MAXSON REEVAL JUDGE

THE TWIG.

By T. M. Thomas.
He stopped to admire her baby
While passing through her train.
He was old, with years of wisdom,
And could not quite refrain.
From giving the fair young mother
A bit of good advice,
So, patting the head of the baby
He spoke in tones concise.

"You have there a right fine youngster?"
I hope that you," said he,
"Will bring him up an honest,
And upright man to be."
She smiled as she made him answer:
"That will be hard, I fear."
"Oh, no," he said, "if you follow
The old time saying, my dear.

You'll find it an easy matter.
Just to keep this thought in mind,
That as the little twig is bent,
So is the tree inclined."
Again she smiled at the wise man,
As she tossed back a vagrant curl,
"But the trouble is, this twig," she said,
"Is bent on being a girl!"

Divided Work.

"My wife and I have a joint bank account."
"That's a good idea. Saves a lot of trouble, doesn't it?"
"Oh yes. All I have to do to put the money in. She draws it out."

You Said It!

Bill: "What do you think of this bootleg stuff?"
Hill: "Well, it's a good way to turn nights into days."
—William Santford.

No Gifts to Exchange.

Ethel: "Was Gladys' wedding a successful affair, dear?"
Clara: "Goodness, yes! I never saw so many presents, and not a duplicate among them."
—Gertrude M. Heller.

Hints For Flappers.

Corsets will last a long time if not worn out!

Speed.

"Has she got speed?"
He grumbled low,
"My last typist
Worked too darn slow."

The new girl came.

His heart was glad;
He took her out
And found she had.
—E. D. K.

Time Will Tell.

Mrs. Youngbride was radiant with happiness. She just couldn't keep her mind on the bride game. When the talk drifted to the subject of husbands (each lady present having one) she could contain herself no longer. "Oh, I just know my husband is different from other men!" she enthused.

One middle-aged matron eyed her pityingly. Youth was so trusting. "Of course, my dear," she agreed, "but just wait until you've been married a year, then you'll understand how really 'different' he is!"
—Ethel Keeley.

Success!

Birdie: "Don't you think, dear, that Gertrude's hair is a pretty shade?"
Betty: "Is it, really? I haven't seen her since yesterday, you know."

Long and Short.

Despite the fact that I am tall
And love to be a sport
I seldom make a hit because
I usually am short.

Last night I frolicked with a blonde
Who helped to make things buzz,
And now although my height's the same,
I'm shorter than I was.
—William Craig.

A Misunderstanding.

Football coach: "You should tackle low."
College player: "I thought I came here to get a higher education."

Counter Claim.

Howson Lott: "Your chickens have done a heap of damage in my garden."
Suburbs: "How about all the eggs they've laid in your place?"
—James J. O'Connell.

Give a man rope enough and he'll smoke himself to death.

POISON IN WATER OF HASTINGS LAKE

Was Proved by Experiment With Calf, Which Died After Drinking.

Belleville, Sept. 24.—That poison exists in the waters of Fraser Lake, North Hastings, has just been demonstrated. Veterinary surgeon H. Wellbanks, of this city, in company with provincial officers, visited the lake on Saturday. A calf was purchased and was given some of the water. In twenty-one minutes after partaking of it the animal was dead.

Although the lake is said to abound in fish no dead ones have been seen. The poisoned water appears to be on the outer edge, where cattle went to drink. The legs of the dead animals were covered with a greenish colored slime, they having stood in shallow water near the shore. Samples of the water have been sent to Toronto for analysis.

FINDS COSTLY PEARLS WHILE EATING OYSTERS

Toronto Man Might Have Made $300 by Taking Delicacies Raw.

London, Sept. 24.—Because H. R. Schook, of Toronto, preferred his oysters fried rather than raw it cost him $300 last night.

While eating oysters at a local cafe last night several beautiful pearls rolled into his mouth. Mr. Schook thought for a while that fortune was smiling upon him, but disappointment awaited him.

On finishing his dinner he took the pearls to a local jeweler, to discover their value.

The jeweler declared that, while they were real pearls of excellent quality, they had lost all value because they had been subjected to heat. If they had not been subjected to the frying pan they would have been worth at least $300.

There was one pearl that stood out above the rest. It was the size of a pea and was perfectly shaped. There were smaller ones that were well matched, and these, the jeweler said, could have been made into a beautiful ring.

Col. Wilson, Belleville, caught a thirty-two pound jungs, measuring four feet in length in Muscote Bay and E. A. Thomas hooked in Lons Lake, with a small bass hook, a forty-two inch long blue pike weighing seventeen pounds.

Stewart Aman, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Aman, Belleville, fractured both bones of his right leg above the ankle on Saturday, when he fell from a tree in the West Belleville playgrounds. He was on a limb which broke, causing him to fall a considerable distance.
