'VARSITY GIRLS WON DEBATE AT QUEEN'S

Defeated Queen's Co-Ed. Representatives in a Spirited Platform Contest.

The first of the intercollegiate women's debates held at Queen's was won by two Varsity girls. The contest which was held in Convocation Hall on Saturday afternoon, drew a goodly sized crowd of men and girl students, who heard oratory that would be difficult to surpass. Both Queen's and Toronto produced speakers of eloquence, aplomb, wit and fire, and the heavy subject, "Resolved: That Union of Employed Workers is Beneficial to Society" received very skillful and interesting treatment.

The two Queen's debaters, who held the affirmative, were Miss Henrietta Anderson, of the senior year, and Miss Ruby Hilliker, of the sophomore year. Their worthy opponents were Miss Elizabeth Hillis, daughter of Toronto's chief magistrate, and Miss Lorna Cotton. The judges were Miss Ritchie and Prof. Dr. R. H. Bell, of this city, and Rev. Bridger, of the R.M.C.

Queen's first speaker, Miss Anderson, proved a vigorous speaker and a clear thinker and scored many points for her college. She stressed the vital necessity of organization for the masses of the population, the benefits in the way of higher wages, shorter hours and improved conditions which unions had secured for the working classes, and the relief to the tax-payer in general which came as a result.

Varsity's leader was a natural and pleasing speaker. She claimed that by fixing wages trade unions had decreased efficiency and lowered production and formed a cause of unemployment. They created class distinction in Capital and Labor and opposed the co-operation which society needed. She quoted from the recent labor disputes in England to show the terrors of a national or an international strike, and said further that only seven per cent. of the working classes were members of unions and that it was the third party, the "public," that suffered from a strike.

Miss Hilliker, Queen's second speaker, made a nice presentation of her material, which was considerable. She claimed that unions, as a whole, favored the peaceful settlement of disputes; also that unions stood for the education of their members, and rendered invaluable service in the way of classes, libraries and scholarships. She named Arthur Henderson and J. H. Thomas to show that unions had been successful in training statesmen. Lastly unions were the sponsors of advanced legislations and leaders in the world's progress.

Toronto's second representative was a clever speaker and her sarcasm drew many laughs from the supporters of her opponents. Most of her time she devoted to rebuttal. Trade unionism was out of date, she said, and education was better in the hands of the government, and the improvement of living and working conditions in the care of social service workers. Unionism tends to class warfare and to lowered production, and she referred to recent strikes to show the waste caused by strikes.

Miss Anderson made a spirited rebuttal for Queen's. Unions were not responsible for all the class warfare. Brotherhood was the keynote of their organization and they had rendered great service in bringing together Catholic and Protestant and the different races. She received a great round of applause.

The result of the game in Toronto was then announced. There was a cheer and a rapid fire of college yells.

Miss Beattie Billings, of Levana '26, presided. Time was kept by Miss Kay Dolan, president of the Levana Society.

CAPT. BAKER SPEAKS

To Sydenham Street Sunday School About the Blind.

Capt. E. A. Baker, M.C., Croix de Guerre, a graduate of the School of Science at Queen's University, and who lost his sight while serving with the Queen's Engineers during the great war, spoke to Sydenham Street Sunday school on Sunday afternoon. Capt. Baker was formerly president of the Union Club of Sydenham Street Sunday school and he gave the members of that club a very interesting and instructive talk on the work the Canadian Institute for the Blind is doing. Capt. Baker, after losing his eyesight, went to St. Dunstan's School for the Blind, in England, and then returned to Canada with the intention of carrying on his profession. He was given a position with the Hydro-Electric Commission and after making good at his new work he left to promote the Institute for the Blind in Canada. Capt. Baker stated that at the present time there are seven thousand blind people in Canada. The Institute is also carrying on work of preventing blindness among the school children.

This evening he speaks at a mass meeting in the Memorial Hall.

ALD. C. C. NASH ATTACKS THE MAYOR

"I taught public school for three years and any person who can handle a bunch of unruly youngsters should be able to handle twenty-one gentlemanly aldermen. I then took a complete commercial course in a first class business college and remained for two years afterward as a teacher. I mention this to show that I have had previous technical training, in commercial law and financing. I am also a graduate of the Dental College of Toronto, and an honor graduate of Toronto University. From the age of fourteen, I always spent my summers in some kind of manual labor, generally on a farm, one year in a cheese factory and sometimes tending carpenters or even digging a ditch.

