FORCED FEEDING OF PORTSMOUTH CONVICT

Foreigner Who Was Caught Shopbreaking Has Not Eaten for Over a Year.

For over a year he has been on hunger strike and enduring forced feeding in the Portsmouth penitentiary. He is a foreigner who was caught shopbreaking and in making a bolt from the police was shot in the leg. On being examined at the hospital he was found to have about eighty dollars on him which was taken from him by the authorities. That fact constitutes his grievance. "You may hang me, you may cut my throat but you no make me eat," he reiterates day after day. "In this country there is no justice. Policeman he shoot me and then rob me. For that I no eat."

When he first went on hunger strike in February 1924, it was thought that he would soon have enough of that peculiar method of revolt, but when his weight had gone down from 140 to 90 pounds it was seen that something must at once be done and forced feeding was resorted to and has been continued without interruption ever since. He now weighs 160 pounds.

He has been examined by the psychiatrist who pronounces him rational in every way. Neither reasoning nor confinement nor corporal punishment have the slightest effect in altering his determination. "I am not a gypsy to change my mind," he says proudly. He is convinced that an injustice has been done and until it is made right he will not yield.
