They're Off!
They're off! What a beautiful sight they make,
These teams that are after the flag!
In the summer's heat they will sweat and bake
As they struggle to capture the rag.
And oh! How our hearts will be down in our shoes
When the team we are rooting for happens to lose!
And who will deny us hilarious grins
When our favorite nine comes through—and wins!

They're off! And we're with them from now till fall!
In spirit we're one of the team;
From breakfast till bed-time we'll talk baseball,
And of it at night we will dream.
And oh! 'Twill be hard to work on the job
When we'd rather be rooting for Hornsby or Cobb;
But we'll sit down at night and read over the score—
That is, if the wife doesn't find some darned chore!

Among those who motored to Brockville yesterday for the nurses graduation and opening of the new nurses home at St. Vincent de Paul hospital were Rev. Fathers Hanley and Ryan and Misses Nellie and Minnie Hanley.

Jack O'Brien has returned after spending the Easter holidays with Watertown friends.

The military euchre in the Lyceum on Wednesday evening last, given by Miss Nellie Hanley, was one of the biggest successes of the season. Over sixty tables were in play, and as this was the first military euchre given in Gananoque, it created a great deal of interest. At the close of the euchre dancing was indulged in for a couple of hours excellent violin and piano music being kindly supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Betts of Kingston, and Mrs. Lipman, Gananoque. The prize winners for the euchre were: Mrs. Kirk, Miss Elsie Battams, Mrs. Betts, Mrs. Stevens, M. Messrs. Charles and Ose Lapan have completed a cement dam for Mrs. Sarah Greer and a sidewalk for Dr. Bradley. Miss Lucia Jack, who has been ill, is convalescent.

The congregation in St. John's church was unusually large on Easter Day, when the Easter communion was celebrated. Bright Easter hymns were sung and during the offertory, Mr. Fred Mitchell sang a very appropriate solo. The celebrant was the rector, Rev. Cecil Winter, who preached with Christ, "seek those things which are above." The number of communicants exceeded those of previous years, as also did the offertory. The flowers on the altar, tulips, carnations, daffodils and hyacinths, looked beautiful. The rector announced that the vestry festive would be held on Monday, 20th inst., in Mr. E. E. Johnston's hall, and urged all the parishioners to be present and take an interest in the affairs which concerned the church's welfare. Easter services were held in Warburton at 8 a.m., Rockport 3 p.m. and Escott at 7.30 p.m.

GIRL GUIDES HOLD A SALE AND CONCERT

In St. John's Hall at Portsmouth—The Affair Was a Great Success.

The second Kingston company held a very successful sale and concert in St. John's Sunday school hall, Portsmouth, on Wednesday afternoon and evening. Mrs. Scally, captain of the company officiated, welcoming the visitors and advising the Guides. During the afternoon tea was served by a number of Guides assisted by their mothers, and a drill was put on by the company under Lieut. J. MacIver, Lieut. Duncan assisted at the ice-cream table. Mrs. Dyer received at the door and the other mothers who assisted at the various tables were Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Granger, Mrs. Hartrick. The fish-pond was a great success. The candy, home-made, and fancy work tables were a tribute to the Guides for they contributed a great deal of the material themselves.

The programme in the evening was a splendid success. Reeve Halliday acted as chairman and in a short address highly commended the work of the company under their efficient captain. The concert commenced by the raising of the flag by the company.

The color-party consisted of Color-bearer Freda Hartrick and Escorts Jean Ross and Viola McFarlane. Lieut. J. MacIver gave the commands. As the flag floated out the Guides saluted and while at the salute sang "The King." The color-party then retired and the Guides sang "The Spring Song," accompanied by Mrs. Lacey. The Guides looked very smart and Guide-like in their neat uniforms. Mr. Marshall, in Scotch costume, sang a couple of Scotch songs and told his jokes in his usual inimitable manner. Edwin Strachan gave a number of Scotch violin selections and was loudly applauded. Miss J. Duncan, also in Scotch costume, gave two dances which were greatly appreciated. Miss Verna Saunders, a captain in one of the city companies, sang very sweetly in a couple of well chosen songs. Misses Mildred Mitchell and Gladys McMaster gave a dialogue entitled "The Bending of the Twig." Several of the Guides presented the play "The Guide Law." Freda Hartrick acted the part of "Pandora," Violet Bowen, "Guide Law," Madele Forsythe "The Spirit of Temptation," and the following were spirits of rudeness, disobedience, etc.: Misses Daisy Bowers, Agnes Kincaid, Agnes Cook, Miriam Hartrick, Gloria Somerville, Doris Smith, Jean Ross, Lois McMaster, Marjory Dyer.

Other items on the programme were, a dance by Helen St. Pierre, a recitation by Mildred Mitchell, a piano duet by Miriam Hartrick and Marjory Dyer. During intermission ice-cream and candy were sold. Mrs. Bogart and a number of the Guide committee were at the concert and spoke very highly of the work of the company.

The Guides were all on the platform for the lowering of the colors and sang the round "A Southerly Wind." The concert was closed by the singing of "Taps" and a vote of thanks to Mrs. Scally by the Guides and to those who had helped by the officers.
