CORONER'S JURY FINDS DEATH ACCIDENTAL

were headed towards Kingston. She also told of having passed a car themselves further back on the road without any difficulty.

Dr. Keyes' Evidence.
Dr. S. J. Keyes said he was called to the General Hospital about 4.15 a.m. on Wednesday by Dr. Houston. He found Roland Hewgill there in a collapsed condition and semi-conscious. There was marked evidence of concussion and cranial trouble, a fracture dislocation of the right elbow and a bad dislocation of the left knee and also evidence of abdominal injuries. He called Dr. Etherington into consultation, and had Dr. Quigley X-ray the injured boy. They were unable to arouse him and he never fully recovered consciousness. His condition became steadily worse and at about 1.45 p.m. of the following day he died from a combination of shock and inter-cranial and inter-abdominal hemorrhage.

Miss Grace Lavole corroborated the evidence of Miss Olive Irwin, and added that Roland Hewgill was lying twenty to twenty-five feet in front of the stalled car after the accident and to the right side of the road. The car which came up behind after the accident, and a man said they had been going forty miles an hour. She was asked particularly about Kelly and said that to her belief he had been drinking.

W. A. Dechene.
W. A. Dechene testified that he had been with a party of two cars which left for Ivy Lea for a dance. In one were Bert Treadgold and John Howes and in the other William Treadgold and himself. In the same cars coming back were: Bert Treadgold, Mack Lemmon and John Howes, and in the second one William Treadgold, Don Kelly and himself. Bert Treadgold passed him between Gananoque and Kingston, and about five miles east of the city on the highway the Treadgold car passed a stalled car on the road. He noticed that Treadgold stopped about 150 feet beyond the stalled car, and when he himself passed it he discovered a man lying on the road in front of it with another man bending over him. He stopped his car and ran back to see what had happened.

He stated that both his car and Mr. Treadgold's were going between 20 and 25 miles an hour. He turned his car over to Mr. Lavole to bring Roland Hewgill to the hospital.

Being questioned, witness admitted having a bottle of beer before leaving Kingston. Four of them drank from it. He did not see any of the others take a drink after. He saw the stalled car before he came to it. He could not say whether or not there were lights on the stalled car. He and Treadgold had not been racing. Asked how much space there was to pass he could not say, but "I passed."

Saw Stalled Car.
Mack Lemmon testified that he came home in Treadgold's car and they came across a stalled car this side of Eastview Hill. They did not see it until the lights of their car picked it up. He could not say if the tail light was lit. As they passed, he saw a man dancing out from in front of the stalled car as if pleased over something. He jumped in the air, and Treadgold's car hit him. The stalled car was well over to the right centre of the road. He could not say how many feet were available for passing at the left. He admitted that there might be about twelve feet. Their car was going twenty to twenty-five miles an hour. The speedometer was out of order. He had not been drinking. They were about three feet from Roland Hewgill when they first saw him. Treadgold was going at the same rate of speed as he passed, as he had no time to slow down. He swore positively that there had been no drinking.

Struck Very Close to Car.
Vincent Lavole testified that when Roland Hewgill came round from in front of the stalled car he was near enough to it to touch it with his hand and at least within two and a half feet of the fender when struck. The unfortunate boy had jumped to avoid the oncoming car he claimed, and not through excitement. He judged that Treadgold's car passed within two feet of his own. It was his opinion that a car going under the speed limit could stop faster than within 150 feet. The car must have been going fast to throw Roland Hewgill twenty-five feet. He swore he positively smelled liquor on Lemmon's breath. Was not close enough to the others to find out. Mr. Dechene had said that he was trailing Treadgold's car "and not standing still by any means." The witness asked Mr. Dechene to repeat this statement in the court and the latter did so. Mr. Lavole gave it as his estimate that Treadgold's car was going about thirty-five miles an hour.

Came On Car Suddenly.
Albert Treadgold said he came on the stalled car suddenly and turned out to avoid it. He saw a man's leg and arm in front of him and had no time to stop. The stalled car had no lights. Mr. Howes and himself had "spilt" a bottle of beer before going to Ivy Lea. No other drinking had taken place. Witness said he had been in two or three accidents and was a careful driver as a result. He testified that the stalled car was not on the edge of the road as he was able to shine his lights on the right hand side of the engine for Mr. Lemmon to work on it. It was necessary to use Mr. Dechene's car lights while examining Roland Hewgill.

Donald Kelly testified that he was in Dechene's car and did not see the accident. He noticed after the accident that the lights on Lavole's car were not lit and would only light when the motor was going well. He swore positively that he does not drink. Kelly also corroborated other evidence of Dechene, Treadgold and Lemmon.

Deceased's Brother Testifies.
Frank Hewgill, brother of the deceased, appeared as a voluntary witness. He said he was summoned to the hospital but could not see his brother as he was in the operating room. He came outside to wait and was there talking to Lemmon and Dechene both together and separately and that both had been drinking. He could not say for Bert Treadgold as Treadgold was eating something. From the conversation he heard, he gathered that Treadgold's lights were poor.

William Treadgold corroborated the evidence of those in the two moving cars and testified that there had been no drinking.

Traffic Constable Percy Dowsley was called and questioned about the law. He stated that one car passing another is required to slow down and make sure of the clearance before passing. It was his opinion that the highway at the point of the accident was about twenty-eight feet in width.

Coroner Gardiner, after a short summary, gave the case to the jury and cleared the court. This was some time after midnight, and about 12.30 the verdict quoted above was brought in.

LETTERS To The Editor

U. E. L. Book of Remembrance.
Belleville, Aug. 28.—(To the Editor): Arrangements are being made to publish a "Book of Remembrance" of the celebration of the 140th anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada by the United Empire Loyalists held at Belleville last June and an effort is being made to include with the book as extensive a list as possible of the names and addresses of descendants of the original United Empire Loyalists who are now living.

You will assist in this effort by sending to me the following information:

1. Names of all persons now living who claim to be descended from original United Empire Loyalists.
2. Their addresses.
3. Name of original United Empire Loyalist ancestor if you have it.
4. Any further information concerning Loyalist ancestor or family which you may have.

By the order-in-council passed November 9th, 1789, the first and only attempt was made to create an hereditary title in Canada. By this order-in-council a "Mark of Honour" was conferred on the original United Empire Loyalists "and their posterity." It will, therefore, be a matter of importance in the years to come to have as complete a knowledge as possible of the United Empire Loyalists.

W. C. Mikel,
Mayor of Belleville, Belleville, Ont.

LATE ROLAND HEWGILL.

His Death is Mourned By Y.M.C.A. Comrades.

The funeral of the late Roland Hewgill will be held on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock from his parents' residence, 353 King street east, to Cataract cemetery. The service will be conducted by Dean Starr, of St. George's cathedral, of which the deceased was a member.

There is general regret among the members of the Y.M.C.A. over "Roy's" untimely death. He had been a member of the institution for many years and was a strong player on the "Y's" Five-Nine Club's basketball team, on which he played centre forward.

Crop Improvement.

There has been continued improvement in western grain crop during the past week. Cool weather and further rains have delayed ripening over large areas, and have been beneficial for filling out the heads. Present weather conditions are ideal. Wheat cutting is general in Manitoba and has begun in some parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta. In Quebec crop conditions on the whole are satisfactory, but dry weather needed in Ontario harvesting is progressing rapidly. Good yields are general, but apples, plums and peaches are below average. In New Brunswick crops need more rain. In Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island conditions are satisfactory. In British Columbia cooler weather and showers have been beneficial.
