MAXSON FURNAL JUDGE
The Charge of the Bobbed Brigade.

(By R. Montgomery.)

Bobbed hair to the right of us,
Bobbed hair to the left of us,
Bobbed hair behind us,
Tresses asundered,
Some with a heavy crop,
Some with a light crop,
Into the barber shop
Walked the bobbed hundred.

Women of high degree,
Women past fifty-three,
Determined that they shall be
One of the numbered.
Women of every class,
Mother, daughter, little lass,
Sweetheart, sister, join the mass
Of the bobbed hundred.

Some with bangs, some without,
Some are shingled round about,
Some in curls, and some in doubt,
In case they have blundered,
Some of them do look real swell,
Some of them do look like—well,
It's sometimes not just well to tell
How look the bobbed hundred!

No Need.
Payne: "My wife never asks me where I go."
Blaine: "You don't say so!"
Payne: "Yea, she's right there behind me to see for herself."
—J. Thomas Worthey.

Don't you tell me I can't pick a winner!
"exclaimed Rastus, as he deftly plucked the feathers from a white neighbor's prize rooster.

A Subject for Congress.
Teacher: "Give one argument proving Lincoln's birthday ought to be celebrated in the same manner as Washington's."
Johnny: "I think Lincoln's birthday ought to be celebrated even more than Washington's and I can prove it. We only hear of Washington chopping down one cherry tree, while Lincoln chopped down enough trees to build a log cabin."
—Anne J. Geck.

If English is the only tongue
With which you are familiar,
The language of a radio fan
Will sound a bit peculiar.

The man who invented the alibi
sure knew his stuff.

Thoughts On My Tailor.
He has my number.
He gives fits and misfits as well,
charging for both.
He can size me up, if he can't suit me with a suit.

He, at least, knows the measure of his man.
He should be successful in love for he has cut out the suit of many a man.

Some day both fame and fortune will be his when he has invented a trousers pocket that a man's wife cannot pick successfully.

When my tailor gives my suit extra touches or trimmings, I get trimmed in his bill.

May my tailor go to heaven when he dies unless, of course, he should wish to roast his goose.
—George W. Lyon.

Not a Collector.
Contributor to Editor of Fun Shop: "As you have doubtless observed, all my work bears the stamp of originality."

Editor: "Yes, but I have outgrown my stamp-collecting days."

Didn't Need Him.
A maiden lady of uncertain age, when asked why she had never married, replied:

"I have a dog that growls, a parrot that swears, and a cat that stays out nights, so that I really don't need a husband."
—E. R.

When the Foot's Asleep, the Corn Wakes Up.

50-50.
Mrs. Kelly: "Our milkman left for the mountains this morning."
Neighbor: "I wonder why he doesn't spend his vacation at the seashore."

Mrs. Kelly: "There's a reason. The sight of water troubles his guilty conscience."
—Mrs. Edwin Kuhn.

Ought To Work.
Friend: "So you married this man to reform him?"
Bride: "Yes."
Friend: "And, how do you expect to do it?"
Bride: "Oh, I shall feed him on angel-food cake."
—Harry J. Williams.

An Understanding.
The judge in the Domestic Relations

tions court was trying to reunite an erring truck driver and his wife. The woman had caused the arrest of her husband, charging that he often beat her.

"Don't you realize," began his honor, glancing sternly at the prisoner, "that a woman is a frail creature? If I place you on probation for six months, will you promise me you will handle your wife with gloves, in the future?"

"Sure, I'll promise, Judge," the prisoner replied.
"One minute, Your Honor," the wife interrupted. "Make it plain to him that you don't mean boxing gloves."

Too Much Liquidation.
"How did Billings lose all the fortune he inherited from his father?"
"He prompted a company that manufactured a patent machine for putting in permanent waves, and the stock was all watered."
—W. A. Page.

Vocabulary Exhausted.
Dick: "What did your father say about your staying out so late last night?"
Dolly: "There wasn't anything left to say when Mother got through."
—Mary Clark.

Dreamy Eyes.
I looked into her dreamy eyes
Like bright stars glowing;
In fact, she stole my heart away.
Ere I was knowing;
Her beauty and her dreamy eyes
Both had me going.

I leaned above her; I was wise,
Though a beginner;
"Dreaming of love," I whispered,
"dear?"
Thinking to win her;
She answered, "No, I'm wondering
What's here for dinner."

