Canada's Story Day by Day

By B. Owen Davies

December 16.

The abolition of the seigniorial tenure system on this day in 1854, brought to a close a picturesque epoch in the history of Canada. The old feudal lords who had helped to colonize and defend Canada in the seventeenth century were men chosen for the qualities of bravery, and of leadership they had displayed as officers in the French armies. They had been made responsible for the lives of the settlers who had been their vassals and stood to them in much the same relationships as the kings and chieftains in early history. Their fortunes in the beginning consisted usually of their swords and they had to build a home to shelter their families, a chapel in which their tenants might worship, and a mill in which to grind their wheat in time of peace and which would be converted into blockhouses in times of siege. The seigneurs tolled upon the land themselves in most cases, and combined their honors and duties in simple dignity. When death came, the feudal chief had one other privilege denied to men of lesser rank and could be buried beneath the floor of the church.

DEATH STRIPS MASK FROM "MAN-WOMAN"

"Mr." Paul Beach Discovered to Have Lived Life of Masquerade.

Los Angeles, Dec. 16.—"Mr." Paul J. Beach, who claimed to be a former Chicago packing house official, and Sacramento railroad employee, who died here yesterday, was a woman, the physicians and nurse who attended "Mr." Beach at his last illness revealed to-day. "He" was 45 years old.

The dual personality existed for 24 years, seven of which presented "Mr." Beach to the world as a married man. "Mrs." Beach, formerly Miss Florence A. Dillon, with whom "he" went through a marriage ceremony in Sacramento in June, 1917, died last May.

"Mr." Beach is said to have been a native of Tennessee, and is said to have led the life of a normal girl until 21, when "he" disappeared and took up his career as a "man" in a Kentucky bank.

Tenth Anniversary Of the Great War

December 16th, 1914.

The Allies capture more trenches. A combined attack was made by the French and British along three-mile front between Ypres and Lille. Fighting is resumed in northern France. The French hold ground they gained despite counter attacks. Intermittent cannonading is reported between Argonne and Somme.

The Germans are broken and are in full retreat. The Russian cavalry charge into the fleeing troops. Two whole army corps are on the run. The Russians gained a brilliant victory north of Vistula and the victors are nearing East Prussia.

England suffers from German raids. East coast towns of Scarborough, Hartlepool and Whitby shelled by German cruisers and several people were killed. Churches and buildings were badly damaged. Strict censorship prevents the full details from being known. The people thought at first that the firing was the British practicing.

Two German cruisers are reported sunk. British squadron engaged the raiders which can hardly escape. A strict censorship prevails at the east coast cities.

Despatches from Berlin say that the German war office practically admits that the second advance on Warsaw has been a failure.

Eight more Germans were brought to Fort Henry from Montreal by Major W. E. Date, assistant provost-marshal.

Children's Rockers, $3.00, $4.00, $4.50. Robt. J. Reid's.

More than $1,000,000 was lost and hundreds of persons driven from their homes by a series of fires throughout Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn and Queen, New York Monday.
