BEWARE OF THE PATH TROD BY NARCISSUS

Young People Are Advised Not to Cultivate Their Bodies Only.

London, Feb. 10.—Discouragement of what was termed the gladiatorial spirit, which has been reported creeping into the British schools, was urged recently by Dr. H. Crichton Miller in an address to members of the British Association of Physical Training on the subject of "Hygiene for Adolescents." Educationalists, he said, sought simplification of life in generalizations, and the physical training expert was liable to believe that everybody needed physical training. Dr. Miller, however, did not believe this to be universally true, and there were certain youths for whom physical training was bad.

Referring to Greek mythology, Dr. Miller spoke of Narcissus who fell in love with his own reflection in the waters of a spring. There were Narcissians to-day who made themselves the object of their own love and who cultivated their own bodies to an extent which was actually dangerous. He challenged the generalizations on which he said many physical culturists based their enthusiasm. Dr. Miller contended that generations hence self confidence among school boys would be based entirely upon the values of intellect and character.

To-day the physical animal factor predominated, and consequently a great many adolescent boys were going wrong in their character development owing to their physical make up.

Dr. Miller advised the association members not to think merely in terms of chest expansion when dealing with individual requirements of their pupils, but rather of character.

"We have here in London a stadium accommodating 120,000 persons which has been used for a boxing match that was all over in 60 seconds," asserted the speaker. "This should furnish us something to think about. Even in schools, the way in which watching a game of football is considered as part of school loyalty far greater than playing the game, is a serious tendency."

CLAIMS SWEETHEART HAD BEEN HANGED

Young Sussex Farmer Says He Dismembered Body and Buried Remains.

London, Feb. 10.—Norman Thorne, the young poultry farmer of Crowborough, Sussex, has been committed for trial at the Sussex assizes, on a charge of murdering his sweetheart, Elsie Cameron, the London typist, whose dismembered body was found buried in the chicken run on Thorne's property almost one month ago. She disappeared from her home at Kendal Rise, on December 5th last, and a wide-spread investigation by officers from Scotland Yard resulted in the finding of her body and the arrest of Thorne.

In the course of the preliminary investigation by the police magistrate at Crowborough, a statement, alleged to have been made by Thorne, was read in which it was stated, that Miss Cameron had arrived at his hut unexpectedly, saying that she would stay there until he married her. He went out to find accommodation for her and visited several of his friends in the village, and when he returned, he found Miss Cameron's body hanging from a beam by the wash-line.

He cut the body down and lay beside it on a table for one hour, then he went to fetch a doctor and police, but realizing his position, he returned to the hut and by the light of the fire sawed off the legs and head, and buried them in the chicken run at dawn.

The prosecuting solicitor said that since he became engaged to Miss Cameron the accused made the acquaintance of a Crowborough girl, with whom he discussed marriage and settling down in the United States. He told her that he wanted to break the engagement with Miss Cameron, but that she was so neurotic, he feared she would commit suicide if he did so.

A number of pathetic letters from the girl to Thorne revealed that the young typist thought she was in a delicate condition and urged him to marry her. She asked him to terminate his acquaintance with the Crowborough girl, as she had first claim on him and her baby had to have a name. A letter from Thorne to Miss Cameron was also read, in which he told her that another girl had visited his hut on several occasions late at night. This girl, he said, thought he was going to marry her and he had a strong feeling for her.

Sir Bernard Spilsbury, well-known pathologist, stated that he had examined the remains of Miss Cameron and that he had not found any evidence that she was in delicate condition. He was of the opinion that the girl had died from shock, as the result of injuries to her head and body. Death certainly had not been by hanging.

English Mayor Likens Trade Advertising to Courting a Girl

Blackburn, Eng., Feb. 10.—Trade is won by constant advertising just as a girl can only be won by consistent courting, in the opinion of James Stanworth, mayor of this town.

"You must offer the right kind of goods and keep on calling," he said. "If you want to win a girl you must start with a good character. Keep advocating your claims. Your shy man is in danger of being headed off by a rival and even if he wins temporarily he may lose in the end if he is not genuine."

"It is just the same in business. No advertising campaign can make a permanent success of a commodity or service that is not good and that is not worth the price paid for it."

He's Ninety-five But Has No Time to Waste

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 10.—A 95-year-old man has no time to waste, is the opinion of Ezra Meeker, trail blazer, who in the early days crossed the plains in a covered wagon and recently went over the same route in an airplane.

Mr. Meeker visited a newspaper office here recently and inquired for a friend. He was asked to wait for him half an hour. "Good gracious," answered Mr. Meeker, "I'm 95 years old and I have no half hours to spare."

ELECTION DECLARED VOID.

Absentee Vote Irregularities in Dewdney, B.C.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 10.—Election of J. A. Catherwood, Conservative, in Dewdney Riding, in the recent provincial election, was declared void to-day, under the Constitution Act.

Irregularities in the handling of absentee ballots was the ground on which Justice D. A. McDonald granted the petition of Maxwell Smith, Liberal candidate, for upsetting the election.

CHAPLINS REUNITED.

Negotiations Dropped For Financial Settlement.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 10.—Charlie Chaplin and his sixteen-year-old wife, Lita, have smoothed over the marital differences and harmony now reigns in the fun king's household, according to Mrs. Lillian Spicer, mother of the bride.

The reported negotiations for a financial settlement have been dropped, according to Mrs. Spicer, who left Chaplin's Beverly Hills mansion to-day and took a house in Whittier Heights.

DYING MAN PINS NOTE TO COLLAR OF HIS DOG

Body Found in Hay Loft with the Dog Keeping Vigil.

Prescott, Feb. 10.—Devotion to his master prompted a dog owned by Patrick Keely, aged seventy-four, a farmer residing near the village of Lowville, not to desert him, although he lay dying in a hay loft in his barn. When found the dog was near his master, whose body was discovered in the hay. Attached to the dog's collar was a note on which was scribbled, "Come to me; I am dying." It is believed that the man was stricken while at work in the barn and had been dead some time, as the stock showed evidence of having been without food and water for many hours.

CRASH THROUGH PRISON GATES.

Five Prisoners Escape From Michigan State Penitentiary.

Jackson, Mich., Feb. 10.—Boarding a small switch engine used in the Chelsea cement plant, five convicts made their escape from the Michigan State Prison here late Saturday, when they pulled the throttle wide open and sent the locomotive crashing through the iron gates guarding the plant. The five still are at liberty.

The crash was heard by guards just as the 650 convicts in the big prison were entering the mess hall for their evening meal. While some herded the prisoners into the building others rushed for the opening in the gates to forestall any efforts by the main body of the prisoners to make a break for freedom.

The convicts who escaped were nearly all long-term men.

German Colleges Report Decrease in Registration

Leipzig, Feb. 10.—Educational statistics for German universities covering a period of ten years show an increase of women students; a falling off in total enrollments, and a neglect of the ministry.

The women of to-day are about twice as numerous as they were in 1914; 7,467 as against 4,056. After the war a large number of young people rushed blindly to the schools, many of them unfit for university work; these have now departed, and attendance is becoming normal. Medical and theological schools report great declines, the attendance to-day being less than half what it was ten years ago.

No Famines in Ireland.

Dublin, Feb. 10.—An authoritative statement was made by a high official of the Free State local government department concerning the distress in the west of Ireland. The government of the Free State anticipated the distress in the west in consequence of the failure of the potato crop and began its relief in December. Undoubtedly there is much privation west of the Shannon, and the people are existing in conditions which are below the normal standard even for the west, but a representative of the local government minister declared with emphasis that there was nothing to justify the use of the word famine.
