GALILEO NOT WRONG

When He Recanted and Said the Sun Moved Round the Earth.

"If A moves around B then B moves around A. In other words, Galileo was not wrong when he recanted and said the sun moved round the earth."

With such statements Prof. A. S. Eve, director of the Physics Department of McGill University, kept a large audience keenly interested in Convocation Hall Wednesday night. The lecture, which was attended by the Queen's Theological Alumni, was arranged by the university's lecture committee and Col. Macphail presided.

The subject of the lecture, which included lantern slides, was "The Limitations of Science," and he showed how impossible it is for the science of men to reach ultimate knowledge on any subject. A simple ball and string pendulum could not be set up for study without bringing into relation its stand, the table, the earth and the whole universe. The sun's pull on the earth was as easy to explain as a horse's pull on a cart, the connecting trace being made up of parts quite separate from each other. Science could not define what was real, nor what matter is. Space was a concept in the mind and could not be separated from time. The wave theory of light that had stood for generations is being strongly rivalled by a new theory.

"It is too easy for people to accept a theory or statement because it has stood for a couple of hundred years," said the speaker. "Even civilization changes every 150 years. War today would be a much different thing than in 1914. It is not fair to say that matter can't be destroyed when thinking of the universe. We can't only say that it is true in our own world."

Words of commendation for the address were spoken by Principal Taylor and Dean Clark.

At the afternoon session of the conference officers were re-elected as follows: President, Rev. D. W. Best, M.A., Bowmansville; vice-president, Rev. D. C. Ramsay, M.A., Belleville; secretary-treasurer, Rev. A. J. Wilson, B.D., Napanee. The following executive committee was appointed: The members of the Theological College staff, Dean Matheson, Dr. MacClement, Rev. T. J. H. Ferguson, Rev. G. A. Brown, Rev. Dr. R. H. Bell and Rev. W. H. Raney, all of Kingston.

Thursday morning's session heard the third of Prof. MacIver's lectures, his subject being "The Church and the State." The second part of the programme was given over to an address by Rev. C. F. McIntosh, B.D., of Campbellford, on "The Book of Revelation: Principles of Interpretation." The programme for the afternoon was an address by Rev. A. W. McIntosh, B.A., Pembroke, on "New Testament Preachers and Preaching."

On Thursday evening the conference will be the guests of the faculty players, who will present two short plays.

AGRICULTURE AND HOME ECONOMICS

Are to Be Taught in Three Months' Course at Harrowsmith.

It is expected that about sixty young people will attend the school of elementary agriculture and home economics which is to be held in Harrowsmith commencing Dec. 1st and lasting for three months. This course is being held under the management of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Frontenac Branch and A. W. Sirett, the local agricultural representative will be principal of the school.

It has been arranged that the sessions for the girls will be held in Methodist church hall and the Women's Institute at Harrowsmith has made all arrangements. The town hall which is being furnished by the township council will be used by the men. The school course is absolutely free.

The subjects which the young men will take will consist of animal husbandry, field husbandry, poultry husbandry, farm dairying, veterinary science, horticulture and vegetable growing, soil and fertilizers, elementary physics and chemistry, drainage and land surveying, farm mechanics, gas engines and farm tractors, agricultural botany, economic entomology, bacteriology, farm management, civics, co-operative marketing, apiculture, farm forestry, birds, English and mathematics.

The young ladies' course will consist of foods and cookery, laundering, household administration, house planning and decoration, home nursing, first aid, sewing and millinery.

Miss Florence Reek, Blenheim, will be in charge of the ladies, and A. W. Sirett, assistant to Mr. Sirett, will remain in Harrowsmith for the whole period of the course and will survey the course for the young men.

To the Polls at 94.
Campbellford, Oct. 29.—Among the voters at the recent election, it was interesting to note that even the elderly people realized the importance of the issue. Mrs. Susan Webber, who is eighty-nine years of age, drove many miles to cast her ballot; while Edward Stephen, at the age of ninety-four, also registered his vote, and it is safe to state that they both handed in winning tickets.

PLAYING THE SNEAK AGAIN.

The Princess street newspaper has resumed its silly habit of writing letters to itself in an effort to disparage the Whig, but only gets the laugh out at the golf links, in the Frontenac Club and everywhere else. The Whig had hoped that after its recent reproof the Standard would quit its sneaking ways and turn over a new leaf. Apparently it has a bad habit difficult to overcome, but we have hopes of yet seeing our contemporary acting more manly and discarding its nasty ways. The Whig was never out to be a hypocrite. Goodness knows, it has some faults, but it could not be a sneak and get behind people's backs to throw mud. Perhaps we are too outspoken, but we will be forgiven for that. The Standard should not feel so sore because the Whig is continually beating it on big news. The biggest scoop pulled off in years in Kingston was some months ago when the Whig gave the story of the Campbell bequest of $318,000 to the Kingston General Hospital. We must keep up our stride and simply cannot lag behind.

THE KOTOW CHORUS.

We know that this continued war of words between the Kingston daily papers is tiresome to our readers. The Whig is just as tired of it. But when a sheet which carries the name of newspaper is so desperately hard up for support that it must kiss the feet of certain sections of the community and try by every possible means—even to writing letters to itself—to curry favor with that section, it is so disgusting that we cannot refrain from comment.

The Whig is the friend of Queen's university. On its board of directors and staff are graduates and former students of Queen's. The university officials and staff are numbered among the Whig's best friends. And when some occurrence of public interest occurs at the university it is reported as such a thing at any other institution would be. There is neither favor nor prejudice shown.

When the Queen's football team plays away below its form we do not consider it to the advantage of the university to give it a stick of candy. In Montreal on Saturday last the most down-in-the-face individual in the Mount Royal hotel lobby after the game was the editor-in-chief of the Old Lady on Princess street. He thought it was awful. Yet his paper has not the courage to print the honest beliefs of its representatives but must hide all that and skip it over for fear of incurring the wrath of Queen's university.

On Wednesday the 4th Hussars, after a long and hard battle throughout a season in which their support from the city was shameful, went to Cobourg to play off for the championship of Ontario. No representative of the Standard appeared at the game. It was not of sufficient importance because the club is "only a little one."

A few weeks ago the Hussars sent a general appeal out for money to aid the team. The city council donated, the Kiwanis Club donated, and, joke of jokes, the Standard acknowledged it all as if it had secured the donations. Then, when check-up time came, it was found that a certain public man, apart whose five-dollar donation the Standard had made quite a splash, had failed to leave in his money.

The Whig's account of the recent McGill-Queen's game was for a purpose. It was suggested partly by certain players and officials of Queen's who desired a "bracer" for the football squad. These are the men whose friendship counts, but the Standard apparently has neither their confidence nor friendship.

Meantime the British Whig will continue on its way. It will support the big fellow and the little fellow as he deserves, nor will it "kotch" and "scrape" for the big fellow. It does not need to prate all over the front page about "The Queen's Spirit" for it has that spirit—and it is safe to say that a man with the Queen's spirit never "crawled" for favors.

Attacked by Dogs.
Grandes Piles, Que., Oct. 30.—The news comes in from Grand Anse that Mrs. H. P. Davidson, daughter of James A. Stillman and Mrs. Stillman, now honeymooning in this province, was almost devoured by watchdogs belonging to Mrs. Stillman. Two Eskimo dogs jumped on her, tearing her fur coat and wounding her. She was rescued just in time. Mrs. Stillman is with her daughter.

Near Port Napaven, Scotland, the British crawler Anjda, was wrecked with the loss of ten lives. Don't forget G.W.V.A. poppy day, Nov. 8th.
