APPLIES TO JUDGE FOR A NEW TRIAL

A Hinchinbrook Promissory Note Has Produced Some Sensational Developments.

On Friday morning, Day & Reville, acting for Mrs. Fitzgerald of Hinchinbrook, who recently sued a man by the name of Hill at the Division court hearing at Verona for a note for $200 but lost her case, applied to Judge Lovell for a new trial.

When the case was heard at Verona about a month ago, the plaintiff contended that the note for $200 had been signed by Hill. When the defendant was called there were some sensational developments. Mr. Hill stated that he never saw the note before and said that he was absolutely certain he did not sign the note. Mr. Hill also had witnesses who stated that they heard the plaintiff say that Mr. Hill would pay for something. When the note was examined by the judge, it was evident he was not satisfied that the signature was just right, and asked the defendant to sign his name. When the two signatures were compared, the court was satisfied that the defendant had not signed the note and dismissed the action. It is stated that the signature on the note was not correctly spelled.
