Dr. Walter E. Traprock, my good old friend, is reaping the rewards of popularity. Internationally known, he is receiving letters by the score, some of them revealing facts about the weather-beaten explorer which he had been very careful to hide from me.

Being one of the earliest associates of the famous Dr. Walter E. Traprock, I feel privileged to acquaint the public with the more personal side of his life as revealed to me during the twenty-seven and a half years of intimate association.

I remember as if it were yesterday the first time that we met. We were only children then, down on the old farm. One day I happened to be passing by his father's wood shed, and, glancing through a crack between the boards I happened to see the new celebrated scientist and explorer and his father.

"Wait," his father pleaded. "Haven't I told you what happens to little boys who tell lies? Some day a great big monster with green eyes and with nostrils that snort fire is going to come down here and carry you off to his cave by the river. Why only last night—"

Young Traprock looked resolutely up into his father's face, his firm young chin quivering with emotion. "Yes, father, I know," he sobbed. "I saw him last night myself."

There was no question that a great future lay before him. "Sweet Daddy. He: 'Why have you never learned to whistle?' She: 'Well, as soon as I pucker up my lips like this—' Smack! J. Willard Ridings.

If "money talks"—as some folks say, It must be mighty cute, Or else the stuff that comes my way Has been a hopeless mute.

Jes' Bit Warm. I remarked to our colored cook, the other day: "Isabel, you are wringing wet with perspiration." "Yassum," she replied, "and I sho' am sweatin' too."

Me-ow! Her real name is Kitty and her pet name is Puss. She wears an Angora wool sweater. Her only jewels are Cat's eyes. And last of all she has a purr-manent wave. —Edna Bachr.

When There's a Boy in the Family. Jimmy's mother had sent him to the country for the week-end. Getting his necessary things he had to wear together in a hurry, she forgot to put in Jimmy's pajamas.

After he had arrived, Jimmy's hostess said: "Well, you are just about the size of my little girl. You can sleep in one of her night gowns."

"I don't want to sleep in any girl's nightgown," insisted Jimmy. "I'll go to bed raw first." —A. L. Sanders.

Take It From Us Girls! "Gather ye rosebuds while ye may"; It's the only time you'll get 'em, If he wants to fling money away. At the florists now, why let him, It's a cinch if he's much like other men. And the wedding starts his woes, The thought of the rosebud, won't budge him then. Like the thought how the budget rose. —Mrs. Molly Anderson Haley.

H. S. MIVOR SCORES REEVE C. J. GRAHAM given honest service at the board for at least ten years, also a man who has acquired considerable of this world's goods through his own efforts, perseverance and thrift. But the climax came in 1924 when he defeated G. A. B. Clark for the reeve-ship, a man who represented the township for a period of five years continuously and it was generally conceded that he was one of the most open and frank personages that ever held the position of reeve in Kingston township. I know personally he would scorn to shift a responsibility that belonged to himself on the shoulders of any other person. Truly this is remarkable that a man coming into the township, and in the short space of three years, rises to the position of chief magistrate. If he had acquired this record through superior knowledge, even then it would be phenomenal. Electors—stop, look and listen: Has the wizard from the city hypnotized you? If so, arouse yourselves; follow this man's tactics and you will find that it is Christy's ends first, last and always. I have heard him make little of his associate councillors in the public city market by using such expressions as "Did you ever see such a set?" Take it from me he will trample over anybody who will allow him to achieve his purpose.

I openly accuse him of being a prevaricator in his statements to the British Whig regarding my appointment as township road superintendent. He endeavors to take the credit of recovering the shortage of the township funds. If it had not been for the 1920 tax roll being retained by me until now, the discovery would not have been made; in other words if the roll had been accepted previous to the nomination of 1924 the audit would not in all probability been for more than a couple of years back. This would have shown a surplus in the treasurer's favor. The confliction of the tax rolls for 1919 and 1920 was the real cause of the audit extending five years back and I have to congratulate Mr. Muir on the effective work performed from the scanty material furnished to work upon, I also congratulate the ratepayers of the township on the very reasonable charge made by Mr. Muir for his services.

In conclusion I am going to ask Christy a few questions pertaining to township affairs: 1st—Why were the resignations of the clerk and the treasurer asked for, at the time they were? 2nd—Why were the offices of clerk, collector and treasurer given to one man and he a city resident? 3rd—Why was Mr. Buford Harpelle when appointed to the office of clerk not installed in his office? 4th—Why has the public for the last six months been paying Mr. A. Saunders portion of the telephone bill and why did you say at the last general meeting when questioned by Councillor Aylesworth regarding the same that Saunders would not pay it, when it was distinctly understood that each was to pay half? 5th—Where is the revenue from the rental of township hall and why is the money from that source not accounted for the same as other monies? 6th—Why are the debentures for the Dover Court side walk, which was built under the local improvement, not signed? There are many other questions that I could ask but let this suffice for the present. I will patiently await Christy's reply to the foregoing and if he wishes I will meet him on the public platform any time he wishes to discuss township matters for the enlightenment of the general public.

—H. S. MIVOR, Supt. of Township Roads.

Brockville Cheese Board. At the meeting of the Brockville Dairymen's Board of Trade held Thursday 4,506 boxes of cheese, composed of 1,025 boxes of white and 3,481 boxes of colored, the largest number of the year, were registered. The highest offer of 16 cents was refused and the meeting was adjourned without any sales being recorded.

The report of the Montreal Produce Association showed 219,481 boxes on hand on June 30th, an increase of 114,686 over the same date a year ago.

Napanee Mathematical Teacher. Miss Kathleen Rehder, of Paris, has been appointed as mathematical teacher in the Napanee Collegiate Institute, taking the position made vacant by the resignation of Mr. McGregor. Miss Rehder graduated in 1922, with first class honors and taking the gold medal at the University of Toronto. She then was appointed a fellow in mathematics and received the degree of M.A. in 1923.