QUEEN'S SUMMER SCHOOL.
Students in Attendance From Various Parts of the Country.

A study of the registration figures at the 1924 Queen's Summer School which now total 462, shows how widely popular this institution is. In addition to one student, J. C. Pomeroy, from Tennessee, there are 8 from British Columbia, 11 from Alberta, 14 from Saskatchewan, 7 from Manitoba, one from Prince Edward Island, two from Nova Scotia, three from New Brunswick, 33 from Quebec, and 372 from Ontario.

The 33 students from Quebec held a supper in the British-American Hotel, Thursday night.

The canvass among the students for the Women's Residence is now well over the $100 mark.

GANANOQUE

(From Our Own Correspondent)
Aug. 11.—Mayor Wilson has a cable from the Weather Man stating that he can count on fine weather for Old Home Week. Decorating has begun and by Saturday the old town will present a gala appearance.

Conviction grows that it will be the biggest week Gananogue has ever known. Get your costumes ready for the parades and in every way possible lend aid towards making the week exceed even the most sanguine anticipations. It may be a long, long time before Gananogue has another Old Home Week, so let us make this one something to remember. The age limit for participants is two weeks to 99 years.

Mrs. George Scott and daughter, Janet, have returned after spending a pleasant holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnston, Brewers Mills.

Rev. Dr. Lennon and family, who have been occupying the Hagar cottage on Tremont Park for the past few weeks have left for Sherbrooke, Que.

Mr. W. T. Sampson has added a new car to his fleet. This one is a 1925—No. 21—6 cylinder sedan and a beauty.

Mrs. O. V. Keating and daughters, Edith and Doris, who are here from the west, are spending a few days with Mrs. James Kyles and other friends in Lansdowne.

In the championship golf matches on Wednesday the scores were as follows:

Edward Taylor, gross 80, net 66;
Dr. C. H. Bird, gross 83; net 68.
Edward Bird was next with a net of 67 and Paul Sampson next with a net of 68. As previously announced, Edward Taylor won the silver medal and tied with Dr. Bird for the bronze.

Dr. and Miss Dwyer, Perth, and Mrs. (Dr.) Sharpe, Brampton, were in town yesterday for the DuVal-Phillips wedding.

A native of Egin, Leeds county, in the person of Malcolm Halliday, passed away in a hospital at Los Angeles, Cal.

Harry Church, Tinian, is the owner of a cow that gave birth to three calves. All are living and doing well.

SUCCESSFUL PICNIC HELD AT GLEN ISLAND

Church of St. Mary Magdalene at Napanee Held an Outing.

Napanee, Aug. 1.—The annual Sunday school excursion and picnic of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene took place yesterday. The weather in the morning was cold and rainy, which prevented the crowd being so large as it otherwise would have been.

The steamer Brockville started at 9 a.m. with a fair complement of passengers, for Picton and Glen Island. Most of the excursionists remained at the Island, where the well-filled baskets proved a great attraction. It turned out to be a beautiful day and the excellent programme of sports was thoroughly enjoyed by participants and onlookers. All home by 6 p.m. and the youngsters particularly, although a bit tired, were happy and satisfied, and pronounced the outing a great success.

The Napanee Chautauqua opened here yesterday under the big tent and promises to be as popular as in previous years. After the introductory exercises a charming concert was given by the Dunbar male quartette and bell-ringers. The same artists gave another attraction performance in the evening. Their vocal solos, quartettes and readings were highly appreciated by the large audience. No small part of the enjoyment of the evening's programme was centred in the fine lecture delivered by the talented Dr. Fox, of California, his subject being the "Philosophy of Common Sense." "Six Cylinders Love" which is being staged on Saturday night, is being looked forward to with pleasant anticipation and is sure to fill the tent to overflowing. This great comedy is being presented by a cast of Metropolitan actors. It is a merry play of modern life.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Daly and family and their guest, Mrs. Richardson, of Boston, Mass., had a pleasant trip through the Thousand Islands on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dobb, and their little daughter are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith, East street.

OBITUARY

The Late W. J. Chapman.
A very much respected citizen passed from the activities of life on Thursday morning, in the person of Waddington J. Chapman, Garrett street. Deceased failed to rally from an operation performed in the General Hospital and his death comes with a shock to his numerous friends.

