BY ELINOR GLYN Something absolutely new in offered in Elinor Glyn's "The World's a Stage," which opens at the Capitol Theatre today. Trust the celebrated authoress of "Three Weeks," and "Man and Maid," to discover real novelty. The screen has long needed a story which got away from the beaten path. "The World's A Stage" will surprise you with its out-of-the-ordinary plot. It is a vital, throbbing tale soaring to unexpected climaxes. The plot treats of the adventure of a stage star, heading a cheap repertoire - troupe whose performance of Juliet is so fine that it attracts the attention of a picture producer and a wealthy mining man in the audience. They conclude that the screen needs new personalities, and the latter man, being somewhat interested in the girl, uses his influence with the director in getting her a contract. Her star is in the ascendant, but as happiness is about to reward her, along comes the bitter pangs COOL WEATHER GIVES of disillusionment as she discovers that her hasty marriage is not a Values for $19.95. Falling Off in Number Taking a "Dip" at Richardson Bathing House.

Wet weather, a backward spring and a cool summer, and the attraction of other "swimming holes" are responsible for a falling off in the attendance this season at the chardson bathing pavilion in Macdonald park. Some days see as many as four hundred children and grownups make use of the free bathing house, but it is said that this is not as many as used to come in previous years, especially in hot summers. No doubt other places, such as Sandy Bottom, Lake Ontario Park and the Yacht club, which are well patronized, draw some-of the crowd away. On the other hand, there never have been so many tourist visitors at

With the Yachtsmen.

This afternoon will see the last of the dinghy races for a period of two or three weeks, as the lighter boats will engage in no more contests until after the L.Y.R.A. regatta at Big Sodus.

Tomorrow afternoon the annual club cruising race for the Casey trophy, Kingston to Gananoque and return, will take place with a good ist of entries.

Local yaghtsmen are watching with interest the contest taking place off Marblehead, Mass., between sailors of the R.C.Y.C., Toronto and the Eastern Yacht Club, of Boston. The Canadians, thinking to use "R" boats, are at a disadvantage, as "S boats are being sailed.
