SPOKE ON BOYS' WORK TO THE KIWANIS

Major C. H. Brickland, Ontario, Inspector of Neglected and Dependent Children.

The Kiwanis Club held a special evening meeting at the Frontenac Hotel on Monday when Major C. H. Brickland, inspector of neglected and dependent children under the department of the provincial secretary, told the members about boys' work in general and about the Bowmanville Boys' Farm in particular.

The Bowmanville School has long been a cherished project of such service clubs as Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions, etc., and Mr. Brickland announced that two buildings have now been erected to near completion and that in June next a good nucleus of the whole school should be in working order, while by the end of 1925 the school is expected to be completely finished. A resident of Bowmanville left $10,000 for the project and the first tract of land consisted of 150 acres.

From the range of his wide experience the speaker outlined the child problem in general. He told of many cases where terms in penal institutions had been changed to nature of boys and girls and put them on a more road to crime and wrongdoing. In most cases the parents are to blame and they go spot-free. The Juvenile Courts have done a great deal to help out in this respect for under them the parents are arraigned and the child is considered principally as a witness unless the case be particularly bad and the offense a repetition.

"There is no such thing as an incorrigible boy," said Major Brickland. Without mentioning names he quoted many prominent cases in which boys called "incorrigible" had been given a fresh opportunity in proper surroundings and had made good. He could tell of a bank manager in a large city who had thus been saved and was not ashamed to admit the fact.

Two of the most important things for the new Bowmanville institution were the parole board which would decide when a boy might go out into the world and a vocational school in connection where useful occupations might be taught to the young lads taken in charge.

The plan is to have several buildings, each presided over by a "father and mother." The right kind of people for this work will be secured and the whole institution will be governed by a board of which will be representatives of the various service clubs and the Ontario Government.

A hundred and one interesting features of the subject were outlined by the speaker, who is himself a Kiwanian and a member of the Guelph Kiwanis club.

The vote of thanks was moved by Harry Wilder and well-chosen and sincere remarks and seconded by Stewart Crawford.

Lively discussion resulted when "Paddy" Burns presented the commendation of the executive that, instead of paying $200 a year
