ELINOR GLEN'S STORY

Elinor Glen, whose latest story, written especially for the screen, "The World's a Stage," will be shown at the Capitol Theatre for the last time to-day. "The majority of screen players live as orderly lives as the hide-bound dwellers in some scrupulously religious community," quotes famous author.

"The World's a Stage" is a disacted by an all-star cast headed by Dorothy Phillips, whose talent enables her to make the role vibrant with emotion. Kenneth Harlan and Bruce McRae render fine support.

Twelve Star Jury.

The highest priced jury in all history is that which serves in First National's production of the great stage success, "The Woman on the Jury," Monday and Tuesday at the Capitol Theatre, and which was directed by Harry O. Hoyt. Just try to compute the daily "fees" of a jury that is composed of Sylvia Brainer, Frank Mayo, Roy Stewart, Ford Sterling, Jean Herscholt, Arthur Lubin, Stanton Heck, Fred Warren, Arthur S. Hull, Kewpie King, Leo White and J. Edward Davis. And real jurors get $3 per!

Bowlers at Peterboro.

The Kingston bowling team which went to Peterboro this week, did not bring home any trophies from the tournament there, but they have some satisfaction in the fact that J. N. Bacon's rink, which crowded team out of the primary contest, was the quartette which carried off the highest honors of the tournament, the Stratton trophy. The big rain storm broke in on the consolation contest and the doubles, and they were decided by tossing coins.

OBITUARY

The Late B. W. Simpkins.

On Thursday, July 24th, Bailey William Simpkins, a highly respected resident of Eginburg, was called by death, after an illness of two weeks. The deceased who was seventy-nine years of age, spent the last ten years at Eginburg, before that being a resident of Wilmur, Ont. In religion he was a Methodist. He leaves his widow, two daughters and four sons. The daughters are Mrs. George Smith Catarauqui, and Mrs. Walter McFadden, Eginburg. The sons are Chauncey, living at home; Bert, Eginburg; Stanley, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Herbert, Utica, N.Y.

The funeral will be held on Monday morning at 10.30 from his late residence to Catarauqui cemetery, in charge of H. J. Knight, Sydenham. The service will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Puttenham, Eginburg.

CANADA IN MINIATURE AT THE WEMBLEY SHOW

Sunshine Effects Give Gracious Glimpses of Our Summer and Fall.

From the Manchester Guardian.

"Our Lady of the Snows"—but with not too emphatic an accent on the snow, please. Such is the first impression one gathers from a visit to the Canadian pavilion at the empire exhibition at Wembley, London. Others come crowding fast—the achievements of the present, as portrayed in the picture of Canada, as it is; and of its faith in the future, as illustrated by the panorama of Vancouver as it will be 20 years hence.

One observes how the snow, except for scenic purposes, has not received emphasis; how sunshine effects have been skillfully introduced into vignettes, which give gracious glimpses of summer and fall; and how the dominion's magnificent water-power, only 7 per cent. of which it yet harnesses, receives due recognition. The tepee of the Indian, the sleds and snowshoes of the frozen North are not in the picture, any more than the wurlies of the disappearing aborigine or the faintest suspicion of drought are to be seen in the Australian pavilion.

Canada has given as fine an account of itself as any of the dominions. From none of the other dominion pavilions can one gain a better idea of what the country they represent really is, apart from products and resources, than Canada has shown. The Australian exhibition is more spacious, but Canada offers evidence of more lavish expenditure. The cold gray and white of the ceiling of its pavilion give of cheer light than the effect of sunshine secured in the Australian section by the employment of white and primrose yellow. Each display has its salient merits. Perhaps, for sheer artistry, Canada is in the lead; but for a direct appeal to the home-making instinct, Australia cannot be eclipsed.

Stand back and look. "Daughter I am in my mother's house, but mistress in my own." And a magnificent house it is—a vast, cream colored colonnaded palace where there lead a pair of majestic flights of steps at either end, guarded by bronze lions huge as dragons of the prime. On the flanks of the main pavilion there stand those of the Canadian National railways and the Canadian Pacific railway.

One of the entrance halls is "embellished" (the word jumps to one's lips) with pictures of portentous Canadian statesmen. But they are forgotten in the first sight of the display of Canada's lavish mineral wealth. Lofty glass museum-like cases set forth trophies of coal and shale.

Canada is out for the trade—but it is more of an artist than a commercial traveller in the avowal. It camouflages its showcases with beautiful scenery. Case after case there certainly is—each a "silent salesman," but the eye can always turn to the wonderful panoramic background. There are trophies and monuments and pyramids of biscuits, canned milk and beef, bacon, fruit and jam, testifying to Canada's excellent appetite fostered by hard work and sport. Canada has more than enough for its own lair, and is willing to feed the northern hemisphere. It has marshalled the products of its industry in parade state.

There are sporting goods, rubber products, shoes, cutting tools, motor cars, carpets, tinned salmon and salmon in the nude, both Chinook and Sockeye; poultry, eggs and all the products of the dairy farm, including a remarkable representation in solid butter of the ranch of the Prince of Wales, with prince and saddle hack complete. There is wool (so Canada does grow wool, admits the surprised Australian). There are orchards and wheat fields and farms. There is a house of timber, joined and fitted as if it were cabinet-work, beside which the Australian settler's bush hut of weather-board and galvanized iron, or even slabs and bark, looks rough and ready. A sturdy Canadian log hut would be a fairer comparison. But enough of cataloguing. Suppose we approach the other entrance to the pavilion.

