ELECTRICITY TO COAX ALASKAN HENS TO LAY DURING NIGHT.

The domestic hen in the interior of Alaska, accustomed to take a lay-off during the six months of night in winter, will have to do her steady shift at producing eggs, from all indications. Electricity has come to the aid of the Alaska poultry farmer. By the aid of light and heated quarters hens are being made to lay at a time when in the past the egg supply hardly has paid for feed.

Dairymen are constructing a type of chicken house with a basement in which a large air-tight heater is located. The coop is wired with electricity, so that it may be lighted during the "daylight" hours.

With a market of 58,000 cases of eggs and prices ranging from 75 cents to $1 a dozen in winter, the poultry industry promises to become one of the most remunerative in the government railroad belt.

That Mrs. Paterson Hall, who is retiring after presiding over the Dominion Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of England for sixteen years, was presented with a purse of gold containing $775 at the triennial meeting now being held in Hamilton. That the freshmen of Queen's were a great surprise to some travellers who, seeing a young man on the street wearing a green fool's cap and a green tie, and remembering that Portsmouth near Kingston has a hospital for those afflicted with mental diseases, came to the conclusion that one of the patients had escaped. "Not so," they were told by a Kingstonian. "This is the garb the young men who have come to Queen's to learn to wrest the deepest scientific secrets from nature, are condemned by their senior fellow students to wear for four long weeks."

That the glorious weather of Thursday sent all who could get away into the country where the woods are beginning to don their autumn robes of scarlet and gold. The recent rain has made the fields as green as they are in June, the Michaelmas daisies make a drift of purple at the edge of the woods where the maples are turning to rose, gold and crimson under the light touches of Jack Frost's fingers. A Quick Dessert. Combine diced peaches, apples, pears and white grapes with sugar and serve in sherbet glasses. Garnish with sweetened whipped cream. The fruit should be mixed and chilled for an hour before serving. This is an excellent quick dessert, using bits of fruit that might otherwise go begging.

The hearts of lettuce should be dressed with oil and lemon juice, seasoned with salt and pepper and a bit of sugar. Lemon juice is preferable to vinegar. Vinegar retards digestion and has no food value, while lemon juice is rich in vitamins and has a tonic effect.

COLDER weather calls for hot breakfasts. Now, you can prepare a steaming cereal every morning in 3 to 5 minutes. Quok Quaker cooks perfectly while you make the coffee.

Quick Quaker is just as delicious and flavory as the regular Quaker Oats you have always known. It is just as wholesome and nourishing. It is packed in the same sealed cartons.

The only difference is that in Quick Quaker, the grains are cut in two, rolled thinner and partly cooked before packing. Because of this, it cooks perfectly in less time than it takes to boil coffee or fry eggs.
