FIFTY-FIVE SPACES ON MARKET ARE SOLD

Yield City $1,278—The Highest Price, Paid by Cooke Bros., is $80.

Fifty-five of the one hundred and sixty-two spaces into which the Kingston market place has been divided were sold by auction at a sale held in the island market, Saturday afternoon. The highest price paid was eighty dollars, offered by E. Cooke, of Cooke Brothers, Cataract, for the space on King street on the corner of the central aisle leading towards the island market. The last three lots were for $15 each, which was the minimum price set by the authorities. The city received a total of $1,278 from the sale.

There was a large crowd of keenly interested farmers and their wives, with some citizens, in the market building when Market Clerk Wilson climbed on one of the tables shortly after one o'clock and announced that the sale was open. The market clerk first explained the regulations governing the sale and purchase of the spaces. They were to be sold only to producers and the lowest bid was to be $15. Payment for the spaces could be made in two parts, one by the first Saturday in next June. He then called for bids for the choice of the market.

A wag's bid of five dollars for the first choice was followed by one of $50, which jumped quickly in five dollar lots to $70.

"How much do you get for that?" asked someone in the rear.

"One space—the choice of the market," replied the auctioneer.

"Oh, I thought it was the whole market."

Still bidding went on—$71, $72, $75—at which price Charles Cunningham secured No. 1 space, his well-known stand on King street.

The second best choice was then put on the block. A bid of $15 was followed by $50 which went on to $61.65 (offered by a woman) 70-71-75-76-77, at which price, Space No. 28, adjacent on King street to Mr. Cunningham's, was sold to H. Silver.

The highest price was paid for No. 27, opposite the former space, for which two bids were made, $75 and $80.

No. 79 space, opposite No. 1 on King street, was chosen as the fourth best-place by its buyer, T. K. Morton, R.R. No. 3, Kingston, who paid $55 for it.

The prices now dropped down to the thirties and the spaces on the "central aisle" leading from King street to the island market, were sold first, with a few exceptions. Mrs. McCallum secured two adjacent to each other and in succession, at $30 each. Thomas Purdy, of Cataract, broke in at 15th choice, to secure his favorite stand on King street near the bank No. 135, his price being $25. By getting the 22nd choice, Cooke Brothers, choosing No. 78, secured two spaces on the corner of King and Brock streets. Thomas O'Rourke bought the last of the corner positions when for $24 at 37th choice, he secured No. 12, at the south-west corner of the island market.

There had been many standing round waiting for the slump in bidding and by the 35th choice they got their opportunity. From this to the last bid the offers never went above $25. The aisle to the south of the central aisle and along the west end of Brock street were favored. When no bids could be secured for the 55th choice the lots to the north and the south of the police station were still awaiting buyers.

A dog-fight started under the table on which the auctioneer was standing while the 44th choice was in the air, and soon afterwards someone yelled, "It's three-nothing for Queen's."

Some of the buyers were given slips by the market clerk and went in to the treasurer's office to pay their bills at once, receiving a permit or license in return.

The following are the lots sold, the buyers and the prices paid, in numerical order (lots on the central aisle included numbers from 15 to 26 on the south side and from 27 to 38 on the north side. The spaces on King street have been noted, excepting mention of J. S. Knight, who secured the bank corner on King street, No. 136. The lots sold in the aisle south of the central aisle included 1, 2 and 3, and 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 89, 92 and 93. Brock street lots as sold included 74 to 78):

WHIG SERVICE ON GAME WAS FEATURE

Crowd of Fans Rejoiced as Awrey and Co. Got the Gate—Only Correct Scores in Town.

The Whig's bulletins were seen and enjoyed by a large crowd of rugby fans who could not get away to the game in Toronto on Saturday and inside the building the large rooms and corridors were also well filled. Direct telephone communication with a special wire on the field supplied a service which could not be excelled.

The Whig bulletins carried the only score in town which was correct throughout. Other sources gave the score as 8-1 at half-time and were many minutes behind on every point made. Whig phones were rushed to the limit all the time, and good service was given in spite of the fact that one phone was tied up with the field and used for no other purpose.

As the scores by Queen's came in the crowd cheered lustily. Many enquiries were made about Evans, Quinn, Veale and Walker and information given as to their part in the game.

In a review of the outlook for this match during the week the Whig summed up with this: "It takes a long time to get a touch unless with the aid of lucky breaks; but Leadley is a menace from anywhere within thirty-five or forty yards." Leadley kicked three field goals and forced two single points.

Former Queen's players, prominent public men and members of Queen's staff were just a few of those who at first anxiously and then joyously, scanned the Whig bulletins. One of them summarized his experience after by saying: "I played the whole game over the Whig's telephone."

RUGBY NOTES.

Two days before the game, in setting down the likely score, a Whig writer gave Queen's a margin of ten points over Tigers. This margin proved exactly correct.

The smallest of the Whig's "printers' devils" was also a victor on Saturday and to the extent of twelve dollars. This little fellow is a firm believer that Queen's cannot be defeated and when several persons disputed his opinion he wagered "his all," and went home Saturday night with the money in his jeans.

When Mr. Tierney, the Brook street restaurant proprietor and caterer, was informed that Queen's was winning in the first quarter, he remarked: "And why wouldn't they win? I feed them." Mr. Tierney supplies the meals of the Queen's players during the training season and he surely has helped to build up a husky team.

Well, we certainly must guess to ourselves that this makes a record for other teams to shoot at—oh, we forgot, there are still Balmey Beach and Winnipeg in the road to the Dominion honors.

It is hardly likely that Abbie Buett will be able to beat Queen's with a fake inside kick in the last quarter. In fact, we doubt if the Beaches could pile much of a lead over the intermediates.

But that just remains to be seen and if the O.R.F.U. still fancies itself as a senior football factor let it found them out next Saturday and do its stuff.

That makes 27 field goals for "Pop" Leadley and next Saturday's game should bring that to an even thirty. Three in one game is not so bad—at three points each.

Tigers certainly "pulled a bone" when they thought if they could put either Batstone, Leadley or "Bud" Thomas out of business they would win the game. By placing two or three men to watch Thomas they forgot that this would weaken their line with the result that Reynolds & Company tore holes in it.

Karl Quinn, of the Hamilton Tigers, was in the city over the week-end and his face showed the effects of the battle. He was with his parents, Prof. and Mrs. Frank Quinn, Alfred street.

Timmis and Tuck were the two roughest players on the Tiger team. The questionable plays that they "pulled off" at times were quite noticeable.

A college that is getting used to Dominion championships and has already accepted two intercollegiate titles this fall was nevertheless overjoyed to hear that their representatives had taken such a fall out of the much vaunted Bengals. To many the difference in the score was unexpected. McKelvey's absence was feared, and Evans' strength and the knowledge which he and the other ex-Queen's players had of the inside workings of the Queen's team was considered a strong point in Hamilton's favor. The rest of the road to the Dominion honors is felt to be easy.
