WHY THE WEATHER?

DR. CHARLES F. BROOKS Secretary, American Meteorological Society, Tulsa, Ok.

Mountain Cloud Prognostics. A number of proverbs advise us that when a mountain wears a cloud cap, or a table mountain is decked with a white cloud tablecloth, it is an indication of coming rain. The mountains are wind elevators. The air over mountains both in quiet weather and in windy is cooled to temperatures lower than those elsewhere at corresponding levels, and so clouds are very apt to appear first over or on the mountains; the height, form, density and movements of such clouds tell much as to the trend of the weather. In fair weather, clouds tend to form first over mountains where the surface of heating is nearest a level at which condensation will take place. In windy weather the air must rise and cool in passing, thus giving additional impetus to cloud formation. If the air is becoming damper, the mountains may suddenly become enveloped in clouds. Then condensation will occur more readily till the clouds are only 1,000 to 2,000 feet above the lowlands and envelope the middle slopes and ridges. Showers tend to develop over mountains and drift a short distance before dissipating; therefore, places in the lee of mountains receive more rain than other nearby localities.

AGED RESIDENT OF CAMDEN.

Has Just Celebrated Her Ninety-Second Birthday.

Napanea Beaver. Mrs. Maria York, relict of the late F. H. York, celebrated her ninety-second birthday, at the home of her son, Manson York, Camden.

She was born August 26th, 1833, and in 1850 was united in marriage to Frederick Walter York, Camden. To this union were born six children, four of whom survive, viz., Manson York, on the homestead; F. A. York, of Markdale; Mrs. Joseph Teskey, Wellington, and Mrs. Nelson Albertson, Kingston. One son, Wellington, died Feb. 26th, 1899, and one daughter, Mrs. Harvey Bradshaw, died Jan. 9th, 1919. There are living nineteen grandchildren, forty-two great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

Mrs. York is of a very cheerful disposition and always has a pleasant word of greeting for all who call on her. Her hearing and eyesight are good. Not only is she able to do her own mending, but she also assists with the family mending. Her bible and hymn book are her daily reading and as she possesses a remarkably sweet voice, though weak, one enjoys hearing her sing the familiar old hymns. She also enjoys reading the newspapers and keeps up with the current events of the day.

Her intellect is keen and her memory clear, and it is a pleasure to converse with her and hear tales of those early days when the settlers cleared the ground for their homes, before the blazing of trees was the only mode, and automobiles were not dreamed of. Now it is a fine, improved road for autos. She remembers when the first houses were built in what is now the prosperous Town of Napanea.

Owing to rheumatism, she has to go around with the aide of a cane, but she is able to wash dishes, care for her own room, make her bed, does her own ironing, and assists with other household duties.

A few days prior to her ninety-second birthday she was taken for an auto drive and made a few calls around the neighborhood and home town, covering a distance of several miles.

She is young at heart and it keeps the countenance fresh and youthful. As her own mother lived to be a hundred and one year's old, we trust that "Grandma York" will yet celebrate her one hundredth anniversary.
