Crop Conditions.

Harvesting in the prairie provinces has been delayed by rain, but is now proceeding under satisfactory conditions. Practically all the wheat has been cut and threshing is becoming general. In Quebec the harvesting of grain has been backward, and some districts have suffered damage by wind and rain, but average crops are expected. In Ontario harvesting of grain is practically completed, and threshing returns are above the average. Later crops need warm, dry weather. In the maritime provinces favorable weather has prevailed and harvesting is well under way. In British Columbia crops have been improved by general heavy rains.

Compton-Mathews Wedding.

At the Archbishop's palace, Kingston, by Rev. Father Lacey, Eva Mae, eldest daughter of Mrs. Emma Mathews, became the bride of Charles Edward Compton, of Chelsea, Que. The young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. Hunt. The bride wore a navy tricotine suit with small hat of apple green and blouse to match, and the groom's gift, a black fur. After the ceremony the happy couple left on the midnight train for Montreal and other eastern points. On their return they will reside in Kingston. The bride was the recipient of many nice presents, showing the high esteem in which she is held.

ALL-CANADIAN.

From the Raw Material to the Ultimate Consumer.

Most of Canada's great industries, which supply the thousand and one varied and valuable commodities that the Dominion requires for its daily existence or comfort, draw on the world for their raw materials. Canada's resources are extensive, truly, but most manufactured articles have complex sources, some of which are usually in distant lands. However, there is one big Canadian company whose output is actually all-Canadian; whose limitless supplies of raw material, manufacturing plant and market all lie within the borders of the Dominion.

The Canadian Johns-Manville Co. owns its own great asbestos mine in the province of Quebec—probably the finest in the world. Hard by is its huge new factory, in which Canadian skilled labor fabricates asbestos, mined in Canada, into products made in Canada by Canadians for Canadians.

An all-Canadian product is naturally of interest to all Canadians, more particularly when it is asbestos, in which Canada leads the world for quality, and which plays such an important part in the conduct of every industry and the comfort of every home. How the big new factory in Asbestos, P.Q., in which the wheels have just begun to hum, plans to serve Canadians is of moment to every plant executive and every home owner in the Dominion.

Of the factory itself; this new plant of the Canadian Johns-Manville Co., Ltd., has 200,000 square feet of floor space, all devoted to the manufacture of asbestos products. Its mighty power plant develops 2,500 h.p.—with room for more as production increases. This scarcely known mineral of 50 years ago has become classed with iron as a modern basic raw material—and such unusual need calls for larger manufacturing facilities.

The thought behind this new plant has not overlooked details that will further the service it can render to thrifty Canadians. To reduce expensive haulage costs on raw material, the new factory is located adjacent to the mine—and this saving will be passed along to the Canadian consumer in the form of remarkably low prices. A superior product is worth all its costs—but when one can add the further advantage of no duty and no transportation expense (which necessarily must be absorbed in manufacturing expenses) the argument becomes conclusive.

In addition, the new Johns-Manville plant will afford more opportunity for Canadian labor—and that too under most modern, comfortable working conditions. And with its rail facilities and advantageous location, it means quicker deliveries to Canadian dealers, with the resulting improvements in business conditions throughout the Dominion.

The new factory for the present will specialize on asbestos roofing, which can now be furnished at the same price as ordinary roofing; asbestos pipe insulation, not only asbestos-wool, the finest insulation for all high temperature steam pipes, but also improved asbestos, the fuel-saving insulation for house heating systems; asbestos packings and asbestos brake lining.

Canada welcomes the new plant with full appreciation of the opportunity it presents of greater service to Canadians everywhere.
