Her Mistress' Voice.
Twelve hens and a rooster were stolen from Charles McNulty's place below Johnston's Corners, recently, says the Tweed News. Mrs. McNulty went on a hunt for the fowl and on passing by a yard espied her missing rooster. She claimed the bird, whereupon the man inferred that she was untruthful. Quick of thought Mrs. McNulty called out "Chicky, chicky" whereupon a pet bird responded to the call by trotting out of hiding, following by her eleven mates. An offer of $30 was made to settle the case out of court but Mrs. McNulty refused. We are told it cost the bird fancier in the neighborhood of $40 when the case was adjudicated.

A KINGSTON VETERAN.

Ex-Sergt.-Major John Kelly Served in Many Wars.
Ex-Sergt.-Major John Kelly, a veteran of many wars, who has served in the British and Canadian armies for forty-one years, arrived in Kingston on Wednesday, after going to England in an effort, so far fruitless, to interest the authorities in giving him relief.

Mr. Kelly's remarkable war record began in 1879 and since then he has served in India, Afghanistan, the Boer War, the Navy, the Canadian Engineers and in the recent war over five years with the 28th Manchesters and the A.S.C. He lost an eye in the Boer War and was gassed in France, yet he is only receiving a shilling a day pension from his Boer War service. The Canadian government investigated his case, he states, and recommended a 90 per cent. pension but as he served in the late war with the Imperials, the pension should be paid by the British government and so far this has been refused. In 1902 he came to Canada to live, residing most of the time since at Hamilton.

He holds a stationery engineer's certificate and is willing to work but so far has been in very hard circumstances. On his arrival here he at once applied to the Employment Bureau.

Duncan Stuart Graham, aged sixty-one years, a Blind River lumberman, is dead. He was born at Annapolis and had lived at Hanfrew, Spanish River and Blind River. Ottawa to give king's prize winner university education.
