LETTERS To The Editor

Dr. McCarthy Writes. Kingston, Nov. 22. (To the Editor): Having had a few cases of men who have been working at the tearing down and the reconstruction of a building for the chemical works and they have come to me with complaints of itching of the skin and bowel trouble, I thought it my duty to place before the public and particularly the working man (for he is the bearer of the brunt of the battle for the necessities of life) these facts:—

You are working about a smelter that has contained ores of different kinds, as lead, silver, nickel, mercury, iron, etc. In the refining of metal then is given off fumes of other substances that have been mixed with it in its rock formation. Fumes arising from the furnaces permeate the whole building and lodges in all parts. Therefore in the reconstruction the dust arises and falls upon the working man and sifts into his clothing. Some of the dust he breathes into his breathing passages and lungs. Thus not only is the outside of the body affected but also are the internal organs attacked by this dust or fumes.

The old saying is that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" still holds good. For that ounce of prevention I am quoting from lectures given by such men as Thos. M. Legge, M.D., lecturer on factory hygiene of the University of Manchester, Eng.; Kenneth W. Goadby, M.R.C.S. surgeon of the smelting works of East London, and others. The rules of these men and others are too long to state here. But to place the matter before the working man is simply this:—

You go to work in honest man's working clothes and in the dust and fumes all day, you are sweating and this makes the matter stick more closely to your skin and clothes. When you go home you do not change clothing and sometimes sleep in that same underclothing that is full of that poisonous metal. Do this for that ounce of prevention: When you go home remove all clothing, take a bath in which you put four tablespoonfuls of ordinary washing soda; dry well and put on fresh clothing for the rest of the day. Next day return to your working clothes (there is no need of washing them) to go to work in the morning. Do this and should any other troubles arise see your own family physician. —W. A. MCCARTHY, M.D.

ST. ALBANS SCHOOL AFIRE

Gymnasium and Classroom Demolished Before Flames Controlled. Brockville, Nov. 22.—The main building of St. Alban's residential school for Boys, situated in the township of Elizabethtown, at the eastern outskirts of the town, was threatened with destruction by fire Thursday night when an outbreak was discovered shortly after eleven o'clock in the gymnasium at its rear. This building, together with a class-room adjoining it, was demolished and a portion of the passageway connecting it with the main building scorched before the blaze was brought under control. The chapel, situated to the east of the center of the fire, suffered damage from smoke. The loss is completely covered by insurance.

Gibson-Christley Nuptials. On Wednesday evening, Nov. 19th, in the Princess Street Methodist parsonage, by Rev. J. K. Curtis, George S. youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gibson of Sunbury was united in marriage to Ruby B., eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Christley of Latimer. The bride looked charming in a powder blue silk canton crepe. Her attendant, Miss Amanda Gibson, sister of the groom, wore a very becoming dress of grey French crepe. The groom was awaited upon by Bert, A. Cooper of Sunbury.

The bridal party then motored to the home of the bride's parents, where a buffet luncheon was served. The remaining part of the evening was spent in music and games.

The bride will be greatly missed in the Sunday school work where she rendered service as organist.

The gifts received were numerous including a valuable cheque.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibson are leaving shortly for Rochester, N.Y., where the groom has secured a position.

NOT MR. MURDOCK BUT WEST HASTINGS

That is On Trial Declares Premier King in Address at Belleville.

Belleville, Nov. 22.—In his address here last night, Premier King said:

"It is not Mr. Murdock; it is West Hastings that is on trial. Mr. Murdock has had his trial. He cannot be put on trial again. He has been found innocent. What you electors of West Hastings have to decide is whether you are going to uphold the honor and dignity of parliament or jeopardize it. This is the issue. What the verdict next Tuesday will be is this—whether it is going to uphold the honor of parliament or whether it is going to be subversive of the institutions of parliament."

Turning to the railway question, the premier said that false statements were being made about Hon. James Murdock and his relationship to the strike of 1910 and the Brotherhood. He desired to correct and place the record of present government against that of Hon. Mr. Meighen. According to the settlement of the strike, the men were to be returned to their positions if their services had been interrupted. It was a surprise some time later to learn that the Grand Trunk was not carrying out its agreement and the men were losing their pensions.

"When I was called upon to form a government I took occasion to remedy the wrong," said Mr. King. "I took Mr. Murdock into my government as minister of labor to make sure that the wrong would be righted. I knew Mr. Murdock was a friend of the railway men."
