By Sam the Simple.
Attorneys of the law are men whose business life is fine; I often wish I had their job. And one of them had mine. I'd like to stand before a judge and holler, "I object!" Then face the jury with a smirk and note the grand effect.

The lawyer has a picnic with the witness in the chair. He cross-examines him so hard. The poor guy bats the air; He badgers him and twists him 'up 'till he is out of breath. Then quotes the law on perjury and scares him half to death.

Some Old Story.
"Being an editor, Mr. Judell, I suppose you're always sure of having a nice turkey sent you for Thanksgiving?"

"The trouble with an editor's turkey," responded M. F. J., "is that it's generally stuffed with chestnuts."
—Robert Reichenbaum.

Long Drawn-Out.
George: "How was the wedding dinner?"
Marilyn: "First-rate, except that when Dr. Wall got through saying grace the soup was cold."
—Gertrude Marie Heller.

Mighty Like a Rose.
Little Rose's mother, having been widowed and married a second time, presented Rose with a baby half-sister.

A friend asked Rose: "Aren't you jealous of the new baby?"
"Oh, no!" said little Rose, "you see, I'm mother's real child, and this baby's only mother's child by marriage."
—Rose Huguevain.

A Story About Frank Chance.
That the late and celebrated Frank Chance, famous manager of the old-time champion Chicago National League Baseball Club, took his baseball seriously, is illustrated by an anecdote related, some years ago, by his pal, Hugh Fullerton.

"Well, cheer up, Frank," said Mrs. Chance, "you still have me."
"Yes," shouted Chance, "and there were a couple of times this afternoon I'd have traded you for a base hit."

Every dog has his day, and some of them have their limousines and chauffeurs.

Distance Lends Charm.
Helen: "It's too bad we got in the top of the stadium—the players are barely distinguishable from up here. Can you single out your friend Harry?"
Beth: "Yes, he's that handsome one with the big chest."

Sowing Them in the Plural.
De Style: "Isn't it awful the way he swears?"
Edith (sipping): "He'll juth sewing litch wild oath."
—F. P. Pitzer.

The Dark Horse.
Enlisting for the hand of Prue I launched my suit a trifle late; My prior rivals numbered, to be candid, eight.

So occupied was she with Hugh. With Tom, and Harry, Dick and Leigh, I was just one more of the crew—A candidate.

A strategy would win, I knew, So bon bons I sent by the crate, And when I won her "yes," 'twas to Her candy date!
—Ted Olson.

The Poker Fiend.
Mrs. Mendel: "You say your son is home from his agricultural college for a few days?"
Mrs. Gunnison: "Yes, and his mind is still full of his studies, for last night in his sleep he talked about raking in a pot."
—Nelson Nordstrom.

GANANOQUE

Nov. 7.—Woltie Squire who has been on the staff of the Bank of Commerce, Kingston, for the past few years has been transferred to the Montreal branch. Woltie was very popular in Kingston, and upon leaving was presented by the staff with a very handsome travelling kit or ebony. The first intimation he had of this was upon opening his bag down here where he stopped off, en route, for a few hours, as it had been slipped in the bag unnoticed. Woltie's many friends in Gananoque and Kingston will be glad to know that he continues to climb.

Mrs. L. Saddlemire, Toronto, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Thompson, William street.

Mrs. F. H. Lutz, Miss Jean Lutz and Mrs. James McMillan visited friends in Kingston on Wednesday.

The public library has recently been presented with the flag won by the South Ward in connection with Old Home Week activities through Mrs. Sullivan who had charge of the South Ward parade; also some 120 books and three lovely pictures by Mrs. Lillian Taylor prior to her departure from Gananoque, all of which is very much appreciated and will prove of big value to the library.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.
In the Lansdowne Methodist Church on Sunday.

Lansdowne, Nov. 4.—Rev. Mr. Robinson, Iroquois, preached morning and evening at the anniversary services in the Methodist church on Sunday, Nov. 2nd. The music rendered by the augmented choir was enjoyed and much appreciated.

On Monday evening a supper was served in the basement of the church after which a most entertaining evening was spent when Rev. Mr. Winter, representing the Anglican church, spoke on church work and Rev. Mr. Beckstead, of the Presbyterian church, brought greetings from Chalmers church.

Rev. Mr. Dustin acted as chairman and made fitting remarks as to the work of the Alpha Class in building the new kitchen for the church. Mr. Dustin also thanked the members of the Presbyterian church choir, who so kindly and efficiently helped with the musical part of the programme.

During the evening a quartette was given by Mrs. Peck, Miss Graham, Mr. Graham and Mr. McIlwain, a duet by Messrs. G. Graham and J. Davis; solo by Mrs. Ray Landon and a duet by Miss I. Graham and Mr. McIlwain. The organ accompaniments were played by Mrs. William Johnston.

DESPERATE SITUATION FOR THE GLENLOCHIE

Which Hit Charity Shoal—The Three Sailors Who Lost Their Lives.

Watertown, N.Y., Nov. 7.—The three members of the crew of the steamer Glen Lochie swept away in a small boat yesterday morning, were Ernest Ronsby, other, aged twenty-three, Denmark; John Brody, other, aged twenty-three, Montreal, and Daniel Marchant, watchman, Champlain, Que. No hope is held out for them.

Marked with a bell and a gas buoy, the Charity shoal sticks up in the middle of the channel, a menace to all navigation and it was there that the vessel struck. It was two in the morning when the crash shook the entire vessel as she stuck on the shoal.

It was a desperate situation. The boat was leaking badly and it was twelve miles to the nearest port, but the captain ordered full steam ahead with all pumps working, and with the vessel gradually settling in the water, won the battle.

It was a desperate two hours from four to six o'clock and the men show the effect of the strain, for the decks were awash when the Glen Lochie reached the harbor at Cape Vincent. The steamer lies in seventeen feet of water at the Pyke Coal Company trestle with her trim painted hull almost submerged.

Charity shoal has claimed another victim and lake captains will add another black mark against that particularly dangerous point in the main channel. There have been many wrecks on Charity shoal, among the most important having been that of the steamer Rosedale of Montreal, about fifteen years ago. The Rosedale was finally salvaged and taken to Montreal for repairs.