"In 1902, I was secretary of the first labor union formed in the town of

ALD. C. C. NASH

Brockville. I mention these things to show I have had labor problems of my own and can appreciate those of other people. I am not ashamed that I had to work hard when I was young, and hope I am not entirely over the desire to keep on working. The late Andre Carnegie said that it was a great thing to be born poor and honest. Some people have been kind enough to say I have made a success of my own business. Granting this is so, I should be more likely to be a successful Mayor, because how can a failure in other things be a success as mayor? True, he can lay low and let the city officials and others run the city for him, but I don't want to be that kind. As alderman, I have served on nearly all committees, viz. board of works for two years, parks, city property and markets, charities, finance and accounts. I claim that Rideau ward has never been better looked after than the last three years.

"We can talk about our industries and smoke stacks, but our biggest assets are our girls and boys, and I have always taken an interest and spent much time in promoting clean sport and true citizenship among them.

Criticizes Mayor Angrove.

"Now a word on the future policy, and in discussing this, I will be forced to criticize the present mayor, on his record during the last two years. Personally, I have nothing to say against T. B. Angrove. He is a (hale fellow well met) and tries to be a general favorite. He said last year he was not opposed by a 'red blooded man' and I take it that he meant that Mr. Angrove did not 'scrap' enough to suit him. I hope he won't have that to say this time. I am afraid that he is the man who lacks the red blood this time, because he refused to meet me at a night meeting before a full house. I claimed the people who were working hard all day, but who are interested in the city, should be given a chance to hear the issues discussed, and he refused, although he at first promised he would do it. Another thing—he seems to have no mind of his own on important issues or else he is afraid to express it. The best proof of this is the change he made in voting this year in council. It supported it, but in council he never said a word.

"I would like to ask Mayor Angrove if he was in favor of the second scheme brought forward by Mr. Aird and Hines of the Mossop hotel, Toronto, which was a better proposition than the first as everyone admits. Also, if the Hockenburg people come next year with clear cut plan, how much will he subscribe?

"Personally, I am not in favor of the city getting mixed up in the running of any hotel, but am willing to put at least $1,000 in a clear cut proposition, as I consider we need a new hotel very badly.

"I claim that we have been paying too fast, especially this year when labor is in great demand. Bad years when there is a good deal of unemployment, there should be more paying. I also believe paying should be done by petition, and that has not been done, but very little, in the past. No small city can stand the pace we have been going and keep the taxes down.

"The mayor claims he has had much to do in lowering the tax rate but it is the finance committee who see to that and not the mayor alone. It is rather significant that he was on finance for years and the rate went up—the first time I was on the rate went down. This year's paving etc., does not affect taxes until next year but if it increases next year the way it has, this, the taxes must go up.

Police Commissioner.
The mayor, besides being a member of Utilities, is also a police commissioner, and generally tries the cases in the police court when the Police Magistrate is unable to be there. The election should also take that into account and decide which of us would fill that position best.

"Just now the electors are hearing a good deal about the library by-law and they can decide that themselves, but they will want a mayor who will attend the meetings and see that the wishes of the people are carried out. I am told that Mayor Angrove attended a meeting two years ago, and not again until this month, when he was again running.

"These questions are live issues, and I have tried to show where I stand on them, but I claim politics, religion and temperance are not issues, and should not be interjected in the campaign, although I am afraid they are all three being used by some people to further their own ends.

"Mayor Angrove says now that politics should not appear in council. I have always said and practised that, but two years ago he was elected on a party ticket and rode on it as long as it would carry him. Now he will have to admit that he was wrong, and that politics should never be in council, or else that his party has turned him down. Which is it?

"Before closing, I want to leave on the table a copy of some of the ques-

The Hotel Question.
"In the hotel committee meetings and other places the Mayor did everything he could to hang that $250,000 hotel proposition on the city. I am willing at any time to go on the public platform and prove it was the rottenest scheme that Kingston was ever confronted with, and yet the mayor was led into supporting it, apparently because the majority of the committee tions I have asked Mayor Angrove, and if he can answer them to the satisfaction of the majority of the electors he should be elected.

"Finally, I want to state that this is my fight and I am taking all the responsibility. If I am elected, I will go my best and will feel free to ask advice about questions of which I am in doubt. If I am defeated I will accept the mandate of the people cheerfully and endeavor to be as good, or better, citizen in the future than as I have been in the past.

Asked Some Questions.
Ald. Nash asked Mayor Angrove the following questions:—
Why did he change the voting in council, and what will he do next year about it if elected?
How many people did he interview last year about the change of the utilities office?
Why did he not attend the very important meeting with Sir Adam Beck and others, when he was in Toronto for that purpose on February 17th, 1923?
Was he in favor of the second hotel scheme, Aird and Mossopman? How much stock will he subscribe for in a clear-cut proposition for a new hotel if brought forward next year?
Will he admit he was wrong two years ago when he helped introduce politics into Council, or did his party turn him down?
