STORING VITAMINS
The average healthy person stores up within the body several days' supply of essential vitamins. This explains why a well-nourished person of any age is less susceptible to germ-infection than those who are malnourished.

Scott's Emulsion is a safety-factor that helps keep you well-nourished. A very little used daily to complement the regular diet, activates with essential vitamins and helps build resistance.

Store up a reserve of essential vitamins—take Scott's regularly.

Dear Tom: It seems that once a fool, always a fool, as Henry Ford says. Every letter I get from you is filled up with your adventures with the ladies, and it looks like I might as well of sent you to Vassar and be done with it! I note you are taking up the study of box fightin'. That's fine. Maybe this guy McGurk can beat some sense into your head! I also note from your letter that you are missin' a few teeth and that your beak has got to be overhauled as the results of your first lessons from Professor Knockout McGurk. Enclosed you will find three hundred bucks. Take one hundred for yourself and give Professor McGurk the other two and my best regards. Be sure and don't miss the second lesson.

FROM SON TOM TO HIS FATHER.
XIII.

Dear Dad: Well, pater, old bean, I am writing this billet doux (as the Abyssinians have it) under huge difficulties. One of my favorite eyes is as black as $50,000 worth of coal, my lips are much puffier than the natty dresser is wearing this year, and my nose is as jovially red and swollen as a prohibition enforcement officer's. Also, every bone in my body, including the largest one, i.e., my head, is aching like several hundred sore thumbs. Pater, old dear, when I first crashed into Hoora College I thought football was a rough and tumble sport, but alongside of boxing the gridiron pastime is as mild as parmesal!

The Medical Attendant Said I Would Live.

However, pater, you perfectly priceless old thing, in the course of acquiring the trifling scars listed above I succeeded in buffeting my way to a place on the freshman boxing team, and next week we travel to Dumbell University to cross gloves with their exponents, of the many art of assault and battery. That we will knock those fellows stiff is a foregone conclusion everywhere—that is, everywhere except at Dumbell University. Professor Knockout McGurk, J.A.B., H.O.O.K., and S.L.A.M., who holds the Chair of Sockology here, is confident that I will personally account for first honors in at least the following divisions, to wit, needleweight, paperweight, flyweight, bantamweight, featherweight, lightweight, welterweight, middleweight, heavyweight, and—er—etc.

Well, pater, I immediately enrolled in Professor McGurk's boxing class when I made up my mind that the moment I would seek out Young Battling Kid One-Round McWallop and obtain revenge for the slaming I got when I attempted to demonstrate to Blanche Mange that Morris Montague was a bum compared to me. As at a prep school I won my letter at seven-up, I anticipated little difficulty in learning the art of "knockin' 'em stiff and makin' 'em like it," as Professor McGurk remarks.

But alas, pater, unlike chemistry boxing is not a study that can be mastered in half an hour. At the end of my first lesson, or "round," the longest three minutes I have ever spent in my life, I was convinced that boxers, like street cleaners, are born and not made! It would take me too long to set forth here all the various rules and angles to the science, but suffice to say that the first and most important thing to learn about boxing is to keep from being knocked flat. This most elementary point was the hardest for me to remember. It appears that Professor McGurk hit me with everything but the chapel and dormitories, and the only time I laid a glove on him was when we shook hands before the massacre began.

Before going down to the gym for my first lesson, pater, I instructed my room-mate, Launcelot Fishbaum, to take down in shorthand a report of every blow landed by the Professor and myself, just like the sporting writers do at a regular prizefight. You see, I thought that with a punch-by-punch account at hand after my lesson I could study it and find out just what blows I missed and just what punches were delivered by Professor McGurk were the most effective and the hardest for me to avoid. Well, pater, I must say that I found my room-mate's account of the first and only round we fought of little value to me as a test-book. Here is the way it read:

"Report of boxing contest between Professor Knockout McGurk and Tom Cullen, '28. Round One—McGurk put left to head and right to heart. McGurk hooked his right to the head. McGurk crashed over a wicked left to the jaw. McGurk swung left and right to stomach. McGurk ripped over a right to the nose. McGurk smashed left to wind. McGurk shot right to face. McGurk slashed right to jaw. McGurk slammed left to mouth. McGurk jabbed right and left to head. McGurk planted right to face. McGurk chopped left to ear. End of First Round."

"What is the idea of all this about McGurk?" I exclaimed to Launcelot Fishbaum, when the medical attendant at the gym said I would live and I had read Launcelot's report. "What did I hit?"

"The floor," said Launcelot Fishbaum, with an asinine grin, "and I'll say you take a mean dive!"

Well, pater, as there appeared to be little chance of my winning back the affections of Blanche Mange through my feats of arms, I turned to my wits.
