interest and satisfaction of the union now happily affected between the Presbyterian, the Congregational and the Methodist churches of Canada. They congratulate the United Church upon the consummation of their cherished dream and purpose towards union, and they trust that such difficulties as remain may speedily be removed. They pray that by means of this union the religious interests of Canada will be greatly furthered, and that the blessing of God may rest richly upon the life and activity of the United Church in the endeavor to build the Kingdom of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ in that great and growing community."

NAPANEE PERSONALS.

Rebekahs Came to Kingston For Degree Work Here.

Napanee, June 17.—Hamil Beaucl who has been in the Cobourg hospital for the past six weeks, was removed on Sunday to the Toronto General Hospital where he will have his leg reset and other injuries attended to, which he received in a motor accident.

Many Napanee people motored to Belleville for the United Empire

Loyalist celebration.

About fifty Rebekahs motored to Kingston on Monday evening to take part in the degree work with the Kingston Lodge.

Mrs. F. S. Boyes gave a handkerchief shower and Mrs. W. H. Steacy, a bath room and bedroom shower and Miss Alice Preston a tea last week in honor of the coming bride, Miss Dorothy Smith.

MRS. KNOX SUFFERED FOR OVER THREE YEARS

St. John Lady Was Nervous And Had Severe Indigestion That Caused Intense Pain.

"It has been nearly two years since I took Tanlac, but I am more grateful to the medicine than ever for I have felt just fine to this very day," recently declared Mrs. Lena Knox, 51 Hilliard Street, St. John, N. B.

"For three years, indigestion and nervousness caused me such agony it beggars description. I was actually afraid to eat; at night I would lie awake nervous and sleepless for hours, and finally became so weak and thin I was almost a shadow.

"But Tanlac gave me a splendid appetite, calm nerves and a digestion that is simply perfect. I sleep the whole night through and have gained such weight, strength and energy that I always feel at my best."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

SONG FROM "VALENTINIAN"

Care-charming Sleep, thou easer of all woes,
Brother to Death, sweetly thyself dispose
On this afflicted prince: fall like a cloud
In gentle showers; give nothing that is loud
Or painful to his slumbers; easy, sweet,
And as a purling stream, thou son of Night,
Pass by his troubled senses; sing his pain,
Like hollow murmuring wind, or silver rain.
Into this prince gently, oh, gently slide,
And kiss him into slumbers like a bride!

—Beaumont and Fletcher.
