JULIA ARTHUR COMING.

Outstanding Event at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday. One in a great while there comes to a local theatre an outstanding dramatic and social event which is the one remembered artistic treat above all others. This epoch-making event will happen at the Grand Opera House Wednesday, April 22nd, matinee and night. The curtain will go up promptly at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Lovers of the dramatic art will have their eagerly awaited opportunity of seeing the most remarkable play of this generation, in Bernard Shaw's latest and greatest achievement, "Saint Joan." It will prove to be the outstanding dramatic event in this city, as it has been in New York and London.

Much is expected of this wonderful production of "Saint Joan" and audiences will not be disappointed. The Shaw play is not a tragedy, not a comedy, not a travesty, not rigid history, but a little of all, and told in modern English, even to accent and slang, of the twentieth century. In even the mouth of the heroine are placed not only thrilling passages of inspired pathos, but occasional witty sallies and withering sarcasm. She gets the better of her enemies with the tongue of a woman in face-to-face meeting, as well as with the sword of the soldier on the field of battle. Audiences are aroused to a state of exaltation equal to that which the Maid has inspired the soldiers of France, and they are forced into laughter at some biting ridicule or happy saying. As usual, Shaw makes fun of his audience to its face with his wonted audacity.

Bertram C. Whitney is deserving of great credit in presenting such a fine production in every particular. Miss Julia Arthur is an ideal "Joan" and triumphs in the role. The men of the cast are splendidly fitted for the difficult roles, notably Edwin Morandante, viril impersonation of the Bishop of Beauvais; Lowdon Adams as the inquisitor; George Fitzgerald as the archbishop of Rheims; Erskin Sanford as the tender-hearted monk, Brother Martin; Albert Barrett, as Dunois; and John McGovern as the Dauphin; not forgetting the artistic portrayals of Lynn Pratt as the Earle of Warwick and Henry Buckler as De Stogumber.

"RED" LEGON WILL NOT PLAY HERE THIS YEAR

Parents Object to Him Staying Here—Compeau Gone to Kitchener.

It was announced on Monday by a prominent official of the Central Ontario League team of this city that "Red" Legon, Peterboro outfielder star, who was to remain in Kingston this summer and play for the Kingston team, would not be here this season but would be back in Peterboro. Legon's parents object to him staying here during the summer to work or play ball and Legon will be found with "Shiner" Johnston's crew again.

The announcement was greeted with genuine regret by the fans to-day. It was hoped that Legon would be able to jack up the Kingston outfield this summer but the executive will have to look around for another man now. Legon is a student at Queen's university and is a very popular boy here. He played hockey with the Queen's seniors.
