CANADIAN FARMER ENJOYS ADVANTAGE

Tenants Occupy 8 Per Cent. of Farms, Against 38 Per Cent. in U.S.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—"In spite of certain real difficulties with which he is faced today, the Canadian farmer enjoys certain clear advantages over his brother in the United States," stated Hon. Thomas A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, this morning.

"Canada enjoys an advantage," continued Hon. Mr. Low, "in the number of owners on her farms. No less than 38 per cent. of the United States farms are occupied by tenants, as against only 8 per cent. in Canada. Ownership gives the occupant a more permanent interest in the land and community than any form of lease, as well as a greater interest in the welfare of the soil, and a broader view of his agriculture than immediate profit, quick returns, exhaustion of the farm and transfer to another holding."

At present there are 711,090 farms in Canada, as compared with 6,448,343 in the United States. The average farm in the American Republic is 148 acres, while 198 acres represents the average in this country; but the value, however, is in reverse proportion, the Canadian holding being valued at $9,263, and the United States one at $12,084.

The net agricultural production per farm in Canada, with 1920 figures as a basis, averaged $2,136, compared with an average of $1,703 in the United States. On the basis of all farms, the average expenditure for labor was $185 in this country, and $210 on the other side of the boundary.
