LETTERS To The Editor

Before Murray Tower Was Built.
Kingston, April 20.—(To the Editor): With reference to the article in the Whig of the 18th inst. headed "Murray Tower" the following information may be of interest to your readers in helping them to visualize to some extent what the locality looked like close on a hundred years ago.

Some years ago the writer was informed by the late John Moxon, merchant and stove manufacturer of Picton, that his birthplace and boyhood home had been situated on the north section of what is now known as Macdonald park. Among his earliest recollections was that of standing on the shore with his mother in the early thirties watching the ships "Mohawk" and "Cherokee" break the ice in the spring. His father was a captain of dragoons and a butcher, and held lease of the property from the military authorities. The house in which they lived was situated between the present bathing pavilion and bandstand, a vacant house standing along the shore towards Emily street. Besides these there was a compound surrounded by tall pickets, with slaughter house and stables attached, nearer to King street. There was also a garden with fruit trees and bushes. In the vicinity of the present band stand and on a line with foot of Barrie street was a block house. The whole piece of land was surrounded with a rail fence with gateways leading from King street. He stated that a low stone wall divided the point of land, and on the south or smaller part was a small house occupied by a man named King. There were fruit trees in this section also.

Towards the corner of King and Emily streets he said were a number of oak trees, and here gathered at different times Indians to whom blankets and other things were issued. The land now comprising the City park was used as an artillery parade grounds, and across this he went to school in the vicinity of Sydenham street Methodist church, to what he termed "the old line barracks," where a Miss Mason taught the girls and a Mr. Hamilton the boys.

He mentioned there were a few small houses on the park side of Barrie street near King, while at the southerly corner of King and Barrie lived Dr. Dean, and a Major Sadler, before coming to the Cunningham home. Going northerly along the water front from the new Macdonald park was the home and grounds of the Murney family. Then came Bowers tannery with what he called "Tan Bark lane" (possibly now Simcoe street) dividing this property from that on which stood the residence of General Bonnycastle on King street front (removed to make way for residence of M. Sullivan), and Molson's brewery on the water front. Mr. Moxon's father had lease of the property for life, but at his death it was transferred to his mother, through efforts of General Bonnycastle and Sir Henry Smith, the rental being paid to a Mr. Prior of the militia department. The widow held the same till surrendered to the government in preparation for the building of the present redoubt. He mentioned it as Murray tower, but later through deference to the Murney family it was called after them.

—E. E. HORSEY.

INSPECTION OF ROADS

Will Be Postponed by the Heavy Snowstorm.

At a meeting of the county good roads committee held on Saturday at the court house, it was decided that the members of the committee would make an inspection of the road included in the good roads system on Tuesday morning and they would be in a position to decide what work would be undertaken during the year. The inspection will now have to be postponed on account of the heavy snow.

James Seabrook of Sealey's Bay was awarded the contract to furnish the tractor for the stone crusher for the year. Mr. Seabrook's price was the lowest.

Is Seeking Damages.
C. W. Livingston, Toronto, son of Charles Livingston, Kingston, is counsel for plaintiff, Philip Faulkner, Toronto, who is suing Dr. John A. Tuell and Mr. and Mrs. John Deacon for fraud and deceit in introducing a child of the defendant into his home as the plaintiff's child and the plaintiff supported and maintained it accordingly and suffered damages by so doing. The child is now thirteen years of age. He is a trade apprentice and living at the Faulkner home.

In the Whig Long Ago.
The Toronto Star Weekly of the 18th contains a special article about the cutting of women's hair in the Portsmouth penitentiary, and the refusal of a woman convict to have hers shorn. The story first appeared in the Whig over a year and a half ago.

Delegates to General Council.
On June 10th next the United church comes into being and among the Kingstonians at the General Council will be Revs. Prof. John Matheson, W. H. Raney, Frank Sanders and Mr. Elmer Davis, Rev. A. J. Wilson, Napanee, will represent the Kingston presbytery.

The merchants are very thankful that the snow storm did not come on Saturday. They did splendid business at the week-end.

OBITUARY

Late Mrs. Ann Mathews.
The death occurred at the Hotel Dieu Hospital on Sunday of Mrs. Ann Mathews, widow of the late John Mathews. Deceased was formerly of Inverary and was well known in that section of the country. She was a Roman Catholic in religion. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. John Kelly, Odessa; Mrs. John O'Hara and Miss Florence of Syracuse, N.Y.; also by two sons, Charles and Thomas of Syracuse, N. Y.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning from M. P. Keyes' undertaking parlors to St. Patrick's church, Railton, where requiem mass will be said.

