The Mercury Again Drops
Below the Zero Mark

"I guess it's too cold to go to church," is getting to be the regular story, and the Weatherman certainly gives the household every excuse to stay home and nurse the radiator.
Saturday evening at eight o'clock the temperature was a mild 26, but in the next eight hours it had dropped to 2 below zero. The mercury stirred around the zero mark all day and at eight o'clock Monday morning, according to the official readings at the Queen's observatory, was only 3 above. The coal dealer and ice man were observed shaking hands together.

The Courts Must Decide.

J. J. Kelso, provincial superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, has written the local society to the effect that he approves of the action of the local agent, who says that the request of Ambrose Shea, who asked that a child, which is now a ward of the Children's Aid Society, be turned over to the mother, must be settled by the courts.

Death of Owen Sound Citizen.

Owen Sound, Jan. 12.—William Taylor, a prominent citizen of Owen Sound for many years, and past president of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, died suddenly here this morning at his home, the result, it is believed, of heart attack. He was in his sixty-fourth year.

Pioneer Druggist Dead.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—John James Harrison, aged seventy-nine, graduate of Kingston Military College and pioneer druggist in this city, died on Saturday after a lengthy illness. Four sons survive him.

An attempt was made on the life of the Japanese premier in Tokio. The would-be assassin was captured. A noiseless airplane has been developed by British engineers.

PASTOR'S MAID MURDERED.

Found on Knees at Bedside—Flance Is Held.

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 12.—Melva Glenn, aged 22, a servant in the home of Dr. J. Layton Mause, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, was beaten to death while saying her prayers at her bedside before retiring Friday night. She was to have been married Saturday.

The body was found still in the kneeling position at her bedside in her little apartment over the Mause garage by her fiancé, Marvin Williams, aged 22, who said that he had gone to the girl's room because "the spirits had said something terrible had happened."

Williams went to the Mause home and Mrs. Mause called the police. He was placed under arrest.

Police said they believe that jealousy was probably the motive, but so far they knew of no other man who was in love with the girl. One more theory that is being traced down is that the girl was murdered by another girl who had been jilted by Williams.

Man and Woman Wounded
In Fusillade of Shots

New York, Jan. 12.—Two persons, a man and a woman, were in serious condition in hospital to-day after being wounded last night in a fusillade of shots exchanged between four robbers and a single policeman who sought to capture the robbers after they had held up a restaurant. The seriously wounded are Mrs. Bertha Fuerrer, part owner of the restaurant, and Mario Agliardotto, a street cleaner.

The conspiracy charges against the Home Bank directors will be adjourned until the spring assizes.

Britain will ask France and Italy to pay one-fourth of their war debts.

FACES A POLITICAL CRISIS
The latest photo of Mussolini, Fascist chief and premier of Italy, that has just arrived in this country, does not show him very worried. It also shows that many of his countrymen are his enthusiastic supporters. The picture was taken on his arrival by motor in Milan.
