Among the things that run in all families are stockings.

Picnic parties believe that Noah had more than two ants in the ark.

All of us know what we would do this vacation if we could afford it.

Some people respect divine things, and some use salt on watermelons.

There is something radically wrong with one who is too radical.

Lunch is something an executive consumes while killing two hours.

Husbands are people who pretend to be thinking when they are merely pouting.

Hunt the bright things. Suppose flies were as big as some of Sparks' elephants.

Never destroy a lumpy old mattress. Some farmer can use it for a summer boarder.

In some respects the world improves little, but you very seldom see a horse-hair sofa.

The world hasn't yet seen a man as important as a rich man in a small town feels.

To make a visitor feel at home raise Cain when he spills gravy on the tablecloth.

A father is a man who is afraid his son of 17 is going to act the way he did at that age.

The only time some men think they have no kick coming is when it comes time to kick in.

One fine thing about using a taxicab is that you can feel neutral when the fenders crumple.

"Nerves" are things you have if you aren't kept busy enough to quit thinking about yourself.

Our estimate is that the energy used in applying tonic to bald heads is equal to 22,465 horse power.

Correct this sentence: "I bought twelve cantaloupes," said she, "and not one was green or spoiled."

Neighbors should remember that small boys are no more a nuisance to them than they are to small boys.

The Olympic games are persuading many people to get down the atlas and see where Finland is.

Yet every time you get a thrill you sacrifice the capacity for being thrilled in the same way again.

Grandmother's bobbed hair may seem funny, but the world snickered when great-grandfather shaved off his beard.

The annoying thing about a vacation is the home-coming and the discovery that nobody knew you were away.

They say snakes will not bite in water, and a disgusted alderman who goes fishing says the fish won't either.

BIBLE THOUGHT

O LORD, THOU ART MY GOD; I will exult thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things.

Thou hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his distress, a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat.—Isaiah 25: 1, 2

WHEAT SHORTAGE AND IMMIGRATION.

Even though it has been known for some time that wheat raising in some portions of the Canadian West was rather a speculation as regards the results of any given year, it is still distressing to find that in considerable parts of that area the yield, in a year of magnificently high prices, will be very much below the average.

Even in this situation there is an advantage to Canada if we look for it with sufficient care. Farm prices in the United States have been much depressed for several years by the economic difficulties of the farmers; they will be greatly raised by prosperity—not altogether because people think farms are worth more in times of prosperity, but rather because the prosperous farmer is always desperately anxious to add to his land holdings and has the money with which to do it.

NEW WORDS, GOOD AND BAD.

That unpleasant word "realtor," which many sensitive people have feared would succeed in attaching itself to the language as a common noun, has been rendered harmless by being declared the exclusive property of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

THE CONFERENCE DIFFICULTIES

It is a very difficult matter for the ordinary layman, who is not, as a rule, experienced in matters of diplomacy or international politics, to understand just what is going on at the inter-allied conference in London.

have been full of terms and phrases which are hard to understand unless the reader is fully conversant with the events which have preceded the conference, and with the matters which are under consideration.

It would appear, from what can be gleaned from the news despatches, that the point of disagreement is that of the terms on which an international loan, amounting to two hundred million dollars, shall be made to Germany.

All of this is very simple. It is only natural that the bankers, the men who are to advance the money, should seek to have adequate protection for their interests. The point of contention is that the French delegate and the Anglo-American bankers are unable to agree on the form of guarantee which should be given, and the part which France should play in the enforcement of the guarantee.

PRESS COMMENT

The Church.

The church is human! Yes, but the very men who disclaim most loudly against her defects take greatest care to plant their homes beneath her shadow.

Good Advice.

Arthur W. Cullen, the Chicago grain operator who is credited with having cleaned up more than $1,500,000 in the bull market which has developed in corn, warns me against the grain pit.

Will Population Decline?

Professor Bowley, the famous statistician, published a day or two ago some careful calculations which show that by 1941, if the present rates of births, deaths and emigration continue, the population of Great Britain will be actually declining.

Council Exonerated.

Aylmer, Que., Aug. 1.—Mayor George Nash and members of the Aylmer town council and Aylmer housing commission, of which Robert Eadie is head, it is understood are likely to be entirely exonerated of any wrong doing or lack of proper stewardship in their positions.

