NEW CANDIDATES FOR CITY COUNCIL

Report That "New Blood" Will Be Offered For Civic Honors.

Although the municipal elections will not take place for four months, there is already a good deal of talk and discussion going the rounds about the council, and there is a persistent rumor that there will be "new blood" offered for civic honors, and that the candidates will be well-known business men. No names have been mentioned, but from the gossip it looks as if there will be a great deal of activity when the time comes for the election of a council.

"The Man They Could Not Hang" Feature To-day And Wednesday.

"The day of miracles has not passed" said people when the gallows three times failed to hang John Lee, convicted on circumstantial evidence of the murder of Miss Keyes at Abbotsford, near Torquay, England. When the second attempt had been made two bags of sand of the same weight as the prisoner were placed on the drop, when it worked successfully. Yet it failed to drop when Lee was placed on it immediately afterwards. The strange incident resulted in the commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment and Lee served twenty-three years at hard labor. Some time after his release a woman on her death-bed confessed to the murder. Lee is still living, happily married to the girl who waited twenty-three years for him.

There was a good crowd at the Grand Opera House Monday night when the picture of this notable event in England's history of crimes was shown. It should be mentioned that this is the first Australian picture shown in Canada. Lee's story of the crime, now on sale in Kingston bookstores, has been faithfully followed. Though it surrounds a murder and a hanging, there is nothing gruesome or repulsive in the picture, but there are a touching narrative of parents' devotion, a pretty love story of a boyhood sweetheart whose faith in Lee never wavered, touches of humor here and there, all set in the midst of beautiful land and ocean scenery.

The picture is much aided by Miss Doreen Thompson, who sings vocal items in connection with the picture, and by Leonard-Howe, who describes the incidents on the screen. Other items contributing to a good evening's entertainment include full orchestral accompaniment, two other reels and singing and dancing numbers.

"The Man They Could Not Hang" is to be repeated on Tuesday and Wednesday with daily matinees.

Heather For Scotchmen.
Postmaster James Stewart has received a box filled with heather from Mrs. Dall, wife of the late Prof. John Dall, of Queen's University, for distribution among the members of St. Andrew's society. For several years Mrs. Dall has been sending heather from Scotland for members of St. Andrew's Society, and her kindness is very much appreciated.

Mr. Stewart, who is honorary secretary of the society, also had a fine piece of heather presented to him by Capt. Fred Reid, who recently returned from a trip overseas.

Special Mission Services.
Special missionary services were held in the Pentecostal church, Queen street, on Sunday. Rev. and Mrs. P. J. Andreasen, returned missionaries from India, spoke at all the services. On Sunday night, Rev. Mr. Andreasen gave a very interesting account of his experiences regarding missionary work in India, especially during the time of the non-cooperation movement of which Mr. Gandhi was then the leader. Rev. Mr. Andreasen will give another address to-night, which will be preceded by an immersion service.

LETTERS To The Editor

Chairman Leslie's Thanks.
Kingston, Sept. 22.—(To the Editor): I trust that you will not consider that I am imposing upon you, by requesting that the following letter be published, thereby enabling myself and the members of the Kingston pageant committee to convey in as public a manner as possible our sincere thanks to those gentlemen who, by lending their names as patrons to the Kingston pageant, immediately placed upon it the necessary "cachet." The committee also tenders its very best thanks to those ladies and gentlemen who so willingly and cheerfully gave of their time, talents and energy to the public, for the sole purpose of portraying for the benefit and instruction of us all the pageant which the public quite justly crowned with success.

The historical scenes were so realistic and correctly carried out that it would be impossible to differentiate between them, as regards quality. Britannia, Canada, Kingston and the provinces formed a handsome group, that well exemplify our magnificent empire, our beautiful country and our charming and alluring city. The Spirit of the Wilderness was so light that she seemed to be treading on air, and the young dancers who surrounded her were good to look at and did themselves credit. The Kingston Sea Cadet Corps did itself proud, and had the signal honor of being called upon by Canada to furnish her with train bearers, thus sharing that honor with her regularly appointed pages.

The troops looked most business-like, and at once fanned into flame those sparks of enthusiasm and patriotism which are to be found in all "stout hearts."

To the Kingston press we tender our very best thanks for its generous support and for having emphasized the fact, also too often forgotten, that the past is full of valuable lessons for the future. To the young ladies in training at the Kingston General hospital, we offer our best thanks to the accompaniment of a low bow. To Miss Mollie Cartwright and Miss A. M. Goring, we doff our hats and say, you are "indefatigable and most capable." To the gentlemen cadets, who so well carried out the "water scene" of the Frontenac episode, we cannot pay you a better compliment than by saying, the Royal Military College always does things, "as" le gerner cri de la perfection. The Indians and their chiefs looked like the "real thing," and many a maiden sighed, I fancy, for the warmth of the wigwam, to those gentlemen of the wilds we say "How-How," but from their pretty squaws we crave a "pow wow." Mrs. Simcoe was enticing, garbed as she was, in the correct fashion of her period. To the brass pipers and the pretty lassies we touch our tam-o-shanters.

To the manager and directors of the Kingston Industrial Exhibition, who made it possible to produce the pageant, we would say: "Gentlemen, continue in your public spirited endeavors and keep the fire of enthusiasm burning. If you do, it may spread." To Messrs. Miles and Seabold we are justly indebted for their unflagging interest and endless training our performers. Our thanks are also due to the "pessimist" for having once again proved himself wrong in his various forecasts.

Yours very sincerely,
—J. N. S. LESLIE,
Chairman Kingston Pageant Committee.