This also is "embellished"—with velvet-hung royal portraits. They do this sort of thing better at the academy, where people expect it of them. But the portraiture is forgotten in the unequalled series of scenic panoramas which fill the eye and capture the imagination: St. John's Harbor, with tiers of crowded bales and argosies of purple sails and many more accessories than Tennyson ever particularized; Jasper National Park in the Northern Rockies, with its pine-clad mountains; stretches of corn-land with grain-elevators and moving trains—a spacious and proud demesne. Here is Niagara pictured to scale—but no brush can picture Niagara. There is an experimental farm scene which Australia could reproduce, but which any Australian would covet.

The trophies of game on the walls would gladden the heart of Nimrod. Upstairs one finds a voluttuous and informative moving picture show, with cyclopedic lectures.

No human being could hope to absorb at once the display of the Canadian National railways, with their 32,663 miles of permanent way. Here are to be seen vignettes of scenery from the windows of model railway carriages; but imagination hoggies at the number of trains required to cover the vast track portrayed, with gangs of convicts, by means of illuminated perforations stretching across a map of the

CHICAGO MURDER CASE

HER PARACHUTE FAILED LADY WAS INJURED

Chicago, July 26.—Upon a pair of horn-rimmed glasses, dropped by Nathan Leopold, Jr., when he and Richard Loeb stuffed the body of Robert Franks into railroad culvert May 1st, centred interest in today's session of judicial hearing which is to determine their punishment. It was these spectacles that gave investigators their first tangible clue to the identity of the slayers. The state arranged for detectives and eye specialists who traced the spectacles to their owner, to testify today, and expected to complete final testimony against the youths before adjournment, planning to read confessions Monday and finish the prosecution's case on Tuesday. Sixty-five witnesses have taken the stand so far for the state.

Evidence offered yesterday showed that Leopold planned to take his life if caught by the police.

THE LATE WILLIAM PETERS.

He Was a Respected Farmer at Perth Road.

Perth Road, July 25.—The remains of the late William Peters were brought home from the Kingston General Hospital on Thursday afternoon. The deceased succumbed to heart failure at the age of sixty-nine years. Mr. Peters spent the greater part of his life as a farmer at Perth Road and held the respect of everyone. Besides his widow he leaves one daughter, Mrs. James Hunt, Kingston, and two sons, Frank, Hamilton, and Charles, Kingston. Rev. Mr. England, Inverary Methodist church, in the absence of Rev. Mr. Bromwick, conducted the funeral service, after which the funeral cortege rendered its way to Wilmur cemetery where the remains were interred. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved relatives.

Crops and gardens are looking fine. Hay has begun. Rev. Mr. Bromwick, wife, and family have arrived to take charge of the Methodist field. The Ladies' Aid met recently at Mrs. C. Smith's where an enjoyable time was spent. Five members have been added to the membership roll.

Rev. Mr. Bromwick has returned after a week's rest to take charge of the circuit. Born to Mr. and Mrs. J. Yonge, a daughter, J. S. Roberts motored to Enterprise recently to visit his sister, Mrs. Nellie Wager, who is very ill.

FINE CROP OF HAY.

Is Reported to Be Harvested at Westbrook.

Westbrook, July 25.—The showers of the past week are much appreciated by the farmers in regard to the potatoes and gardens. Cutting hay is the order of the day and farmers in this district report a fine crop. A number from here attended the funeral of the late Mrs. John Adair, who died in Rochester, N.Y., on July 22nd. Deceased was formerly a resident of this place and was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends.

Mrs. W. Rawson, Nipissing, is visiting her sister, Mrs. S. M. Burt. A number from the village attended the social and dance held at Glenvale on Wednesday evening and report a pleasant time. Miss Edith Bridge and Mrs. Harold Bridge, Utica, N.Y., are visiting friends in the village.

POSTMASTER SHOT HIMSELF.

A St. Catharines Man in Dangerous Condition.

St. Catharines, July 26.—John S. Carlisle, for fourteen years postmaster of St. Catharines, was found in the basement of the post office, last night, with two bullet wounds close to his heart and a revolver lying near by. He was rushed to the hospital where there is slight hopes of his recovery. The wounds were apparently self-inflicted, according to the statement of attending physicians.

A LONG LIVED FAMILY.

Providence, R.I., July 26.—Joseph Fournier, a native of Quebec, who was 100 years old, July 1st last, died, last night, at the home of his son, William I. Fournier, in Oakland, R.I., where he had lived for the past twelve years. He had often expressed a wish to die on a Thursday, last night, at the home of his son. His seven sisters all lived to be over 100.

Aero Cushions have come to stay. They stop all your trouble and shorten your day. You can rely upon "Cushions." There's no other way.

There's one thing I'll say when I'm making this rhyme If you want to save trouble and valuable time Stop in to "Aero" your trouble stops there. For all that have used them say they're better than air.

So tight in the casing it cannot squeak, And without air it cannot leak; And for easy riding, it would put you to sleep— That's Aero Cushions.

With never a puncture, never a blow, You travel the road from Spring 'till snow. With no air to escape, you are ready to go— That's Aero Cushions.

The Cord Tire takes just sixty-five. The fabric soon goes lame; The "Aero" has no tube at all. But it "gets there" just the same. It cannot puncture, cannot "blow," And they who use it always go.
