Music Hath Charms.
(By Juanito.)

"Wife and me had just been married An' I says to her one day, Let's buy us one o' them phonographs To pass the time away. So we up an' bought the pesky thing An' played each whole day through Till we go so tired o' the whangin' noise We didn't know what to do!

Then my wife she wanted a piany One o' them tricky mechanical kinds That plays a piece by peddlin' An' then it up an' rewinds. Well—in about six months this contraption Couldn't be persuaded to go. So feelin' the need o' good music, We bought us a radio.

The radio worked most salubrious Through the fall an' winter an' spring But when the weather got hot, there we sot An' couldn't tune in on a thing. But now—we'll be sure of music galore An' the ranch will know nothin' but joy. No more canned music for this cowboy Since the doctor said: "It's a Boy!"

An Object Lesson.
It was Jimmy's first day in school and he appeared to be very much interested and was very attentive to everything the teacher said.

During the day the teacher asked Jimmy how many fingers he had. The little fellow stuck out his fingers and said to the teacher: "There you are. Count 'em."

A Woman's Way.
Winnie: "I don't believe it!"
Clarence: "But I have proved it to you, dear!"
Winnie: "Of course you have. But that doesn't change my mind."
—Betty Ullman.

If Popular Songs Were Illustrated.

After You Get What You Want You Don't Want It.
Something Wrong.
"Six years ago I was a bellhop here, and now I own this hotel."
"Just this one?"
—Paul S. Powers.

What Some Young Men Should Wear.
Flapper: "Henry ought to wear hose with clocks in them."
Ditto: "Why?"
Flapper: "So he will know what time to go home."
—Jerry Scott.

Done For.
Mrs. Henning: "You are always fooling with the radio. Isn't that a good battery you are throwing away?"
Mr. Henning: "Heavens no! It's been through a couple of conventions."
—Robert Reichenbaum.

Just As Bad.
Blake: "So your wife is suing you for non-support? Did she have to paw her diamonds to get the baby clothes?"
Drake: "No, she had to pawn the baby's clothes to buy diamonds."
—William M. Newman.

It's a long lane that has no hold-up.
Cario Blanche.
Walter: "Well, my little man, what are you going to have?"
Small boy (alone with menu): "You mean what ain't I goin' to have?"

BY SPECIAL REQUEST.
Editor: Compiling with the requests of a number of your readers, I am herewith rendering the translation of the famous love song as given by the disappointed Prince in the third act of "Tosca," the South Sea Island musical comedy.—Griff Crawford.

The Song.
(As rendered by the Prince.)
Little ovey oodle mine,
Itty bitty sing o' shine,
Ducky little o'ee-oo
Honey money wimple woo.

Ooie moosie woosie ee,
Um-a-doodle umpy ee,
Munchy buncy imble oo,
Thinky pinky winky woo.

(Translation.)
Bleeds this my heart,
Bowed down with woe,

I love your style,
Your near silk hose.
Oh! Fate that burns,
Oh, Hearts that throbb—
I'd wed you if—
You had a job.

Agreed.
Irate Officer (after an auto accident): "Such bonehead driving! Why that little shrimp isn't fit to be running at large!"
Lady on sidewalk: "Don't I know it! I've been living with him for fifteen years."
—Horace Liveright.

A Proposal.
She sat upon his lap, twined her arm about his neck, persuasively, kissed him sweetly on the cheek, and then—she popped the question.
What's this, you ask? A Leap Year proposal?
Goodness no! Sixteen-year-old daughter is merely coaxing her dad to let her drive the new auto.
—Martha Smith.

Sublime Faith.
"I wouldn't marry the best man living," asserted the girl with the bobbed hair.
"Of course you wouldn't," agreed the girl with the new engagement ring. "You couldn't."
"And why couldn't I?"
"Because I'm going to."
—Judith Wilson.

Absent Treatment.
"I am afraid that the Church means nothing whatever in your life, Mr. Wallace?"
"You misjudge me, Dr. Crane. There are few things I enjoy more than to lie in bed on a Sunday morning and listen to the church bells."
—Helen Russell.

Walking Chalk.
Husband: "Here's where I draw the line!"
Wife: "Yes, and here's where you walk it!"

SENDS HIS GREETINGS TO GEORGE FRALICK

J. E. Clark, Wellington, Says He Was Born One Month Earlier.

J. E. CLARKE
J. E. Clarke, of Wellington, Prince Edward county, writes to the Whig that he read with great pleasure a short sketch of Mr. George Fralick, which along with his picture appeared in the Whig a few weeks ago, and adds:

"I wish to congratulate my old and esteemed friend upon the hale and hearty boyish looks which he still retains for a man of eighty years. I have known the Fralick family of boys all my life. I am older than Mr. Fralick by a small margin; having been born on May 6th, 1844, while George was born in the same year, only one month later. I remember him as a young man who could not very well be laid on his back. I myself, was somewhat of a wrestler and did a lot of it, but never met Mr. Fralick to try titles. At the age of eighteen at an Orange walk in Picton, I met a Mr. Hopkins, a shoemaker, who worked for John Elliott near Blanchard's hotel. He was the champion hop-skip-and-jumper. No doubt Mr. Fralick knew him well at the time. He beat all comers; his jump being forty feet. Though then only a boy, I was asked to jump, and did so, covering the distance ten inches further than Mr. Hopkins. Today I feel just about as well as I did in those days; my nerves being steady and hand level. I have driven my car at a speed of 30, 35 and 50 mile clip. During those years I have been a busy man up to about six years ago when I retired from the activities of life and am now taking things easy.

