On Friday evening at the conclusion of the Historical Pageant, B. S. M. Fair presented Miss Mollie Cartwright with a beautiful bouquet on behalf of the cadets of the Royal Military College whom she has greatly assisted in putting on the "Landing of Frontenac." Miss Cartwright, as convener of the costume committee, is responsible for the correctness of detail in the costumes, which has been so highly commended by those who make a study of the uniforms and costumes of the various periods. Miss Cartwright, who was in costume, came forward from the wings and expressed her thanks to the cadets for their charming gift.

Miss Gladys V. Pennell, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. M. J. Pennell, 192 Ordinance street, for the past month, left on Thursday to resume her duties at Mount Sinai Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio, after spending a pleasant vacation and seeing many of her old friends and acquaintances. While here she attended the graduation exercises, and the Alumni banquet at the St. Lawrence hospital, Ogdensburg, N. Y. (of which she is a graduate) being the guest of Mrs. Sam. Golden, 721 Rensselaer avenue. Miss Pennell was formerly of Picton.

Mrs. Holloway Waddell as "Britannia" and Mrs. Francis Macnee as "Canada" are two splendid figures in the historical pageant. Both their costumes are perfect and they wear them with dignity and grace. The provinces, in flowing white robes and their beautifully painted shields with the arms of the province they represent, are a heavy of fine looking women of whom Kingston may be proud.

Mr. Dan Drummond and Mr. William Hill, Smith's Falls, spent Thursday and Friday in Kingston, attending the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Blakesly, Sydenham, were exhibition visitors this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Clarke, Division street.

Why This Human Waste. When will commissions of enquiry, and committees on this and that and the other, cease wasting their own time and other people's money in discussing generalities, while all the while concrete tragedies are allowed to multiply? Take one little instance, just one little instance. We need not mention the place, we need not indicate the Province in which this particular tragedy occurred—most of the Province, unfortunately, could tell similar tales. Some years ago a few people who believe in the fence at the top, rather than at the bottom of the precipice, discovered a little girl in their community whom they felt was defective, and whom they feared was diseased. They gained the consent of the child's mother to have her examined, and finding their fears only too true, they tried to have her placed somewhere where she would be safe, the mother consenting to this also. In spite of all, however, authorities all along the line, from low to high, refused to do anything. To-day that child, not yet fourteen, is in a reformatory, a boy not many years her senior has been "sent down" for three years, and when after a time, a new little life comes into the world, it will carry with it the stigma of disgrace, a feeble constitution and the germs of disease. We leave our readers, most of whom belong to missionary societies, to think whether, while not leaving undone anything that they may do to help the people who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death in so-called heathen lands, they ought not to bestir themselves as well about the "clouds and thick darkness" that envelope many communities nearer home.—The Canadian Farmer, Woman's Section.

WORK OF THE WOMEN AT KINGSTON FAIR

Demonstration by Frontenac Institute on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The demonstration put on in the Frontenac Women's Institute section at the Kingston Fair has proved of interest. Unfortunately the labor saving devices possible in a farm kitchen and used in the demonstration, are not as many as the Junior Institute of Frontenac, which is responsible for that part of the programme, had hoped to have. A kitchenette, and a refrigerator are here and though on Wednesday Miss Ursula Sproule, the president of the Juniors and Miss Mabel Berry showed various ways of making sandwiches. On Thursday Mrs. A. W. Sirett kept a small crowd around the space all afternoon showing how many delicious things can be made with eggs and cheese. On Friday Miss Alethea Gates and Miss Margaret Green made salads.

Only four Institutes have exhibited in the space next to the one occupied by the Juniors—Sydenham, Westbrook, Battersay and Harrowsmith. But the collections of work, canned fruits and vegetables, cakes, bread, etc., are good. Sydenham has sent all five classes, which means twelve of each, except the quilt, of which only one is required. The booth is decorated with golden rod, wheat and flowers.

The very large and excellent exhibit of women's work has always a crowd before it, and no wonder, for it is by far the best ever seen in Kingston. The flannel, the French and eyelid embroidery, the beautiful cushions and the counterpane of factory cotton embroidered are real work of art. The first prize in the latter class is embroidered and has a band of mauve linen, the third prize was nearly as well done, but was unfortunately, a bit soiled, which did away with its chance of getting a red ticket. The daintiest linen adornments for a dressing table are among this collection of work and some well made and useful mats both braided and hooked, are much admired. A basket of sweet peas, so real that one wanted to smell them, had a first ticket on it and some daffodils ran the sweet peas close.

There are a good many pictures and some of them quite good, the children's water colors and crayon sketches being admired. The china painting exhibit has many admirers also.

That Miss Kate Asseltine is one of the most charming figures of the three U.E.L. scenes in the Historical Pageant. She wears a plaid silk skirt and a beautiful Paisley shawl worn by some of her family a century ago. Her bonnet is a relic of the days when woman's head gear was really becoming and her square parasol, also from the family relic chest, and is as quaint as it is attractive.

That the flowers exhibited at the fair are very fine; both in the main building and in the school tent there are splendid asters, gladioli and dahlias. A big bunch of the latter blooms, which adorns the long centre table in the school tent, was sent in from a little school north of Sharbot Lake and arrived safely to be enjoyed by thousands.

That the first time the British flag floated over the land then known as New France, was when it was run up by General Bradstreet over Fort Frontenac in August, 1758. A year later in 1759, Wolfe captured Quebec.

