THE G.W.V.A. SERVICE IN MEMORIAL HALL

Addresses by Capt. J. F. Nicholson, Major W. E. Kidd and Hon. W. F. Nickle.

The sixth anniversary of the signing of the armistice which brought the Great War to a close was fittingly celebrated on Tuesday evening when a memorial service, under the direction of the Kingston Branch of the Great War Veterans Association, was held in the city's Memorial Hall.

It is indeed fitting that services such as this should be held in the memorial hall, as the surroundings in this beautiful auditorium go towards making the service more impressive.

The Hon. W. F. Nickle, M.P.P., who acted as chairman, gave a very inspiring address, in which he told of the valor of the Canadian soldier in action, and also paid homage to the men who gave their lives, and to those who have come home disabled.

Capt. the Rev. Father Nicholson, padre of the Third Canadian Division, who was the first speaker of the evening, gave a very impressive address and urged the point of union, if we are to accomplish what these brave soldiers sacrificed their lives for.

Rev. W. E. Kidd, who was padre of the 21st Canadian Infantry Battalion, paid a glowing tribute to the attainments of the Canadian troops, and referred to the price of fifty thousand dead which Canada contributed, in attaining her seat at the table of the nations of the world.

The band of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, under the leadership of Captain Alfred Light, in addition to playing for the singing, rendered a number of selections which were very much appreciated, including "Largo," by Handel, which was indeed a masterpiece, and it is safe to say that it has never been played better in Kingston.

A vocal solo, "In Flanders Fields," by Mrs. E. Treneer, and also "Christ in Flanders Fields," by James Marshall, were greatly appreciated. These memorial services have been held in Kingston each year since the conclusion of the war, and it is hoped that they will be continued for years to come, as it is the one occasion during each twelve months upon which the citizens of Kingston can gather together and pay tribute to the men who gave their all during the Great War.

Rev. Father Nicholson. The Hon. W. F. Nickle, when introducing Rev. Father Nicholson, stated that he needed no introduction to a Kingston audience, as all were aware of the excellent service which he rendered during the period of the war. When ranking the chairman for his kindly reference to him, Father Nicholson said that an occasion of this kind was an opportunity for all to pay their gratitude to the heroes who had died that we might live. He reminded his hearers that their glory survives. We are a great people, and the graves of the dead on the battlefields of France and Belgium unite us for evermore.

Many went over as mere lads, and came back as men, and physically and mentally the strain has told on them all. He urged upon his hearers to do everything possible to assist these warriors.

Hon. W. F. Nickle. Mr. Nickle, when opening his address, stated that it was not the wish of those who had gathered in this hall to be entertained they came in a spirit of reverence and thanksgiving to the men who gave their lives.

He referred to the enlistment of men and the training at Valcartier camp and later the part they paid in the theatre of war in France and Belgium. He told of his visit to the battlefields and how he spoke to men as they were going into the battle line at Ypres, visited Vimy Ridge where the Canadian did almost the impossible and held the ridge for all time. Mr. Nickle pointed to the memorial window which contained the picture of young Cornwall who stuck to his ship after all the members of the crew had been killed by German fire and when asked why he remained he said, as he was dying: "I thought that they might need me." That is the way the Canadian troops stuck to it.

Mr. Nickle stated that the gathering on Tuesday evening made him realize that the hearts of the people of Kingston rang true and they were grateful for what their sons had done in the war. He said that we should always remember the men who had suffered, and made reference to the broken men who are receiving treatment at the Mowat Sanatorium. He approved of the statement of Father Nicholson that what we needed most was union. He reminded his hearers that there were many ex-service men who up until the present time had probably gotten along alright, but now that the patriotic fund was at an end, they would probably be up against it this winter.

Major W. E. Kidd. Major W. E. Kidd, who during the period of the war served in the front line trenches with the 21st Battalion, gave an admirable address. During the course of his remarks he stated that the men who served could not forget those days as these things will become history which the children will study. He referred to the youth of the land as the receivers of a legacy which was purchased with the lives of the men we honor tonight.

T. Flint, first vice-president of the G.W.V.A., who is the head of the Association, since the departure of Dr. D. A. Volume, from the city, occupied a seat on the platform, and the ushers were members of the association.
