On the road home on the train he fell asleep and members of the Circle-Six team, after eating his chocolates, filled the box with clinders at the first stop and tied it up neatly again. When the victim of the joke presented his gift it is said there was momentary amazement, which ended in laughter and dire threats against the Circle-Six players.

THE LABORING MAN.

How Christ Treated Him and Made Labor Noble.

In Princess street Methodist church Sunday evening, the pastor, Rev. J. K. Curtis, preached a sermon on "Jesus and the Laboring Man," a sermon with many applications to labor conditions. He pointed out that the laboring man was perhaps the greatest beneficiary from the life and teaching of Jesus Christ.

Jesus' method of effecting great changes was unique. He did not write an essay on "The Nobility of Labor." He went into the shop and toiled, and forever, labor in all its manifold forms is noble. The sincere laboring man is greater in God's sight than the greedy, selfish employer, and the self-seeking labor man shames the Partner of his toil.

Mr. Curtis pointed out that it is the failure of overseers in industry to perceive the resentment of laboring men when manifestly treated as inferiors, that often occasions troubles in industrial organizations.

What Jesus has done for the laboring man's home was instanced and a strong appeal to the large audience to keep the homes of Ontario free from the curse of strong drink. Never were the homes of the laboring class in Ontario so happy and comfortable as today. They should help the weaker ones to resist this insidious foe. Quebec's four million dollars revenue this year chiefly came out of the homes of the working people. It was an appalling way to conserve the best interests of the toiling masses, the preacher claimed.