Farmers in Kawartha lakes district develop profitable trade with summer cottagers.

Bulgaria is faced by Balkan line-up of hostile states.

That Body of Hours. By James W. Barton, M.D. Includes a portrait of the author.

Acidosis and Biliousness. You are feeling as if you were about a hundred years old. You haven't any appetite, the tongue is coated, you have half a headache all the time, you are irritable, and sometimes a bit dizzy.

It is caused by eating too many acid forming foods, and not enough of the alkalies. There is an argument as to whether it is caused by too much acid in the blood, or not enough alkaline material.

Now remember these acid forming foods are good foods, being great body builders, and if you are run down, have been overworked, these foods are indicated, because they repair worn out tissue.

Canada's Story Day by Day

By B. Odwen Davies

AUGUST 1.

On this day in 1639, a little party of four women set foot for the first time on Canadian soil. They were women destined to become famous in the annals of the country.

WHY THE WEATHER?

DR. CHARLES F. BROOKS, Secretary, American Meteorological Society, Tells How.

Average August Weather. A Weather Bureau summary says of August weather: "The average temperature for August differs but little from that of July, although as a rule August is slightly cooler except on the Pacific coast."

BIBBY'S CLEARANCE SALE. All Summer Suits Marked at Greatly Reduced Prices. MEN'S SUITS. The Fall Suits that are coming to our store are forcing out these fine selections of Suits at great concessions.

The normals are slightly above 80 degrees in much of the Gulf coast section.

"Rainfall in August is frequently of a local character, resulting largely from thunderstorms. The highest monthly averages for August vary from 6 inches to more than 8 inches and occur in the more southern states.

The dry season continues over the Pacific Coast states and little or no rain is expected, except for occasional showers in the mountains and in the more northern districts.

Thunderstorms during August are usually more frequent along the east Gulf coast than in any other section of the country, occurring on the average on about 20 days during the month.

They are usually active also during this month in the far Southwest, this being within the season of maximum rainfall in Arizona and New Mexico and portions of the adjoining states."

FORD'S RECIPE.

"Henry Ford," says a writer in an American financial magazine, "satis severely on his way to fabulous profits, even during a business slump."

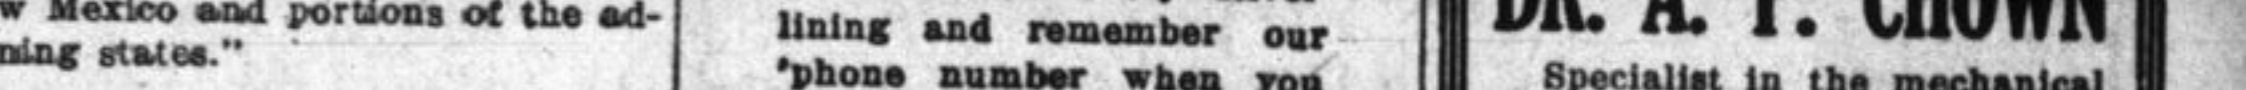

And, to prove his point, this writer sets forth that in May, when the steel industry was sagging to 50 per cent. capacity and the auto industry in general was "inspecting its life preservers, Ford sold 209,601 passenger cars and trucks. That, however, was peak production. Ford has been compelled by the pre-presidential election depression to take a rest in his belt during the last few months.

His many factories are still emitting the soothing hum that indicates prosperity, but, like other manufacturers, he has had to curtail output. The remarkable success of this man, Ford, has been a mystery to many—and yet he has but demonstrated in a big way, a principle that hundreds of others before him found profitable—the selection of a useful device that everybody needs and wants and then manufacturing it at a popular price.

C. W. Barron, Wall street financial expert, is credited with having said: "Ford can make more money than any one else in the world because he renders more service than any one else in the world. He has given the cheapest transportation known for seven million families. And he is now selling his cars at near cost and making money out of parts sales." The premise that money making is incidental to and the natural result of performing service is, however, unfortunately disproven by the experience of scores who have contributed more to the comforts of mankind than has Henry Ford, great though his service has been.—Hamilton Spectator.

Careful attention to one thing often proves superior to genius and art. The plant that is often transplanted does not prosper.