I send my best personal regards to Mr. Fralick, and hope to have the pleasure of meeting him in the near future and talking over old times."

Five pistol shots were fired through the window of the Bank of Commerce at Hamilton from the inside. Bank officials state that it was an accident.

GANANOQUE PAYS A SPLENDID TRIBUTE

Mr. Linklater being one of its honorary members.
At the conclusion of Mr. Sine's address the whole assemblage sang the song composed, by Mr. Sine, "Linklater Day," to the tune of "There's a Long, Long Trail." Rev. Father Hanley spoke on behalf of the separate school board and then Mr. Linklater spoke to his "boys and girls." It was a hard task for him and though he had ever taught all his pupils that there was no such word as "CANT," he realized yesterday he said that he had found there was when he attempted to express his feelings in regard to Linklater Day.
The banquet at the Lyceum by the I.O.G.E. and Canadian Club was very largely attended as was also the concert in the Delaney Theatre. It was a big day for a big man.
The Canadian Club entertained the Hon. Charles McCrea at luncheon at the Gananoque Inn yesterday.

Kingston Rotarians.
To-day is "Children's Day" and will prove one of the very best features of the week. The evening's programme will draw many from Kingston and other places in this vicinity and will be well worth the trip. On Friday night the Rotary Club of Kingston will honor the town with their presence. R. J. Bushell, who was in town on Monday for the day, waxed eloquent on the whole day's proceedings, and was particularly enthusiastic about the parade in the evening. As there is to be a big dress parade on Friday night also, with a street dance, no doubt this feature will attract many Kingstonians and others from out-of-town. Citizens remember with pleasure the visit of the Kingston Rotarians on a similar occasion and how much their presence added to the evening's entertainment. Their visit is looked forward to with enjoyable anticipation.

Dr. F. J. O'Connor, Mrs. O'Connor and family were down from Kingston Monday night for the parade, and Dr. O'Connor replied to Mayor Wilson's address of welcome. Dr. O'Connor is one of Gananoque's former mayors, having filled that office at different periods and gone down in history as one of the best mayors that town has ever known. As he and Mayor Wilson are warm friends it seemed very fitting in every way that he should respond to the address of welcome on this occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Arch Heslop, Toronto, are in town for Old Home Week festivities. Arch is one of the Linklater pupils who came down to do honor to that day.

Misses Marion Keenan, Margaret Wilby, Kathleen Gorman and Lilian Kane, Brooklyn, N.Y., are among the latest arrivals at Tremont Lodge.

Misses Alice Gratton and Isabel Dugan have returned to Ottawa after spending the past two weeks here on the river.

Miss Zita Pilon, who has been the guest of Mrs. Dot Heffernan for the week-end returned to Kingston yesterday.

Dr. C. E. O'Connor, N. O'Connor, Misses K. and A. O'Connor and Miss Martin, were among the Kingstonians who motored down for Monday evening's parade.

Miss Lillian Bodard, Sobenectady, and her sister Mrs. H. O. Craven, New York City, are among the Linklater pupils here for the reunion.

Harry Donald, Oshawa, has returned to Oshawa after spending a two weeks holiday at "Tremont Lodge."

OBITUARY

The Late Elmar MacArthur.
There passed away in the Kingston General Hospital on Tuesday morning, Elmar MacArthur, of Wilton, in his forty-sixth year. The late Mr. MacArthur was a farm laborer of long experience and was widely known through the district. A little better than three weeks he complained of a small soreness on his thumb. It was treated but tetanus developed and after a valiant struggle he succumbed on Tuesday. He is survived by his widow, one son, and his father, who is in the United States. The funeral will be held on Thursday in charge of John Cornelius. Rev. A. L. Blacklock will officiate.

Death of a Little Girl.
The four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Harpell, 49 Main street, passed away on Sunday afternoon after a comparatively short illness. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon to Cataragui cemetery in charge of John Cornelius. Rev. Mr. Raney officiated.

The Late J. M. Nesbitt.
John Martin, seven-year-old son of David Nesbitt, died at the home of his father, 189 Collingwood street, on Sunday, August 3rd. The funeral, in charge of the James Reid firm, took place on Monday afternoon to Cataragui cemetery. Dean Starr conducted the last services.