Late Mrs. Christina Reid.
There passed peacefully away at her home, Princess street, on Sunday morning, one of the venerable and highly respected ladies of this city in the person of Christina Reid, widow of the late James Reid, who died in 1901. The late Mrs. Reid was born in Kingston and had resided here all her life, paying the way for deep friendships by her Christian-like spirit and kindly manner.

The late Mrs. Reid was in her eighty-ninth year but for the past six years she had been in ill-health. She was an Anglican in religion and in her earlier days had taken an active part in the work of St. James' church. She was interested in the welfare of others and sought always to do good to those whom she could assist. She was a devoted wife and mother and greatly beloved by her friends.

The late Mrs. Reid is survived by five sons, Robert J., Samuel F., Francis C., Richard L. and Frederick C.; also by three daughters, Mrs. Ida Waddell and Mrs. Edith Keeley of this city and Mrs. Edith Boodle of Syracuse, N.Y. The funeral, which will be of a private nature, will take place on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to Catawaqui cemetery, Rev. T. W. Savary officiating at the service.

At Gospel Hall.

At Gospel Hall on Sunday evening, one felt the truth of the words of Pierre Loti, French naval officer and literary genius, who said, "Those who still bow before the feet of Christ are the only happy people on earth. They know nothing of the anguish of passing time, they go on their way confident and calm, they know nothing of the peril of coming extinction. In default of this faith could we but anchor ourselves to something, some hope, some immortality—but there is nothing. Outside this ever-shining personality of the Christ everything is darkness."

So it seemed here. The hall was filled with radiant faces which spoke of having put Christ to the test of experience and found an anchor of the soul, sure and steadfast. Mr. Jones' address, which dealt with the fundamental principles of salvation was extremely simple and earnest. Mr. Ernest Thomas' closing message in song was most impressive.

A Former Kingstonian Passes.
Tidings have reached Middleville of the death at Vancouver, B.C., of Rev. E. C. W. McCall, B.A., pastor of the Congregational churches of Middleville, Hopetown and Rosetta from October 1st, 1882 until September, 1890. Evan Charles Walter McCall was born in Kingston eighty-two years ago, a son of Evan McCall, the famed Highland bard. He was educated at Queen's University, graduating therefrom with honors. He was married to Miss Lucy Livingston, Kingston, who with two daughters and one son and several grandchildren, all living in British Columbia, survive him.

Bishop Bidwell held confirmation in Trinity and St. Paul's church, Brockville, on Sunday.

POLICE COURT CASES.

Another Remand in Knowlton Case

Two Tipplers Up.
Albert Knowlton, who pleaded guilty to charges in connection with the theft of a bicycle in the police court on Saturday morning, came before Magistrate Farrell on Monday morning and a further remand was made in the case in order to give the accused time to make restitution.

Two tipplers were in the line-up and both admitted that they had been drinking extract of lemon. One stated that a fellow gave him a mouthful of lemon extract and that it made him dizzy. He said he was on his way to get a ham sandwich when a couple of police constables rounded him up.

IM MARINE CIRCLES

Despite the heavy snowstorm of Sunday there were no irregularities reported in marine circles and any boats that were out, landed safely, according to marine officials on Monday morning. There was some anxiety felt on Sunday for the Tree Line boats which left Kingston on Saturday but it was learned that they had arrived at Port Colborne on Sunday afternoon at four o'clock without any mishap.

The tug Donnelly went up to Collins Bay on Friday afternoon to draw a large dump scow belonging to Mr. A. M. Rankin off the ways in the marine railway where it had been rebuilt during the winter. Ordinarily a ship will launch of its own accord but these ways are so constructed that the craft has to be hauled into the water.

Many Autos Bought Under Conditional Sale Plan

Last week forty-two automobiles were purchased in Kingston under the conditional sale plan. The purchaser pays a certain sum of money when he receives the auto and is bound to make monthly payments until the whole cost is covered. All these sales are registered at the court house.

During the past eight years, about sixteen thousand automobiles have been purchased by people living in the county of Frontenac under the conditional sale plan.

Originals Greatly Pleased.
"The Originals" drew large audiences on Saturday afternoon and night at the Grand Opera House in their closing engagements and those who attended either performance were well repaid. Splendid singing, good sketch work and clever jokes were featured and enjoyed. The company scored a decided hit on their visit to the city this trip.
