PLEAD GUILTY TO STEALING OF COAL

Four Women And Two Men Plead Guilty to Taking Coal From Railway Yards.

A most unusual scene was witnessed at the session of the police court on Thursday morning, when four women and two men—all of middle age and some over, stood before Magistrate Farrell, charged with stealing coal from the Canadian National Railway Company. All the women are married.

"Mrs.— you are charged with stealing coal from the railway company," said the magistrate to each one charged and in each case a plea of "guilty" was recorded.

After the plea in each case had been given, Magistrate Farrell had the four women and the two men lined up in front of the bench and gave them a heart-to-heart talk, after which he allowed them to go on suspended sentence.

"It was stealing to take this coal from the railway tracks," remarked the magistrate. "To take what does not belong to you is stealing. The coal was not on a public highway, but on private property of the railway. The railway company purchased this coal to operate their railway and it is stealing for a person to go and take it away. It is a serious matter. And apart from the stealing of the coal, there is the danger of people being injured while walking the tracks. As a result of your going on the tracks for coal, the company might have been faced with an action for damages."

Magistrate Farrell stated that he would allow the accused to go on suspended sentence, providing each one contributed to the costs of the court.

The railway company has been receiving many complaints about people walking on the tracks at the outer station and picking up coal. Acting with a special constable for the company, on Tuesday night, Police Constable Thomas Mullinger visited the homes of the accused and found coal that had been taken from the railway tracks. Two baskets and two pails filled with coal taken from the railway company, were produced in court.

The much-talked-about assault case, in which it was alleged that a mop was used as a weapon, was finally disposed of on Thursday morning, when it was dismissed by the magistrate, after additional evidence had been taken. The case presented quite a tangle and the magistrate remarked that in view of contradictory evidence he had to do the best he could to untangle the skein.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT IN HIS MOTOR BOAT

Revolver of G. M. Thomas Went Off—Bullet Entered Fleshly Part of Leg.

Mr. G. M. Thomas, 32 Edgehill street, manager of the Imperial Oil Company here, was 'accidentally shot through the left thigh by the accidental discharge of his revolver Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Thomas was out in a motor-boat and was breaking the revolver in his lap when it went off and the bullet passed through the fleshy part of his leg. It entered on the inner side and passed down, coming out at the back of the knee. His companion helped him bring the boat to shore and he was taken by car to the Hotel Dieu where an X-ray was taken. The thigh bone was not injured. He was later removed to his home where he is doing well. Dr. Hayek is attending him.