Mr. Chapman was a builder and contractor and had long held the confidence of many customers. He was careful, upright and reliable; he gave to his task the same honesty of purpose that marked his Christian life, a character of quiet unobtrusive faithfulness. He was born at Battersea, the son of the late William Chapman. At the age of twenty-one years he came to Kingston and entered upon his life's work. He married Jennie, daughter of the late William Tandy, Sr., and reared a home of happy, helpful righteousness. Connected with Queen street Methodist Church and Mr. Chapman and family gave true devoted service, in choir and in official duties. Mr. Chapman was a useful trustee and steward for many years serving faithfully and with real Christian gentleness. He was a Liberal, an ex-school trustee and an eminently successful citizen. He is survived by his widow, now frail in health; and five children, Charles G. Ingersoll; Mrs. W. C. Way, formerly of Ottawa, now in Kingston; Miss Willa Chapman, Akron, Ohio; Mrs. Clarence Emberley, Winnipeg; and Mrs. Roy Peaker, Ottawa. The condolences of many many friends will be extended to the bereaved, who will long have with them the splendid memory of a noble, zealous husband and father.

Charles Matthews, former deputy treasurer of Ontario will return to Toronto without a fight. He will not fight extradition.

James Terrill and his son Alfred Terrill were killed when their auto was struck by a train near Milton.

BABES IN THE WOODS WERE FOUND AT PERTH

After a Search in Which the Entire Town Took Part.

Perth, Ont., Aug. 1.—The two Petrakos girls, aged three and five years, who have been missing since Wednesday and for whom a country-wide search was instituted, were found late Thursday afternoon.

The children did not seem to have suffered any ill effect from their long stay in the open. They were fast asleep under an elm tree on Mrs. John Murphy's farm, Rideau Ferry road, and when awakened sleepily asked for their "daddy." They were driven back to Perth, where they were met by hundreds of townspeople.

All the big factories were closed to allow every available man, woman and boy to join in the search for the daughters of Peter Petrakos, confectioner.

Their father left them in the rig in which they had driven to the bush on Wednesday afternoon while he went to pick berries. On his return there was no trace of the two children.

At least 1,500 men joined in the search, and the bush for miles around Perth was combed in the effort to locate the children.

During the night and early Thursday morning automobile parties were formed and men motored to every part of the country for a distance of several miles. Members of the provincial police arrived and while the townspeople were searching they were working on the theory that the children might have been kidnapped.

A number of people searched the district around Rideau Ferry. There is a rather bad swamp near the spot where the children were, and fears were entertained that they might have got into it.

The weather turned much cooler during the night, so frantic efforts were made by the whole community to locate the children before they suffered too much from exposure and hunger.

BREACH OF CONVENTION.
If Changes or Improvements Are Made on Warships.

London, Aug. 1.—The British government has made representations to the governments of the United States and Japan that the alteration of the elevation of guns on capital war vessels or expenditures for the purpose of increasing the radius of action of these guns would be, in the opinion of the British government, a breach of the Washington convention.

This declaration was made in the House of Commons by Arthur Ponsonby, under-secretary for foreign affairs, in answer to a questioner who asked whether any representations on this point had been made to any of the signatories of the Washington convention.

LONDON TOWN.
L. B. Mallison, in London Observer,
You may sing the praise of the country roads and the breast of the rolling down,
Of the gold and scarlet of harvest fields, the poppies amid the corn,
But wind and rain have sung to me of the beauty of London Town,
And they whisper once more of Fleet street, the street where Dreams are born.

There's beauty enough in your village lanes and your little cobble quays,
In the tawny sails of the fishing boats and the ocean's changing blue,
And sweet is the voice of the off-shore wind, but sweeter far to me
Is the splendor of the river banks from Hammersmith up to Kew.

You may turn your scornful heads aside, but her torets have found her fair
From Shakespeare to Richard Whittington, who was called by the Bells of Bow,
For Hope has lighted a thousand fires and Courage goes proudly there;
And the London sparrows chant a son no nightingale may know.

I will stand at dusk on Blackfriars Bridge, I will see the sun go down,
And the graceful spires of Westminster etched clear on the twilight haze,
Till the moon comes stealing out of Heaven to kiss the feet of the town,
And the shining lamps are bright as stars to those that love her ways.

For Youth was conceived in a London street, and he is her lover still,
He has painted her smoky walls with dreams, he has paved her ways with song,
So turn you back to your bluebell woods, and the roads that climb the hill,
But I will get me to London Town, the place where I belong.
