THE CLIMAX OF THE KING

The International Sunday School Lesson for March 22nd, 1925, is: "The Forty Days and the Ascension."—Luke 24:13-53.

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

A penetrating phrase from a letter while He was blessing them. He part by St. Peter speaks of persons who are "blind, seeing only that which is near." That describes the mass of us who cannot discern things in their relationships. Every great event has great consequences, and the shrewd person perceives its implications, as well as its immediate reality.

The fact of the resurrection of Jesus cannot be understood at all until its consequences also are realized. If the resurrection of Jesus be a reality, then it is fraught with tremendous consequences to mankind that words fail us to describe it adequately. Clearly, if Jesus could rise from the dead, then it is possible also for us to rise from the dead. Paul is both logical and philosophical in making his teaching of a personal immortality contingent upon the resurrection of Jesus. If all the bonds that have bound humanity have been broken, and if death, the last great conqueror of the race has been mastered by Christ, then a new order of affairs entirely has entered into human life.

The New King's Imperialism. The resurrection fact is inadequate without the resurrection programme. Jesus proved His authority by His ascendancy over death. He had demonstrated the possibility of a new and risen life. Now we find Him, in the present lesson, issuing directions to His followers as to the manner in which the new life is to be lived. The former teachings of Christ were all touched with a new luminosity by this new truth of the resurrection. It also made necessary certain special instructions to the men who were to carry on the work of Jesus. The Master was mounting His throne: what was to be His policy for His kingdom?

The flaming conquests of Mohammed and his immediate successors are one of the wonders of history. Yet they are easily understood. Since his followers believed him to be God's latest and fullest Prophet, then it was incumbent upon them to carry his revelation to the uttermost man they could reach. In a far greater sense, if Jesus Christ be the Son of God, the mankind's only Redeemer, then all the world must be told the good news; and no other concern in life becomes so important as the bearing of this message.

The imperialism of Christianity dates from the resurrection. The world programme of Christ was laid down after He had broken the bonds of death. His fullest and final instructions to His disciples were imparted from this side of the tomb. The work of winning all men to Him is bound up with the kingship of Christ. As runs the old saying, "Christ will not be Lord at all, unless He can be Lord in all."

A Dead or a Living Lord? We have come to the splendid climax of the career of Christ; a climax essential to the completion of all that has gone before. Christianity could not be founded on a closed tomb. A dead Christ would have been an anticlimax and a failure—even though he would have met all the conditions of the people who regard Jesus as merely an example and a teacher. For the completion of His mission and triumph of His message, Jesus logically had to be the living and the reigning Christ. So after an interval of forty days, during which He had shown Himself alive by "many infallible proofs," the hour of ascension came.

Let us get the event of the Ascension clearly in mind as it appears in the inspired record. Luke, that best of all historians, narrates it most fully, and we shall read his brief account with which his gospel closes. To make the story more vivid we shall quote from the New Testament in modern speech. Dr. Weymouth's version, which is so near to the original Greek.

"And He brought them out to with-in view of Bethany, and then lifted up His hands and blessed them. And Holding Revival Services. Moscow, March 18.—The roads here are clearing off and cars are running again. Several of the farmers have tapped their trees and report good result. The next meeting of the Woman's Institute will be held at Mrs. George Jackson's, Colebrook, on April 2nd.

A number are enjoying the splendid radio programmes. Rev. Harry Parry, Newmarket, Ont., is holding revival services in the Friends' church this week.

Miss Pearl L. Zink, Baras Corner, N.S., writes—"I was awfully troubled with my liver, and used to get such dizzy spells I would have to sit down while I was doing my work.

In the morning, when I used to get up, my tongue was coated and I had a bad taste in my mouth and often times, throughout the day, I was troubled with pains in my stomach.

I suffered in this way until a friend of mine who had used your told me of having taken them, so I decided to try them, and I can truthfully say that they certainly did me a lot of good.

A New Life Source. Wrapped up in the truth of the Ascension is the other truth of the life of the Christian church. She gets her power not from her organization, or from her leaders—of whom, alas, there is such a scarcity—but from the risen Christ himself, "who ever liveth to make intercession." The New Testament is inwrought with the tremendous teaching that this new organization of believers, which Christ left behind to carry on His work, is qualified and equipped and empowered by His own life. The strength of the Church is simply the strength of her King residing in her—"Christ in you the hope of glory." Apart from this indwelling life of the risen Christ in His Church, there is no power in her and no hope for the world. The Church is the instrument of Christ.

"We are but organs mute, till a master touches the keys—Harp are we, silent harps that have hung on the willow trees, Dumb till our heartstrings swell and break with a pulse divine."

Where Democracy Cannot Prevail There is no need greater than that Christians should be dominated by the conviction that Jesus Christ still lives and reigns. The faith of many has been clouded. What may be said to me?

"All authority is given unto me." So rang the words of Christ ere He ascended to the seat of highest authority. They never were so true as today. The King is upon His throne in highest heaven. His plans may be inscrutable but they are certain to be carried out. He makes the wrath of man to praise Him.

The Kingdom of Heaven is not a democracy but an absolute monarchy. We need to remind ourselves of this at times. God is supreme. He is not constrained to explain His ways to man. He is working out Kingdom plans that are vaster than our power of comprehension. With Him a thousand years are as a day. His Kingdom is coming as surely as He is King. Dimly we may discern the providences of present events. We can only, however, think God's thoughts after Him and sometimes afar off.

The New World's Programme. The simple fact is that the hour has struck for a new and waster programme of Christianity. The organized Church of our day has come to a crisis. The ecclesiastical programme and methods have almost broken down. Even the Church is turning in repugnance from the ecclesiastical politicians who have sapped so much of her life and perverted her clear and simple purposes. Machinery and organization and world by methods have in good part thwarted the godly devotion of the rank and file of the Church.

Now this world tumult has shaken the human race into a new sense of unity and interdependence. Old complacencies have been shattered. Old provincialisms have disappeared. Men are gaining a new, vast comprehensive sense of the whole world.

The world today is rising to the level of the real Kingdom conception. Pica-yune policies must pass away. The im-mensity of the world needs will newly dominate human thinking. Our own nation will be shaped more and more to the needs of humanity.

In this hour the ascension of Christ means nothing less than the ascension of the Church to a new plane of life and service. As the great tower of the Church of the Ascension on Mount Olivet dominates a wide landscape, so the work and worship and life of the church must be dominated by this larger conception of Christ's thought for His people. The King's command is to be executed in more kingly fashion.

to be executed in more kingly fashion. tored to Parham today. Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Huffman are in Ottawa, also Mrs. Foster, attending the convention.
