Variation 17-B.

Biehl: "And on what grounds did you say your wife got her divorce?" Steels: "Playgrounds."

Both Sides.

Barbara: "Mrs. Helmach said she had to get rid of her maid because she didn't know anything." Virginia: "I heard it was because she knew too much." —Joan Benda.

The Social Primes.

I. The Bride. Though she's admired, The poor girl's gosh-al-mighty tired! She's gone, un-til weak in the knees, To count-less show-ers, bridg-es, teas, Receptions, par-ties, mat-l-ness, And such like for some nine-ty days. Don't say "Pooh-poo!" or "Fid-dle-sticks!" She got nine sets of can-dle-sticks! II.

The Bride's Mother. This is the Moth-er of the Bride; In-to six handkerchiefs she's cried, And giv-en to each wo-man friend Wet, salt-y kiss-es with-out end. What she has done is et-i-quette For moth-ers at a wed-ding; yet The truth is Moth-er was a-raid Her daugh-ter would die an old maid! —Rudie.

Deduction.

Helma, a little Finnish girl visiting in an American home, was greatly surprised at the venerable grandmother who seemed to Helma to possess extreme antiquity.

Finally she said to her young hostess: "How old is your grandmother, Blanche?" "Seventy-five," was the answer. "Gee, she must be tough to live so long," was the startling rejoinder. Kathryn G. Woodside.

Liza (to husband): "What's dat in yer jacket?" Some more of dat sympathetic gin?"

Sings 'Em Off.

Bingham: "Women are certainly funny! My wife thought a shaving mirror was the only utensil I needed in order to shave."

Berham: "Where did she get that idea?" Bingham: "Oh, she thought it worked something like a burning glass." —Elsie Fiedler.

For A Holiday of Supreme Enjoyment.

This Summer pass up the familiar, near-at-home vacation ground and visit a land of fresh charm and interest. New scenic thrills await you in Jasper National Park and on the Triangle Tour of British Columbia. Awe-inspiring magnificence features the glorious five-day boat trip from Vancouver to Skagway, Alaska. Jasper National Park—4400 square miles in area—is the largest National Park and game sanctuary in the world. Among the foothills of the Canadian Rocky Mountains, the colossal snow-capped peaks, gigantic glaciers, tree-clad slopes, silvery lakes, torrential river and shady retreats make it a playground of unique grandeur. Jasper Park Lodge offers every modern luxury as well as golf, tennis, riding, hiking boating—every form of sport and recreation.

The Triangle Tour is a wonderful combination of rail travel through the heart of the mountains and boat travel through the sheltered Scenic Seas. Leaving Jasper, the tourist crosses the mountains in close proximity to the highest peaks; the train following the shores of mighty rivers and skirting deep canyons on its way to Prince Rupert. Thence by luxurious steamer to Vancouver and by train back to Jasper, edging the roaring gorges of the Thompson and Fraser Rivers.

The mountain magnificence revealed on the trip to Alaska is un-paralleled by any other scenery that may be viewed from the deck of a boat. Great glaciers, rugged crags, totem poles, romantic cities, Indian villages; these are some of the features that combine to make your Alaskan holiday one great and glorious adventure.

The transcontinental trains of Canadian National Railways all-steel equipped—offer the maximum of travel comfort on your journey to Western Canada. Daily service from Toronto to Winnipeg, Edmonton, Jasper National Park, Prince Rupert and Vancouver.

Ask nearest Canadian National Agent for illustrated booklets and information.

Work Commenced.

The work of repairing the stone bridge at the foot of Beckwith street, Smith's Falls, has started. W. R. Holcroft, Kingston, is the engineer in charge. He has five men at work at the present time and it is expected that more will be taken on as the work proceeds. The total cost of the repairs will be $5,938.50.

LETTERS To The Editor

Hydro Auxiliary Plant.

Hamilton, April 21.—(To the Editor): I note the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario are ready to start on a huge $7,000,000 auxiliary steam plant at Bay Side Park, Toronto, which would probably produce 40,000 horse power, at a cost of perhaps $15 for interest and depreciation, say $15 for coal, and $10 for operation and administration, plus transmission.

The coal and operation to be an everlasting charge, whether the United States or Canada put an embargo on coal or not, or whether the Nova Scotia and Alberta coal miners are on strike half the time or not.

The proposed plant could not produce for a year or more anyway. Why not act at once and stop power export (by declarations that it is required for immediate use in Canada) on and after March 31st, 1926, which would release to us about 140,000 horse power at Niagara Falls eleven months hence, which would last us until we get another Chippawa, or better still, get some of the half price energy now developed and exported at Cedar Rapids, and solve the famine immediately?

A transmission line from Cedar Rapids to Toronto, 300 miles, only 200 more than from Niagara, would perhaps cost less than the new steam plant, and expend as much or more wages in construction, and then it would always be required to transmit from Cornwall to Toronto, and from Cornwall east, and the future operations would cost much less, just to open the gates and let the water fall over, than by coal from the United States or Eastern or Western Canada for all time, everlastingly increasing in expense. Then the plant might probably be scrapped before it earned quarter its cost.

Should not Ontario or Canada immediately declare her position on the duration of the export contract, whether from year to year only, according to Canada's requirements, or for 50 or 99 years? So if the $200,000,000 power merger negotiates with the Niagara, Lockport & Ontario Power Co. (to whom the Hydro Electric Power Commission are now supplying about 60,000 horse power) they will know what they are getting.

Yours truly, —W. O. SEALEY.
