VERSES AND REVERSES.
 A cat-fish is a fish, I know;
 A cat-bird is a bird;
 A cat-tail is a fuzzy plant;
 A dog isn't it absurd?
 A dog-star is a planet bright;
 A dog-wood is a tree;
 But doggone all these cats and dogs,
 They don't seem right to me.
 —C. S. C.

I cannot sleep at night of thinking
 Of my girl, my love, my rose;
 Overhead the stars are winking—
 Wkh, or at me, Heaven knows!
 —S. H.

A politician, when he eats,
 Prefers a single course;
 A beaker of banana oil
 And lots of APPLE-SAUCE!
 —G. S. C.

The highest hill can go so far—
 It cannot reach a single star,
 And yet a hill does not complain
 Because it climbed itself in vain.
 —S. H.

Little drops of water,
 Little drops of rye,
 Used to make a high-ball,
 In the days gone by.
 —G. S. C.

Ask His Wife.
 "No man is perfect," remarked
 the Professor.
 "Well, at least no married man
 is!" chuckled the Cynic.
 —Arthur Davidson

She Lost Out.
 It was drawing near the end of the season, and the annual contest for bathing beauties was under way.
 The mayor, looking for men who were qualified to act as judges, asked a handsome, young bachelor if he would serve.

"Not on your life!" the bachelor exclaimed. "I was one of the judges in last year's contest, and my best girl tried for a prize. She hasn't spoken to me since."
 —M. J. Darnaby

The Boomerang.
 She: "I married you because I thought you had money!"
 He: "I married you just simply to show people that I could!"
 —M. J. Darnaby

Balance.
 Jack: "Yes, I had a little balance in the bank, but I got engaged two months ago, and now—" Maud: "Ah, love make the world
 go round?"
 Jack: "Yes. But I didn't think it would go round so fast as to make me lose my balance."
 —G. Marahman

The Guarantee.
 "I believe," said the customer to the merchant, "that you said that anything I got from your store that wasn't satisfactory could be returned."
 "Yes, indeed," agreed the merchant.

"Very well," continued the customer,
 "the bill you sent me last month is coming back to you by the afternoon mail."
 —E. M. Curtis

Just Like a Woman.
 She had been convicted and condemned to die by hanging. Many believed in her innocence, but when the fateful day came no pardon had arrived. There was no hope, and the hours flew by until the fatal time came. She was led to the gallows and the noose was adjusted about her graceful neck. She was calm and composed.

"Is there anything you wish to say before the trap is sprung?" asked the executioner. There were tears in his eyes—he too believed her guiltless of the crime.
 "Yes," she murmured.
 —Leo Peck

The Jingle-Jangle Counter.
 I think I shall never see
 A poker hotter than a bee.
 —Walter R. Adams

Circumstances alter cases;
 Rouge and powder alter faces.
 —Ralph Warren

"This parting is awful," sighed the romantic lass
 Who combed her hair without the aid of a glass.
 —E. N. Detroyer

Roomers and Promises.
 Landlady: "I am sick and tired of coming to you for the rent. This is the last time I expect to ask for it."
 Student: "Good. Is that a promise?"
 —Badsall Gardner

A barking dog never bites, but look out for the hot dog with too much mustard.
 —Hard To Refuse.

Flubb: "He's the most convincing talker I ever met." Dubb: "What happened—has he been trying to borrow money from you, too?"
 —Law Brown

It Certainly Was.
 Mother had been reading modern methods of child training, and wished to impress Bobbie, age

three, with the desirability of early retiring.
 "When mother was a little girl," she said, "grandmother didn't let her stay up till eight o'clock until she was eight years old."
 "Now wasn't that a dirty shame!"
 said Bobbie.
 —Dorothy Boiler

Darling, you are growing old;
 Silver threads among the gold.
 In your boy-cut I behold.

Lay on MacDuff And—
 "Mike, there's a new writer from the old sod that's makin' a name
 fer himself, dye mind," said Denny, lighting his pipe.
 "How's that, Denny?"
 "Begob, me bye, Jawn, is takin'
 pairt in a play over at the school an' he's spoutin' the words all over the place. I dunno the name of the two sisted devil that wrote it,
 but he might of been from Con-
 marra, fer the bye kapes shoutin':
 'Lay on, Misher Duffy, an' dom the man that stops furrat.'"

GRAND HAS BEEN ALL SWEEP AND GARNISHED

Manager Branigan's House Is Put in Order for Another Splendid Season.

The first act of the year has been played at the Grand Opera House
 during the past few weeks behind closed and locked doors. It was a full dress affair and plenty of make-up was consumed in the presentation.
 The actors were painters and decorators and the play was the preparation of the big show house for the coming season when some splendid attractions will be presented for the first time in this city and country to the Grand's crowd of patrons.
 All the woodwork throughout the place has been freshly cleaned and painted. The lobby and the portico and even the big electric sign have all received their share of attention.
 In the aisles of the main floor and the balcony cork carpets are being laid and the decorative water coloring of the walls and boxes have been cleaned and retouched. Curtains, velours and upholstery of all sorts have been taken out and thoroughly cleaned and next Thursday will come the Grand opening with "The First Year."

Back in the dressing rooms extensive improvements have also been made. Running water has been provided in each little dressing room and other appointments made much more acceptable for the travelling entertainers.

As already announced a big competition is under way for the five pairs of seats offered by the Whig
 for this play to the five Kingston couples, nearest to a year married, who first present themselves at the Whig office on Tuesday morning next. One couple tried for the special box seats for not having quarrelled during the year but as they entered the lottery's office to procure an affidavit one of those little arguments arose and they had not the nerve to face that gentleman.
 Who will win the box seats?
