BIG ROTARY NIGHT HELD AT BROCKVILLE

Kingston Rotarians Were Guests at a Dinner Held There

Members of the Kingston Rotary Club, to the number of twenty-five, were the guests of the Brockville Rotary Club, at a dinner held in the Grand Central Hotel, at Brockville, on Monday evening, and the local Rotarians were royally entertained. The Kingston Rotarians made the trip to Brockville in cars, leaving their headquarters at the British-American hotel at 4 o'clock.

In the recent attendance contest held in this Rotary district, the Kingston club put it over Brockville, and the complimentary dinner was tendered to mark the splendid showing made by the local club. Dinner was served at 6.30 o'clock, and the two clubs spent a very enjoyable time. H. A. Stewart, K.C., M.P. of Brockville, was the speaker of the evening, and he delivered a forceful address under the title of "Essential Elements of Well Regulated Life," a most timely topic for a Rotarian gathering.

A splendid dinner, with the best of service, marked the event. No Rotary gathering is O.K. without the usual "sing-song," and a number of Rotary songs were put over with great "pep" during the evening. Rotarian Bert Craig, of Brockville, very ably acted as song leader, while Rotarian James Makepeace, of Brockville, and Rotarian Percy Hall, of Kingston, provided the music at the piano.

In the absence of the president, Stuart Allister, who was out of the city on business, the chair was occupied by the vice-president of the Brockville Club, Fred I. Ritchie, and he carried out his duties with honors. There was not a dull moment from start to finish, and the Kingston Rotarians returned home singing the praises of their brother members in Brockville. Good fellowship prevailed, and the event was voted a great success by all present. The Brockville club had a good turnout of members to welcome the visitors.

Given Warm Welcome.
Rotarian Ernest J. Smith, of Brockville, said grace and after ample justice had been done to the very fine spread, Rotarian Ritchie started things going in great style. Several songs were rendered, including a special number for the occasion entitled "How Do You Do," which went over big. In this lively song the Kingston Rotarians were referred to as the "Kings-onions" and if we might be permitted to say so, it went over strong. Andy Gump, Farmer Brown, Mister Rooster and the Misses Hen, were also featured in the song, which made a great hit.

Rotarian Ritchie extended a warm welcome to the Kingston visitors and also took occasion to congratulate the Kingston Club on their success in the attendance competition, and in a jocular way asked to be tipped off as to how the Kingston club had managed to put over so many hundred per cent meetings on the attendance sheet. Rotarian Ritchie stated that such gatherings tended to promote good feeling among the members and above all, would make the members better Rotarians.

President Arthur Lyster, of the Kingston Rotary Club, was called upon, and as he arose to speak was greeted with the song, "See Him Smiling." President Lyster returned the thanks of the local Rotarians for the warm welcome and splendid entertainment. Three cheers and a "Tiger" were given for the Kingston club, after which H. A. Stewart, K.C., M.P., was called upon for an address.

A Timely Address.
In opening his address, Mr. Stewart stated that he had attended several Rotary dinners, and he appreciated the good will and fellowship in Rotary. He took as the subject of his discourse, "Essential Elements of Well Regulated Life." He realized that he had a big subject and he desired to pick out four essentials—Work, play, love, worship. All these in proper proportion and order, were essential to the well-developed life. This was a working life, the speaker pointing out that everybody worked from the ants to the angels. Every generation has its peculiar kind of work. War had been one of the chief burdens of humanity. Today, the establishment of peace, was the great task. We realized the folly of war in settling disputes. The difficulties arising out of the war were far more serious and the great problem was to find a solution. The speaker referred to the work of the pioneers—of their splendid spirit of determination and sacrifice.

Mr. Stewart stated that there are material advantages in work, but that some of the most serious disputes arose over the compensation labor thinks it should have for its work. Finding one's work was finding one's place. The best reward for work was not in material things but in spiritual. And there were just as many fields for the pioneers of today, as of old. Every generation presents this opportunity. Idleness will destroy any man.

"I think we will all agree that work—honest and faithful work, is the main element in a well regulated life. There is an old saying, 'All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.' I believe this is true. I believe it is equally true that 'all play and no work makes Jack a jazy and jumping boy.' We must have a reasonable amount of play. It gives expression as perhaps nothing else does to the energy and particularly to the energy of youth. And some of the best results are in its by products. From play we get health, pleasure, and the spirit of give and take. We learn to be winners and what is better, we learn to be good losers. It teaches us to play fair and squarely. No person can stay in athletics if he is crooked. The players will not stand for it, and the supporters will also object. Play the game fair and square. Any other way will lead to disaster, in business as in sports. The spirit of play helps us to put the proper spirit into our work. Let us have a reasonable amount of play, and let us get the best we can out of it."

Dealing with the question of love, the speaker referred to the love in the home of husband wife and children. This love tended to make one strong and without it things do not go right. Sincere love and affection for one's race and country also played a big part.

"And as regards worship, all men worship something in some way. And it is just as essential as any other element. We need to confess sin. It acts just the same as sleep to the body. It will cleanse and purify. What opportunities we have to exercise! How many opportunities for work and play! We are living in a wonderful time."

"As members of Rotary you have undertaken a certain line of work—work that is very valuable and much-needed at this time, and I wish you the fullest measure of success in your undertaking," remarked Mr. Stewart, in the closing remarks of his address, which was greeted with round after round of applause.

Rotarian Ritchie expressed the thanks of the gathering to Mr. Stewart for his address and the very happy event was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

THE CAPITOL THEATRE THROGGED MONDAY

The Capitol Theatre had another "sold out" night on Monday and the programme presented was certainly worthy of it. Attracted by the splendid bill advertised, hundreds crowded the entrances long before the starting time, and when the lights did go off the big auditorium was well filled and a steady stream coming through the lobby.

Interesting Canadian news views, "The Fun Shop," "Mother Hubbard," a "Telephone Girl" comedy, all preceded the main programme.

Cameron Geddes, famous Canadian basso, made his first appearance. For his first song the audience remained quiet, passing judgment, and then as it finished there was a burst of applause that lasted for some minutes. The second song was lighter, speedier and enlivened the audience, although it did not give the full play to Mr. Geddes' wonderful voice. In response to a five-minute applause and repeated demands for an encore Mr. Geddes presented a little novelty dealing with a cuckoo clock. It was certainly good.

The feature picture was that heralded production "Merton of the Movies" with Glenn Hunter taking the part of Merton. We cannot give this picture enough praise—it gives comedy of the cleanest and brightest degree, pathos which leaves on wondering whether to laugh or mourn, a plot which has a great many unexpected turns and splendid acting throughout. It is a movie of the movies, showing the serious and the comic side of life "on the lot" and giving a more natural presentation of the life of those who make the films than any picture produced heretofore.

The same programme will be repeated today and Wednesday. Don't miss hearing Cameron Geddes.
