SOME MESSAGES FROM ROTARY CONVENTION

by Delegates From The Kingston Club at The Weekly Luncheon.

Inspiring messages from the International Rotary convention held in Toronto this week were given at the weekly luncheon of the Kingston Rotary Club, at the British-American hotel on Friday. Roy Ward presided in the absence of the president, A. N. Lyster, in Toronto, and he called upon Charles Jackson, Dr. C. C. Nash, Claude Gordon and Lloyd Buckberrough to give five-minute addresses on the convention. Charles Jackson outlined the "doings" on Monday, Dr. Nash dwelt on the proceedings of Tuesday, Claude Gordon dealt with the programme on Wednesday and Lloyd Buckberrough told about incidents on Thursday.

The addresses showed that Toronto regarded the convention as one of the greatest ever held in that city. The delegates from across the border and overseas were especially well pleased with Toronto, as a convention city, and the arrangements made by the Toronto club for the convention.

Claude Gordon brought out some of the points emphasized by the speakers at the convention and in summing up stated that the conclusion he had reached was that "Rotary means work" and he appealed to the members of the club to get back of the boys' work. Charles Jackson gave some very interesting sidelights on the convention, which was a great success from every standpoint. Dr. Nash declared that the convention had been the means of promoting international fellowship, and at the same time had given Canada some good advertising.

Lloyd Buckberrough made special reference to the work of the members of the Rotary Club at Oshawa during the convention. The members there had met all the delegates going through to Toronto and gave them a most enthusiastic welcome.

The Fun Shop

By MAXSON FOXHALL JUDELL

The Hairloom!
Housecleaning days were at their height.
When wife, blonde and fair,
Espied on hubby's last-year's coat
A shining, long, dark hair.

At first she turned quite deathly pale,
Then smiled and ceased to fret;
This fact had slipped her mind, you see,
Last year she'd been a brunette!

None Better.
A middle-aged darkey was applying for the job of gardener at the home of a millionaire.
"How long were you at your last place?" asked the millionaire.
"Ten years, sub," replied the darkey.

"And were you well recommended to go there?" continued the millionaire.
"Yes, sub. It was recommended I go there by a judge and twelve other men."

—Roy R. Johnson.

A Boy After Our Own Heart.
"Now, children," said the minister, "we all should do at least two things every day that we heartily dislike doing."
Johnny at once raised his hand.
"I do that all right," said Johnny.
"Why every morning I get out of bed and every night I get into bed."

—Walter Clyde.

JINGLE-JANGLES.
Sunny weather's fine for hay,
Roosters never sing their lay.
—L. C. B.

I love her lips, I love her hair which once was dark, but now is fair.
—Jules Costello.

Nero added—Rome burned down—
A darn mean way to treat a town.
—Griff Crawford.

A Fairy Story.
Once upon a time there was a girl who stayed at home reading Thackeray, or Dickens, who never went to matinees nor raved about her latest "Sheik" whom she met at the Grill, who didn't "go in for" hikes nor bandannas nor knickerbockers, who didn't say, "Yeah" when speaking to her elders, who wore an umbrella at the slightest sign of rain, who went to bed at ten o'clock—but that was once upon a time.
—George A. O'Brien.

The W.K. T.B.M.
The Tired Business Man yawned prodigiously and seemed ashamed of it.
"Of all the dead shows," he grumbled, "what those chorus girls need is life."
The farmer's wife in the seat just in front turned around.
"I heartily agree with you, young feller," she said. "But I think you are a trifle too hard. Twenty years ought to be enough."
—Charles M. Sheridan.

The Best Reason.
Kris: "I am forced to admit that woman is superior to man."

Kross: "Now what makes you say that?"
Kris: "My wife."
—F. J. O'Neill.

Noah put on poker airs—
Everything he drew was pairs.
A Fall Wedding.
Up in an aeroplane
Two lovers wished to marry,
It seemed a thrilling plan—
But plans will oft miscarry.
When up a thousand feet
The ceremony started.
The parson said, "Do you—"
Just then a guy-wire parted.
L'Envoi!
Did this disturb them?
Not at all,
For they were married
In the Fall.
—James Reid.

More Than Admired.
He took her hand in his and gazed proudly at the engagement ring he had placed on her finger only three days ago.
"Did your friends admire it?" he asked tenderly.
"They did more than that," she replied coldly. "Two of them recognized it."

UNFAMOUS RECIPES.
Egg Custard for Decorating.
Nothing decorates so inclusively as custard. Stand at the northeast corner of the room, with your face directly south. With proper propulsion, one handful of custard will go farther than you might think. It will begin at the ceiling, and come downwards to the baseboard. When the room is completely decorated, send for the police and give yourself up.

Flaps.
Take one young flapper and cover her with more illusions than clothes. Extract good judgment by using sham. Clip the hair so it runs in at the nape of the neck like a scared rabbit, or arrange it in right-angle bristles. Add the remonstrances skimmed from one-half of a mother's attentions, and sprinkle with one-eighth of a father's interference. This will make one thoroughly unruly person headed in the direction of regret. Increase the numbers as you have courage.

—Mary F. Kingston.

Speed.
Flapper: "Does your car pick up well?"
Percival: "Oh! at least three or four each block."
—W. W. Davis.

The Appropriate Song.
For the Rounder: "After the Ball."
For the Gaffer: "After the Ball."
For the Young Father: "After the Bawl."
