On Thursday evening the Woman's Guild of Christ church, Cataraqui, held a social evening at the rectory at which about sixty members of the parish and their friends were present. Games were played and the prizes won by Mr. John Heaton, Mr. Lawrence Bullene, Mr. Wilfred Sproule and Mrs. McMichael. The event of the evening was, however, the presentation of two gifts to Miss Pheobe Smith, who is leaving shortly to enter as a nurse-in-training in the Kingston General Hospital. Mr. John Heaton, the church warden, on behalf of the parishioners, presented Miss Smith with a substantial sum of money and in doing so said how much she would be missed in the parish. Mrs. Harold Simpson, secretary of the A.Y.P.A., of which Miss Smith is president, made the presentation to her on behalf of the society, of a handsome gold wrist watch and in a brief address spoke of her faithful willing work for the organization, assuring her of the good wishes of all the members for her future career. The Kingstonians who saw "Saint Joan," Bernard Shaw's great play in New York, say the company was almost the same with the exception of Miss Julia Arthur, who played the title role. The larger scenery for the scene on the banks of the Loire was not shown here, and the flag which should have shown the change of the wind by floating out in the air, only stirred slightly. Still most of those who had seen the play in New York say that they preferred it as we saw it on Wednesday. Miss Arthur, who grew stronger as the story proceeded, just as no doubt the Maid of Orleans did as she, a young peasant girl, who could neither read nor write, developed in her strange and strenuous career, had the powerful personality which must have lain behind the simplicity of the village girl of the Middle Ages, whose name has rung down the centuries, and whose story has been written again and again, each author reading into it a meaning of his own. And wherever it is played the audience too see in "Saint Joan" much what they look for. Is not this the quality of the great ones of the earth? Has it not been so with all the saints and even with Him, who took the path of martyrdom along which they followed Him?

That the white crocuses in the custom house garden have recovered from the recent snow storm and are blooming again as if nothing happened. The warmth of Thursday, our first spring day, brought out the buds on the trees and the grass began to show green along the boulevards. In spite of the return of winter on Sunday last, spring is really here and summer is treading fast on her heels.

That at the provincial meeting of the I.O.G.E. held in Hamilton this week Mrs. M. B. Morden opened the discussion on made-in-Canada goods in her report criticising the smuggling of dresses, lingerie and other articles of feminine apparel from the United States. This she declared was most unpatriotic. She also urged the members of the order to refrain from purchasing expensive importations from Paris and New York. In the matter of magazines and newspapers she said the Canadian daily papers were the equal of those from across the border in both news and entertainment, while there were sufficient magazines and other periodicals to satisfy most readers.

St. James Woman's Auxiliary. The monthly business meeting of St. James W. A. was held in the Parish Hall on Thursday afternoon, the president, Mrs. R. E. Genge in the chair. After the business was transacted, the members had an enjoyable social afternoon. The work done by the Auxiliary was placed on exhibition, showing an excellent supply of clothing for a boy and a girl in the Gordons' school, Saskatchewan. Everything required for the comfort and happiness of the two children was included in the list, dresses, aprons, underwear, mufflers, sweaters, etc., as well as quilts, blankets, towels, sheets and pillow slips. A feature was a very pretty W. A. bed spread of factory cotton with its generous band of red and its cross of the same color on which the letters, "W. A." were beautifully embroidered. The Juniors also had their display of articles made during the winter. Dolls, bags, balls, etc., and very happy were the little people who came in to the afternoon tea which was served at 4.30. This was the occasion of a united meeting of all the branches of the Auxiliary and the hall was well filled. A warm welcome was extended to several members of the diocesan board who dropped in. Miss Jean Granes added very much to the general enjoyment by playing several piano selections.
