DO YOU REMEMBER?

Incidents of Days Long Ago That Old Kingston Boys Will Likely Recall

The recalling of the past is a delightful thing among elderly citizens, and the publication in the Whig of local history, has created much interest. "J. H. J." has written another set of "Do You Remember," which will appeal to those living here during the past half century. Here they are:

Bill Christy the whitewasher?

Jimmy Watts the carter and the night he got married when the boys pounded the boiler in Gardiner's biscuit factory until the whole neighborhood and the police were called to the spot?

McCammon's field and slaughter house on Division street?

The fire in Varney's grocery store where Chalmer's church now stands?

When St. Mary's cathedral bell rang for all fires?

When there was horse racing on Princess street in winter time?

The old quarry pond where Collingwood street now runs and where we used to skate?

Alderman Tompkins who for fifteen years was representative of Victoria ward? He was better known as "Bob" and kept a store on the corner of Barrie and Earl streets.

The Turks who kept a curiosity store on the corner of Princess and Sydenham streets? It was full of all kinds of animals.

The bridge on Princess street above Alfred and the stream where we used to sail boats?

The fire at Burgess' dry good store on Princess street where Martin's meat store now is?

The fire on the corner of Barrie and Stuart streets in frame houses where Waldron's residence now stands?

The semi-professional baseball teams in 1887 when the people of the city were baseball mad? The two teams were the Park Nine and the Kingstons. The Park Nine grounds were on the space now occupied by Aberdeen street and were opened on May 24th, 1887. The Kingstons grounds were in the space between the Christian Brothers school and the Hotel Dieu. All the houses on Brock street and Johnson street have been built since that time.

The fire in Varney's grocery store where Chalmer's church now stands?

When St. Mary's cathedral bell rang for all fires?

When there was horse racing on Princess street in winter time?

The old quarry pond where Collingwood street now runs and where we used to skate?

Alderman Tompkins who for fifteen years was representative of Victoria ward? He was better known as "Bob" and kept a store on the corner of Barrie and Earl streets.

Italian Village Believed Crushed Under Landslide

Rome, Feb. 23.—Volunteers are searching for the village of Oslato near Spiluga Pass. It is feared that this little cluster of houses and all its inhabitants have been crushed in the landslides which have crashed down the mountain sides with the last week.

Snow in the Pass is nine feet deep. A squad of custom men have not returned to their barracks since Saturday. It is feared that they perished in the fierce snow-storm, that swept the Pass during the week-end.

Foul Play Suspected.

Montreal, Feb. 23.—The disappearance of Richard MacBriere Smith, aged thirty-nine, a native of Charlottetown, P.E.I., is engaging the attention of the authorities here. Smith, who is assistant superintendent of Crawley, McCracken Company Limited chain of camps at Kirkland Lake, disappeared on Feb. 5th. He had a hundred dollars in his possession and foul play is feared.

TALL WINDOWS ACCENTUATED

If you want to give your windows the feeling of height and austerity, especially in a low-ceilinged wall, hang curtains as they are shown here. The curtains are tall and narrow, and the draperies are narrowed down between each set of curtains. Even the high-backed chair adds to the atmosphere of tallness.

To clean rubber gloves wash them in cold water and then boil from two to five minutes, but not longer or you will weaken the rubber.

Keep all the holes in all the gas-burners clean. If food boils over remove the burners and clean by boiling in a soda solution.

White kid mules embroidered in color and bound with white fur are most delightfully feminine.

Child Bit Curling Iron.

Toronto, Feb. 23.—A victim of a peculiar accident, Jackie Griffin, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Griffin, lies in a serious condition at the Hospital for Sick Children. The child bit the cord of an electric curling tong, sustaining severe burns to his mouth. He received a heavy shock and it required two minutes to pull the cord from the child's mouth. A sister turned the electric light switch off.

Several blood transfusions have been given in an effort to save his life, and it is now thought he will recover.

Calico prints in silk are very popular for coat linings and for straight slip dresses to be worn under the coats.

MOST ACCIDENTS PREVENTABLE; SAFETY EDUCATION BADLY NEEDED

By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift

Lack of care which leads to accidents is productive of many forms of waste. Even human lives are often sacrificed on the altar of improper precautions.

A man who is affiliated with one of the nation's leading construction organizations recently made a statement that is worthy of more than passing attention. He stated that in connection with building operations 75 per cent of all accidents are preventable. He also said that out of all preventable mishaps in that field of activity only 20 to 25 per cent can be prevented through mechanical devices. The remaining 75 to 80 per cent of all preventable accidents in connection with building work can be forestalled only by education.

What is true in building operations is true in greater or less degree in all lines of work. The construction industry is, according to some statistics, responsible for about 18 per cent of all accidents. It is safe to say that the percentage of preventability does not differ greatly in different lines of occupation. What an enormous field for the prevention of fatalities and the elimination of waste lies within the domain of education! Safety and thrift are closely allied. It is just as advisable to take no risks physically as it is to take no risks financially. Don't take chances with yourself or with your money. Recklessness is a flagrant violation of true thrift.
