HATS

By George S. Chappell.
We talk of the many varieties of birds, and of bees and of flowers, and numerous learned societies. Discourse on the subject for hours. But though I have worked long upon it I've never discovered a tome That properly dealt with bonnet. That crown of the female dome.

They stick on some fur or a feather. They drape 'em in color or black. And often it's hard to know whether the front is the front or the back. They make 'em demure and girls'-school-ish. Recalling the old-fashioned poke. And often they're simply plumb foolish. Just a silly, old milliner's joke.

And sometimes they're nothing, dog-gone 'em. You'd think they'd be cheap but they're not. For the prices those bimboes put on 'em Would knock you clean out of the lot. But the thing that I marvel at mostly When I gaze around on the street. Is, though the hats are crazy and costly. The wearers. God bless 'em, look sweet!

Corns Stop Aching, Quickly Dissolve Away

The misery of a sore corn comes to an end quickly when you apply Putnam's Corn Extractor. This statement means just what it says, and you can easily prove it in your own case. Full directions are given in each package for the hot water treatment, and for applying a few drops of Putnam's to the spot that is sore. You won't be disappointed. Putnam's is not an experiment; it is a tested preparation that painlessly removes warts, corns, calluses and thickened foot lumps. Sold for 25 cents.

Sorry to Lose Pastor. Hartington, June 21.—Miss Dell Cannon, having passed her post graduation at McGill college, Montreal, is visiting at her uncle's, Fred Dennison, enroute for her home in Brandon, Man. She is representing her home town at the convention in Hamilton next week.

Many from here attended the U. E. L. celebration in Belleville. We are sorry to lose our pastor, Rev. R. W. Armstrong, who is moving to Easton's Corners.

At the Sunday school convention held in Sydenham on Thursday, our school was well represented at both afternoon and evening sessions. The new cement walk on South street past the public school is nearing completion.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Freeman are visiting their daughter in Belleville. Mrs. Archie Goslin is home from the hospital much improved. There was a welcome shower last night; planting and seeding is nearly finished.

When a man's knowledge is not in order, the more of it he has the greater will be his confusion.

MRS. COLIN H. CAMPBELL

Winnipeg Lady a Descendant of Loyalists—Some of Her Ancestors Hereabouts.

Mrs. Colin H. Campbell, with her daughter, Miss Elizabeth G. Campbell, was a visitor in Kingston attending the closing exercises of the Royal Military College, where her son, Colin Howell Campbell is a cadet. She was also participating in the celebration of the United Empire Loyalists at Belleville. Mrs. Campbell is a descendant of Loyalists on her paternal side of the Bucks and Boehems, and on her maternal side of the Nellis and Howells.

Smith Ryerson's history of the Loyalists, states the first settlers of Upper Canada were undoubtedly women and children. It records the names of five women, Mrs. Buck, Mrs. Nellis, Mrs. Bowman, Mrs. Seccord and Mrs. Young and their thirty-one children. Mrs. Nellis was the grandmother of the late distinguished Principal Dr. Nellis of old Victoria College, Cobourg. Mrs. Buck and Mrs. Campbell's great grandmother. Her husband, Philip Buck, was a prisoner of war in Philadelphia, as doubtless were the husbands of these other splendid women who, with their young children, faced the wilderness and its hardships to begin life anew under the flag they loved.

Her grandfather, Philip II, was born in the trek at Lachine. In a few days these brave women and children were conveyed by boat up the lake to the Niagara frontier where they were given land, food and seeds by the government. This they shared with other refugees. It is recorded that when rations were short tea was made from the juice of bass wood seeds which sustained life until garden seeds matured. After an exchange of prisoners Philip Puck brought his wife and family to the Canadian wilderness. Mrs. Campbell says that a brother settled at Kingston, but she never heard his name and would like to know if there are descendants here.

In 1808 her grandfather settled on the newly blazed trail of Dundas street, which was made by engineers under Lord Simcoe. He was granted one thousand acres by the government because he was a United Empire Loyalist, the seal of which she possesses. The old homestead was owned by him and her father Anson Buck, M.D., M.R.C., Eng.

Mrs. Campbell's grandmother, Julia Boehem, was of a Swiss family whose great-grandfather settled in America in 1715. Mrs. Campbell brought with her to Kingston a most interesting biography of her great-great-uncle, Rev. Henry Boehem, who visited her grandmother in Palermo, Ont., when he was ninety-five years old. This was his second visit to Canada. The biography was written in 1847 and a second edition was published in 1875 after the celebration of his one hundredth birthday in the old John street Methodist church of New York City, when he preached his centennial sermon. It is of special interest to her, Mrs. Campbell said, because of her visit to Kingston and Belleville now. One hundred and thirteen years ago Mr. Boehem visited here in company with Bishop Asbury, the first Methodist Bishop of America. They came to visit the early churches in these parts. In 1791 the Bishop appointed William Lozee the first missionary of Canada. In 1811 Rev. Henry Boehem visited Cornwall, Elizabethtown (Brockville), Augusta, Matilda and Kingston. He preached at Hay Bay in the oldest Methodist church in Canada, and at Adolphustown. Near Hay Bay he preached to two thousand people under the "shade trees planted by God's own hand" as he says is quoted as saying himself in a book of memoirs Mrs. Campbell had with her in Kingston. Kingston he stayed at the home of Elijah Shomaker and says: "I preached at the Methodist-Presbyterian church on the Sabbath Day."

It is interesting to note the spirit of union in that early day.

Mrs. Colin Campbell is a worthy successor of these stalwart ancestors. This year will complete her fortieth year of public service. She has been foremost in every good work, a councillor of the National Chapter I. O. D. E., regent of the Manitoba provincial chapter for twelve years, a valiant supporter of the Federal Child Welfare Bureau at Ottawa and during the war recruited from Manitoba to Nova Scotia, being instrumental in getting men and money for the needs of the Empire.
