AWAITS HER DAUGHTER.

Mrs. Tweedley Has Sent Her Money For Her Ticket.

Mrs. E. Tweedley, of this city, states that she expects her daughter back from Dayton, Ohio, in a few days, and is in communication with the Canadian immigration authorities regarding her entry. She cannot see that the Canadian authorities should place anything in the way of her daughter returning. The girl, who is only nineteen, was, she says, influenced by her much older companion to accompany him across the border. She herself thought the girl had gone to visit some friends in the west. Mrs. Tweedley says that she has sent money to her daughter for her ticket from Windsor, where deportation would take place, and she is hopeful of having her home again in a few days.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

The steamer Maplebrook passed down to Montreal on Wednesday.

The steamer Maplebro arrived from Toronto with package freight on Monday and cleared for Montreal.

The steamer City of Ottawa arrived from Montreal and cleared for Toronto this morning.

The steamer Kingston passed down to Prescott and will clear for Charlottetown on return this evening.

The steamer Brockville is carrying a Sunday school picnic out of Napanea to-day to Presque Isle Point.

The steam barge Jeeks has finished unloading at Crawford's, and is cleaning boilers before clearing.

The Randolph McDonald Company's dredge coaled up at Crawford's this morning.

The tug Salvage Prince and scows are at work clearing cinders from the Canadian Locomotive Company's wharf.

Pass Up Relief Pitching.

Both Walter Johnson and Grover Cleveland Alexander say they are having a big year because they are not being called upon to do any relief pitching. The veteran star pitchers say three innings of high-pressure relief work takes as much out of them as the ordinary game.

DR. SKELTON'S APPOINTMENT.
Is Called a Move in the Right Direction.

Ottawa Citizen.

The proposed appointment of Dr. O. D. Skelton, of Queen's University, to the Dominion department of external affairs would be a move in the right direction. It is more than the prime minister can do, to give close attention to the administration of external affairs, in addition to the many other duties of the premier's office. He must rely upon under-secretaries; and the responsibilities of the department of external affairs are growing with such rapidity, it is urgent that an appointment be made at an early date.

The maintenance of right relations between Canada and Great Britain is too important to leave any longer to a kind of haphazard exchange of cable messages. The people of Canada expect the prime minister to maintain the closest accord between this Dominion and the government at Whitehall. At the same time, there is an equally pronounced demand in Canada that this Dominion shall not be tied up to foreign policies which may lead to war. No Canadian government could with impunity commit the people of this Dominion to a foreign policy which might, for instance, tend in the direction of war with France. But the tendency has been more than once in that direction in the last five years. It might be again.

In any case, in whatever direction foreign policy may lead, the parliament of Canada must be kept informed before it can be asked to ratify treaties or endorse policies which involve this Dominion in foreign affairs. One step towards keeping the government and the country more closely in accord with Great Britain would be to give the prime minister the necessary secretarial assistance in the department of external affairs.

A Workman is Injured
When Truck is Dumped

When a new truck, with a large case of fixtures on top, was running into Vanliven's garage this morning, the top of the case caught on the framework of the entrance and the whole load was dumped. One workman at the back was pinned underneath, but quick relief and a rush trip to the doctor saved him from anything serious. Fortunately he did not receive the full force of the load on top of him.

Attract Attention.

The rose gardens at the post office, referred to in the Whig's columns about ten days ago, are now in their prime and many tourists, stopping near the post office and passing by, have admired them as well as hundreds of Kingstonians. They are truly beautiful, and a large Irish climbing rose, notable because of different colored blooms on the same plant, is now in full blossom. It is between ten and twelve feet in height.

St. Luke's Excursion.

In spite of the rain on Wednesday, St. Luke's Dramatic Club's moonlight excursion on the steamer Wauke Wednesday night was very successful, 300 people taking in the trip. There was an orchestra on board, games and other sports were played and in every way possible the club provided for an enjoyable time. The hour in Clayton was pleasantly spent in a promenade about the town.

Thursday's Market.

There was a fair market Thursday morning with cherries and strawberries attracting most of the attention. The berries ran from 2 boxes for 25c to 20c a box. Cherries could be bought at 75c a large box. The usual array of greens and vegetables was on display.

WHY THE WEATHER?

DR. CHARLES F. BROOKS
Secretary, American Meteorological Society, Tells How.

Mirage.

"It is a very common thing in flat desert regions, and in other places during the warmer months of the day, to see images of distant objects below the real objects themselves, as though these objects were being reflected from a horizontal mirror—hence the name inferior mirage given to this phenomenon," says Dr. W. J. Humphreys. "It closely resembles, even to the quivering of the images, the reflection, by a quiet body of water, of objects on the distant shore—the 'water' of course is the image of the distant low sky—and therefore frequently leads to the false assumption that a lake or bay is close by.

"All these things are caused by the strong heating of layers of air—on a clear, hot, afternoon, with no wind, the ground becomes very strongly heated, and this in turn heats the air which is close to the ground; under certain conditions, the heating may be so intense, and cause the layers of air to arrange themselves in such a way that the rays of light coming from distant objects are bent aside from their paths, and this causes the peculiar appearances."

This bending of the light rays occurs because the different layers of air have different optical densities. Similarly, but in a greater degree, water and air are of different optical densities so that light is bent in passing from one to the other. If a stick is thrust obliquely into water, the portion under water appears displaced, making the stick look as if it were broken at the surface. So, too, undisturbed layers of air sometimes act like a lens and displace or distort distant objects.
