AMUSEMENTS What the Press Agents Say About Coming Attractions

"IN ACTION."

Motion Picture of the Canadians at the Grand, Dec. 11th. No finer pictorial record of Canada's part played on the battlefields of France and Flanders during the World War exists than that to be shown at the Grand, on December 11th, matinee and night. The motion picture "In Action" has just been released through the British government, and is shown in the Dominion for the first time. Every foot of it abounds with real war thrills and gives a vivid illustration of just what war is.

Only a moving picture can give so graphic a description of war and this one taken for a British government record shows men up to their waists in mud; men actually shot down going over the top; stretcher bearers at their work of mercy under shell fire; first aid being rendered on the battlefields; Canadians entering burning Cambria evacuated by the Germans, Canadian aviators "In Action" over the German lines; Canadian labor battalions, Canadian railway troops and Canadian engineers at work and to-day, six years after the war the picture already seems incredible. Yet it stands as an actual record of just how big the part was that Canada played in the world war.

"In Action" an actual record of just what war is has been endorsed by the clergy and leading educationalists. Field Marshal Haig, the Prince of Wales, His Excellency Lord Byng, Governor General of Canada are all seen in this picture doing their bit. To miss this picture that is absolutely Canadian and a true authentic war picture made during the war and not in a Hollywood studio is to miss the most sensational picture of all time as it is a picture not to be missed, both for the undying record of Canadian valor and for its great history.

GETTING PICTURES OUT OF THE AIR.

STIRRING MELODRAMA OF THE SEA IS "THE FIRE PATROL"

One of the most dramatic incidents in "The Fire Patrol" the sensational melodrama which will be shown at the Capitol to-day, Friday and Saturday, occurs when a blind, old sea captain is led by his enemy to a cliff and left alone and helpless there. With his arms outstretched, he walks slowly towards the steep precipice that will mean his unknown death—on and on—until his foot steps heavily into—space. There is a tension in this scene that has never been surpassed on the screen. Usually suspense is on the side of the audience only, with the characters knowing their action before hand. In the case, it is on the side of both character and audience, which naturally doubles its intensity. The entire production has a background of storm and lightning which has never before been presented so extensively on the screen. Thousands of dollars were expended in getting these effects, and the result is more perfect than realism, just as a painting is more perfect pictorially than the landscape it portrays. Furthermore "The Fire Patrol" is an allstar special which is one. If you know what that means, its cast includes Madge Bellamy, Anna Q. Nilsson, Helen Jerome Eddy, Johnny Harron, Spottiswoode Aitken and Jack Richardson, and for comedy relief, of which there is plenty, Charlie Murray, Gale Henry, Helene Conklin, Billy Franey, Hank Mann and Bull Montana.

"THE SEA HAWK"

GREATEST OF ALL Having viewed the year's biggest dramas and spectacles dealing with adventure on land, local play lovers are curiously awaiting the initial showing of what is regarded as the greatest sea romance ever filmed. Frank Lloyd's production of "The Sea Hawk," a First National Picture, adapted from Rafael Sabatini's celebrated novel of the same title. It will be shown at the Capitol Theatre all next week. "The Sea Hawk" for five years one of the best sellers on the popular fiction shelf, and dealing with the colorful adventures of English knights and sweethearts and barbaric corsairs, has required a gigantic background for its many vivid scenes. The sea scenes are said to be the most unique and the biggest in physical action, although they do not overshadow the gorgeousness of the early English scenes and the quaint Oriental beauty of the Algerian sequences. More than $85,000 in costumes were designed and executed for the members of "The Sea Hawk" cast that the details of early fashion might not be neglected. Milton Sills heads the exceptional cast in Mr. Lloyd's big spectacle, playing the dual character of Sir Oliver Trevellick and Sakr-el-Bahr. Enid Bennett has been given the principal feminine role, with Lloyd Hughes, Marc MacDermott, Wallace Beery, Frank Currier, Wallace MacDonald, Hector V. Sarno, Fred de Silva, Kathleen Key, Mme. Medea Radzina, Christine Montt, Lionel Belmore, Robert Bolder and others of note lending support. The Capitol Theatre will present "The Sea Hawk" with an elaborate musical setting.
