THINKS IT UNFAIR TO FORCE THEM OUT

Head of Local Chinese Community Gives His Opinion Regarding Laundry By-law

"What do the Chinese think of the laundry by-law?" a Whig representative inquired of Mr. Peter Lee, proprietor of the Grand Cafe and head of the local Chinese.

Mr. Lee's reply was at first somewhat non-committal until he had felt out the interviewer and found that he was not hostile to the Chinese point of view. Then he began to talk clearly and to good purpose.

When foreigners come out to China, he pointed out, they are given entirely a free hand and many of them grow very rich out of the Chinese people and go home to live comfortably the rest of their lives. Why is it, then, that other people find it necessary to restrict and confine the Chinese in so many ways? A great many people in Canada seem to think that China is made up entirely of restaurants and laundries. It would surprise such people to visit the country and see the great corporations and stores which are entirely Chinese. But when Chinese come here there are only a few trades open to them; and at the laundry business only the hardest work day and night for six and seven days a week can make it pay. The laundrymen have no comforts or pleasures. They are not allowed to bring their wives here. All they can do is work and hoard until they gather enough to go back to China.

If Kingston doesn't want any more Chinese to come, all right. There are plenty of other cities in which the newcomers can settle. But to take their business away from men who have been working here for years would not be fair. They work hard for a living and why should people around them say "Get out of here." If somebody starts a story about a laundry, everybody around will sign the petition to have it go. This is not right. Laundries are necessary. They do not bother people. If Kingston doesn't want more Chinese it is easy to keep them out, but to throw Chinese out of businesses which they have built up, especially to do so on the basis of a petition, is not fair.

WOULD ENCOURAGE STUDY OF GRAMMAR

In High Schools by Scholarships—Advice of Prof. John Macgillivray.

In his address before the Ontario Educational Association at Toronto on Thursday, Prof. John Macgillivray of Queen's, commenting on the excessive teaching of French in the schools, said it might be better for women's organizations to encourage the study of English and English grammar by scholarships. "We get students at Queen's after matriculation from the schools who cannot spell and who write and speak such sentences as 'I have wrote', and have not any knowledge of grammatical terminology. The government, I believe, offers a travelling bursary to teachers of modern languages which is, of course, an excellent thing, provided it is not limited to France alone. Holders of it should divide their time between France and Germany. Dr. Macgillivray even foresaw the possibility of France's being our enemy in the near future as "often in the past." French special alliances, unpaid debts, the huge French army, sea and air fleets and the feverish efforts of the British to bring their air feet up to the French standard, may be all meant to uphold liberty and justice, but if the study of foreign languages is to depend on foreign relations, those facts and possibilities might cool our ardor for the excessive study of French and give us pause.

"A foreign language as a high school or college study is not for bilingual, but primarily for educative and cultural purposes, then to some extent for practical uses. These purposes are attained first through the study of the language and then of the literature by means of the language." As possessing such values, the high German language is unexcelled among modern cultural languages.

"The language of a foreign or rival people should not on that account be ignored, rather should it be studied all the more. Nor should the language of an allied people be

FINE WINDOW DISPLAYS FOR SALE OF RAZORS

Whirlwind Campaign Is Attracting a Great Deal of Attention in Kingston.

The big sale of the Valet Auto Strop razors, which commenced in Kingston on Thursday, is attracting a great deal of attention.

A special feature of the sale is the very attractive window displays in the local stores handling the razors. A list of these stores appeared in the Whig on Thursday. Each store has put forth an extra effort to place the goods in a prominent place, and many complimentary remarks have been heard regarding the various displays.

Attention is again drawn to the fact that these razors are selling at forty-five cents to the people in the city, and fifty-nine cents to people living outside the city, the extra ten cents being charged to cover the cost of mailing. Coupons appear in the advertisement in the Whig, and if these are filled out and forwarded to the Whig office, the razors will be forwarded to any address.

WILL SEND HIS WIFE IF UNABLE TO COME

Old Boys of New York And Lindsay Will Try Hard to be Here for Celebration.

Mr. George A. Little, who is located in Lindsay, and who is among the "old boys" of Kingston, has written the Whig stating that he is looking forward to visiting Kingston during the Old Boys' Week and hopes to have a real good time while he is here. Mr. Little left Kingston in 1884 and is now owner of a large book and stationery store in Lindsay where he is doing very well.

A letter has been received from Rev. T. D. Allen, of New York City, in which he states that he may not be able to attend the Old Boys' celebration here in August but he states that his wife will be here at any rate. Rev. Mr. Allen and Mrs. Allen have received much of the news of the details of the celebration and they are very enthusiastic about its success and express the wish that it will be successful in every way.

studied out of proportion to its real value. The German people are industrious, methodical, inventive and imaginative. They have produced some of the greatest of world literature, many of the greatest inventions. After six years of peace Germany is recovering much of its former pre-eminence.

German, he said, is at present anything but a popular study in the secondary schools, and the reasons are not far back to seek.

LETTERS To The Editor

Our Unjust Taxation.
Toronto, April 14.—(To the Editor): You are quite right in accusing the present government of being reckless in its increase of taxation. But the most serious consideration is not the amount of the taxation but the inequitable imposition of the taxes.

The burden of a weight depends not merely on the number of pounds, but also on its location. Place a load of ten or twenty pounds on the top of my shoulders, and I may carry it all day, without noticing it; but if you compel me to carry that same load at the end of my outstretched arm, you will break me down in a few minutes. It is just the same in taxation.

The value of the land in this city, Toronto, is placed by our assessor at about $350,000,000; but as the assessment is only about sixty per cent. of the market value, we may estimate the true value at nearly $600,000,000, on which the rental at five per cent. will amount to nearly $30,000,000 yearly, and the estimates of the expenses of the city amount to about the same sum. The figures given by the government by no means represents the true burden on the real tax payers.

If I owned the best acre in the centre of this city, I could collect a rental of possibly a quarter of a million dollars yearly, for which I need not lift a finger. I would get product without producing, benefit without burden. I would be one of the everlasting exempt. The support of government would not cost me the burden of an hour.

From the man with the horny hand and the sweat of the face would come, as by an insensible perspiration, the dollars absorbed by the government. On industry falls the double burden, the support of government and the support of a landed aristocracy.

Brotherhood, says the preacher, brotherhood, says the Bible; brotherhood was emphatic in the teaching of Jesus Christ. Millionaire and tramp are the fruit of our method of taxation.

We build our churches, we establish our missions, we pile up our charities; we pray for the coming of the kingdom, we repeat: "Whatever things are just: think of those things;" then when we come to impose taxation, we pass by these holy principles, just as faithfully as the priest and Levite, so graphically described by Christ.

When we learn how to tax right,
