MRS. RUSSELL PLANS FUTURE OF LITTLE SON; CENTRAL FIGURE OF SCANDALOUS DIVORCE CASE

Three-Year-Old Geoffrey Russell, Grandson of Lord Amphil, Former Viceroy of India—House of Lords Upholds His Mother's Claim.

MRS. CHRISTABEL RUSSELL AND HER SON, GEOFFREY

London, July 7.—Geoffrey Russell, a sturdy, good-looking youngster of three, playing with other youngsters in a London park, stands out from them because:

First—He is the most expensive baby in modern British, and perhaps, world history.

Second—He is the central figure about whom has pivoted the most sensational and scandalous divorce case tried in modern times in London.

Third—He is the full-established heir to the baronetcy of his grandfather, Lord Amphil, a former viceroy of India, and, therefore, if he lives, destined to be head of the great governing clan of the Russells.

At present these things don't mean anything to him. He lets his parents do the worrying and the scrapping. And his mother, who has charge of him, can't make up her mind.

"I don't know," said Mrs. Christabel Russell to me, "whether I will shape his education with a view to putting him in the army as is usual with young men of good family or whether I will be an ultra-modern English mother and train him for business—despite his future title. Fortunately there's plenty of time to think about it."

"The more pressing question is what I will do with my own future. For the past three years, at the same time that I have been fighting this case, I have also been conducting a very prosperous hat and gown business right in the heart of Mayfair. But now I have received a very tempting offer to go on the stage."

"I can't make up my mind. I have been fighting for so long that I am just a bit weary."

Here is the story in brief of that famous fight:

In November, 1921, fashionable London was startled when it was learned that Hon. John Hugo Russell, eldest son and heir of Baron Amphil, one of the proudest men in the House of Lords, had filed suit for a dissolution of his marriage with Christabel Russell on the ground of misconduct with a man unknown, inconsequence whereof a child was born on October 15th, 1921.

Two men whose names were given, were also cited as co-respondents. The jury found the defendant not guilty as to the two men whose names were given. It disagreed as to the charge about the unknown man.

This was in July, 1922, after a nine-day trial.

In February, 1923, after an 11-day trial, the husband won, securing a divorce decree nisi. In this second trial the defendant was again accused of misconduct with an unknown man and also with a new person whose name was given.

The jury found that she was not guilty of misconduct with the man who was named, but found the charges true as to the unknown man. It seemed a shocking verdict and appeal was at once lodged with the Court of Appeal.

By this time half the important lawyers at the London bar were engaged on one side or the other. The Court of Appeal dismissed the wife's appeal July last after two days' hearing.

But this determined woman—fighting for her own honor and for the name and future of her son—had just begun to battle. She instructed her attorneys to take the case to the supreme tribunal of the kingdom—the Law Lords of the House of Lords.

Last March this august body for four days heard the arguments on law points. And on May 30th, last by a vote of three to two they sustained the wife.

Lord Birkenhead, who presided and who gave the principal finding, said the whole case boiled down to one point—unless the evidence given by the husband, who was the petitioner, was receivable, there was no evidence of misconduct proper to go to the jury at all. He held that the husband's evidence should not have gone to the jury. In this he was sustained by Lords Finlay and Duncannon.

And now unless the husband can produce entirely new evidence to sustain his charges the case is settled forever.

The case so far in lawyer's bills and court charges has cost $250,000.

Pine Hill News.
Pine Hill, July 5.—William Gordon, Jr., had the misfortune to have part of one of his fingers taken off whilst pressing hay. Mrs. King, of Rochester, N.Y., and a few friends are visiting her mother, Mrs. Hamilton. The new minister for Zion church has arrived, and although many will miss his predecessor, Rev. Mr. Doggett, it is hoped that his stay here will be attended with pleasure and success. Everybody is pleased to see Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fatterson back on the farm again. The ladies of St. James' are preparing for their lawn social to be held on their grounds next Thursday evening. Miss Stella Payne, of Findley, is the guest of Miss Ware for a few days. Mrs. M. Ward is under the doctor's care, being very poorly. Mrs. E. Smith is entertaining her son-in-law from Utica, N.Y., at the home of her sister, Mrs. Anderson.

ELGINBURG.
July 3.—Since recent showers the crops are much improved in appearance. The Free Methodist people have been busy preparing the grove of Fred Porter for their camp meeting which commences to-morrow. Miss Nelly Jackson is home from Toronto Normal school. Miss Annie Pattenham finished her examinations at the Kingston Collegiate Institute on Monday, and Miss Pearl Bearance is home from Sydney high school. Two pupils from this school are writing on the Entrance examinations at Catechu. A few of the young people enjoyed the trip to Alexandria Bay last week. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Porter, Mrs. A. Cranston and Mrs. Emma Porter spent Wednesday with Mrs. Silver, Sunbury. Mr. and Mrs. B. Simkins have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. George Smith, Jackson's Mill.

Birds Grow on Trees.
A many-colored bird that leaves its eggs suspended from the boughs of trees was discovered by a party of English scientists that returned recently from the heart of India. The eggs hatch in mid-air and the birdlings tumble to the ground.

Expect Animals.
A great crowd gathered to meet Ras Tafari, the Prince of Ethiopia, on his recent arrival in Paris because of a rumor that the prince would be accompanied by fifteen or twenty jungle animals. The only animal he had, however, was a docile Bulldog.

SMART AND SERVICEABLE

Here are two frocks that have smartness and style but have at the same time a great capacity for service. They are by no means beyond the skill of the home dressmaker. Both are cut on straight lines and rely upon embroidery for their trimming. The one at the left uses cross-stitch designs effectively, their crude colors giving it a suggestion of the peasant costume, while the one at the right depends upon a double row of dots in the same color on each side of the front. It is often possible by means of embroidery to redeem a very ordinary dress that you buy ready made and make it distinctive and different.