That Miss Nevada Best as Kingston in the Historical Pageant can be heard distinctly in her speech of welcome. She is one of Kingston's many pretty girls and is excellent in her part.

That it is unfortunate that the Fair Grounds are not in more shipshape condition. They could be made much more attractive to the visitors with a little care and trouble.

That the relics of old days gathered together in the shop windows of some of the Kingston merchants have been a feature of the pageant week. Little groups are seen opposite the windows and many comments, showing the interest aroused by the story told by these collections from the homes of the neighborhood, are heard.

That once more Mr. Bushell has had wonderful weather for his fair; scarcely a cloud in the sky and air as warm as summer. The calm water made the landing of Count Frontenac possible on Tuesday and Friday, and the women and children who took part in the pageant were able to wear light frocks without taking a chill. After the cold wet weather of the previous week, the sunshine put everyone in good humor. The roads are ideal for the motorists, and thousands of cars were seen at the grounds daily.

That it is most unfortunate that the seating capacity of the grand stand at the fair is not larger. Hundreds are anxious to see the historical pageant, who have not been able to secure seats. The grand stand is filled long before seven o'clock and the extra seats which have been put in are occupied long before the performance begins. The actors who have been already most generous in giving their time, many of them being busy men and women, have con-

The Housekeeper's Philosophy. "I've got the blues to-day," said a little Bride Friend of mine, sinking into the new davenport in her pretty living room.

"Why?" I inquired, selecting one of those deep over-stuffed tapestry chairs which undermine the will power as regards ever rising again. "Oh, things have gone wrong since early morning," explained my friend, "First I made a mistake in ordering meat from my butcher, then I accidentally broke the handle of my sugar bowl."

I thereupon proceeded to quote from an elderly housekeeper whom I once had the good fortune to meet: "The most helpful thing in a housekeeper's career," declared this woman who had run a home for 60 years, "is a philosophy which includes the possibility of failure in our enterprise. You see, we housekeepers should not always expect perfection of ourselves. People in other lines of work have to adjust themselves to some untoward circumstances, so why shouldn't we? To illustrate my point," she continued, "let us take the case of the stationer on the corner: he may, per-

That very sincere thanks are due to Rev. Dr. R. H. Bell and Rev. J. S. LaFleur, who so kindly acted as "The Historians" for the pageant. They have both excellent voices for the office and are distinctly heard by the audience.

That many people visit the corner in the main building where the splendid needlework of the women of Frontenac is to be seen.

WOMAN'S INSTITUTE.

St. Andrew's W.M.S. On Wednesday, Sept. 17th, the opening fall meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held in St. Andrew's Hall, with the president, Mrs. J. A. MacLean, in the chair. The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Torrence, after which reports were heard from the different secretaries. As Miss Mowat was unable to attend, through illness, Mrs. Duff gave the report of the Presbyterial, held at Trenton in May. Mrs. John Wright, the president of the Provincial W.C.T.U., gave a most inspiring and comprehensive address on temperance, which was greatly appreciated.

Parham. As fall fairs seem to be very much in vogue at the present time, it seems fitting for Parham Institute to relate their success along these lines.

At the June meeting our delegate to the convention of Fair Associations at Toronto, Mrs. Thomas Howes brought back many points of interest to which all members readily responded. As a result, the Woman's Institute offered to put over the sports on the first day of our local fair. The committee composed of Mrs. D. A. Goodfellow, Miss Agnes McDonnell, Miss Bernice Howes, Miss Carrie Barr, Mrs. Bert Cornwell, and Mrs. J. E. Howes, met at the home of Mrs. J. E. Howes and drew up a programme for that day.

Included in these parades for the children, original turnouts, and all kinds of races and jumping. The Institute staged a very successful and unique event when they paraded representing costumes from 1825-1925. By special request this was repeated again the second day. A ladies' baseball team was organized and played an interesting game between Tichborne ladies in which Tichborne won by a close margin of one.

During the evening the members served hot dogs and coffee at the big community dance held annually on fair night. Needless to say the cool weather induced many to purchase, thereby making a very successful evening as a finale for the good work done by the Institute. Although this is only a start, our energetic little organization is already planning on bigger and better things during the ensuing year.

WEDDINGS.

Climo-Bruce. On Saturday morning at eleven o'clock a happy event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bruce, Albert street, when their eldest daughter, Evelyn Elizabeth, and Mr. Cecil Climo, B.Sc., second son of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Climo, Cobourg, were united in marriage by Rev. J. W. Stephen, of St. Andrew's church. The bride, unattended, entered the drawing room on her father's arm to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, looking lovely in her wedding gown of gray taffeta crepe with ostrich feather trimming and French hat to match. She carried an armful of sweetheart roses and wore the groom's gift, a twin diamond ring. The ceremony took place in the drawing room, one corner of which was banked with ferns and flowers and the couple stood under a large white floral bell.

Mrs. Robert Bruce, mother of the bride, wore a handsome gown of black bulgarana satin trimmed with black marabou and steel and rhinestone ornaments.

Mrs. H. P. Climo, mother of the groom, wore a French frock of beaded canton crepe. After the ceremony the guests partook of dainty refreshments, the bride's table having for its centre the wedding cake surrounded by tulle and crystal vases of lilacs-of-the-valley. Only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Climo, Mr. and Mrs. V. Climo and Messrs. Sidney and Percy Climo, Cobourg. Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Climo left on the fast train for the west. They will reside at Niagara Falls, Ont.
